Applications for examinations must be completed by plumbers who wish to take the special examination for licensing and must be signed by a county official.

Applications may be obtained in Room 301, Third Floor, of the Garrett County Courthouse, beginning November 30, during regular office hours. The Court House will be closed on Thursday and Friday in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday.

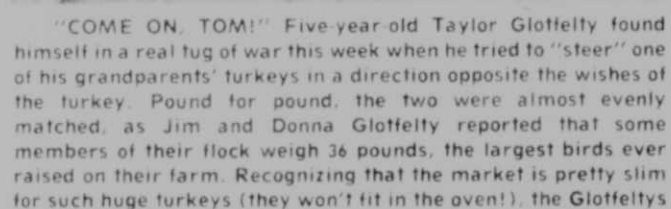

Persons unable to obtain applications in person may have them mailed by calling 334-1920, 895-3188 or 359-9086.

A $20 application fee will be charged for those wishing to take the master plumber examination (minimum 3,000 hours—two years) and a $10 fee for journeyman plumber examination (minimum 1,500 hours—one year).

After filling out both specified pages of the application, applicants must mail them to: Office of Revenue Permits, Mr. Joseph Howe, Room 310, Old Courthouse, Oakland, Maryland, 21550. Applications are due by December 16.

A special notice concerning pre-examination meetings and an admittance card showing the meeting date, place and time of the examination will be mailed to each qualified applicant.

Most of their turkeys are not that large, however, and Mrs. Gloffetty says they will sell about 500 of the fresh birds this week and another 500 for Christmas. Operation Santa Claus Seeking Local Donations

Saturday marks the opening of the firearms season for deer in Maryland. The season, which runs from November 28 through December 5 is for bucks only and will be followed by an antlerless deer season on December 11 and 12.

White-tailed deer are native to the state, however, far fewer were present when the first settlers arrived, possibly because the state was covered by virgin timber with little underbrush. Deer browse on small branches and shrubs, and there was little of that type of food merchants and city government have sponsored a Christmas parade the day after Thanksgiving, complete with a visit from Santa Claus; however that celebration this year is scheduled to be an extra special one, according to Connie Margison, coordinator of the event.

Not only will there be a parade at 6 p.m. this Friday and a visit from Santa, but several of other activities have been slated to celebrate the lighting of nearly $20,000 worth of new Christmas decorations in downtown Oakland.

tions were installed by town employees on Monday and lights were placed on a 60-foot evergreen tree in the lawn of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church along Second Street Tuesday night by members of the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department. The firefighters used their newly-acquired 100-foot ladder truck to attach the lights to the tree branches.

The official lighting of that tree, plus special music provided by the Southern High School band and the Garrett Choral Society, prize drawings by the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club, and the annual distribution of popcorn balls by Santa to area children will be among the events.

Beginning at 5 p.m. Friday, the First United National Bank & Trust will play music over its chime sound system, Ms. Margison said. At 5:45, all downtown merchants are asked to turn off all exterior and window display lighting. When the parade starts at 6 p.m., all of Operation Santa Claus. Christmas Basket, sponsored by the Oakland Rotary Club, began its seventh year recently to aid needy families in Garrett County through donations by club members and local businesses and individuals.

In conjunction with the Department of Social Services, the club obtains the names of families in need on a confidential basis. Rotary members then purchase needed clothing and local businesses supply food donations for Christmas baskets. Toys are also collected via an "angel tree," located at Heck's Department Store in Oakland.

This year, the live, 12-foot Douglas fir was donated by Rick Cropp of Maple Lane Farm and Nursery. Persons are asked to take one or more of the paper angels (marked boy or girl and what age) from the tree while shopping and then purchase the toys and turn them into a store clerk, along with the

Among the many accidents which occurred last weekend in the county because of icy and snowy roads was a mishap involving a school bus full of children, according to reports filed by the Maryland State Police.

That 3:50 p.m. accident occurred last Friday when the bus, operated by Laverna S. Evans, 45, Oakland, was southbound on the Old Crellin Road and apparently in the middle of the roadway because of blinding snow conditions. Police reports indicated that a 1983 Lincoln, driven by Anita M. Teter, 43, Oakland, was northbound on the same road and struck the bus head on.

The Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad responded to the scene and transported the injured to Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Teter and two of the 30 students were treated and later released from the hospital emergency room.

Although the police report indicated that both parties involved in the accident stated that visibility was bad, Tfc. C.R. Smith charged the bus driver with failure to drive right of center.

Evans stated this week that the bus was stopped because of blinding snow and noted that a steep embankment on the side of the road prevented her from getting too close to the edge because of the extremely icy roads that had not been treated. "I had a bus full of children to protect," she said.

Another accident Friday sent two more persons to the local hospital.

The 11:15 a.m. accident occurred when Floretta M. Savage, 57, Oakland, stopped on Route 219 north at the Mini-Mall and signaled for a left-hand turn. The 1979 Jeep Wagoneer behind her, operated by Odie C. Friend, 53, Terra Alta, W.Va., had also stopped, when a vehicle following him, a 1978 Jeep pickup operated by Gary R. Warnick, 19, Swanton, skidded on the wet road and struck the Friend vehicle from the rear. The Friend vehicle was then pushed into the rear of the Savage vehicle.

The Southern Rescue Squad transported Friend and a passenger in his vehicle, Carrie Friend, 35, also of Terra Alta, to Garrett Memorial where they

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners recently executed a formal agreement with the State Aviation Administration (SAA) for an airport site evaluation study.

The county and state have contracted with Greiner Engineering, Rockville, to study the current site and possible other sites for the county airport. The state will pick up 80 percent of the cost, with the county paying the remaining 20 percent. The total cost of the study is approximately $30,000.

The commissioners are expected to meet with Ted Matheson, SAA secretary, and a representative from Greiner in the near future to review the current site, at which time the study will formally commence.

In other commissioner news, Commissioner John Braskey, Delegate George C. Edwards and Garrett County Development Director Tom Jones are in Annapolis to testify before the Department of Economic and Employment Development.

The purpose of their testimony is to attempt to obtain enterprise zone classification for the area around the Southern Industrial Park on U.S. Route 135.

The commissioners also met this week with Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, to discuss the $52,000 shortfall the education board had experienced recently.

Dr. Ryscavage assured the commissioners that the shortfall had been addressed at the last Board of Education meeting. He said the budget had been brought back into line.

Oakland Female Is Victim Of Sexual Assault

Although details are sketchy at this time, Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department reported this morning that an Oakland female was abducted and sexually assaulted on Monday evening.

The woman was allegedly abducted from Heck's parking lot east of Oakland, and taken to another location where she was sexually assaulted.

The assailant, described as a white male, reportedly threatened the victim with a weapon.

Deputy Donald W. Tucker is the investigating officer.

Icy Roads Cause Rear Collision With Snow Plow

An Oakland man was treated and released from Garrett County Memorial Hospital when icy roads caused his car to skid into the rear of a State Highway Administration snow plow.

The accident occurred Sunday at 8 a.m. at the intersection of U.S. Route 219 and Route 135.

Oakland police indicated that Smith ran into the snow plow which was stopped at a traffic light. Smith said he could not see the plow because of sun glare.

Smith was transported to the hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad. Tim Hardesty, 26, Oakland, driver of the plow, and a passenger, John Miller, 53, Oakland, were not injured.

No charges were filed by police.

Oakland Man, Grantsville Mare Share Award

An Oakland man and a Grantsville mare were honored November 14, at an awards banquet of the Interstate Horse Show Association (IHSA) in Washington, Pa.

Pat Gregg, Oakland, recently completed his first season with American Saddlebred show horses. He shared the honor of 1987 IHSA Reserve Champion in the Pleasure Driving Division with his favorite mare, Mulberry Hill's Sassafraz.

Gregg and the mare showed together throughout the IHSA circuit, which includes shows in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Ohio.

Mulberry Hill's Sassafraz, a 13-year-old mare is owned by Cherie P. Ort, owner and operator of Saddletots Stables, Grantsville. Gregg and "Molly" were instructed by Charlie Hatcher and Arne Hartfelder, trainers at Saddletots.

When not driving horses, Gregg is the Oakland correspondent for the Cumberland Times/News.

The pleasure driving division consists of amateurs showing horses in a two-wheeled driving cart. The participants are judged on performance during a walk, trot and extended trot.

The winners in the division are determined through a cumulative point system.

Thanksgiving Eve Service Scheduled At St. Paul's

The annual Oakland area Community Thanksgiving Service sponsored by the Mountain Top Ministerial Association will be hosted by St. Paul's United Methodist Church, Fourth and Oak Streets, Oakland, this evening, November 25, at 7:30 p.m.

"This service offers those in the Oakland area the opportunity to gather for worship on the eve of Thanksgiving as the Community of Faith to remember and offer thanks to God for all that has happened during the year and throughout their lives," said an Association spokesman. The service is held each year in one of the churches in the Oakland area, with the various ministers taking part in and leading the services.

Tonight's service will be led by the Rev. Dr. Allen C. Ridenour, host pastor, with the Rev. John Grant, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, Deer Park, preaching. Others participating will be the Rev. Father Michael Pumphrey, rector of St. Matthew's Episcopal Church, Oakland; the Rev. Father Martin Field, pastor of St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland; and the Rev. Ray Ursin, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland. The St. Paul's United Methodist Church Chancel Choir will be singing two anthems, "The Nation's Prayer" with Ed Bittinger as soloist and "Thanks Be To Thee".

Because of the Mt. Top Ministerial Association's ministry with transients and the need for funds to continue the ministry, the monetary offering this year will be directed to the Association's Transient Fund. Those attending are also encouraged to bring food items for the House of Hope.

All are welcome to attend and participate in the service.

Drinking Water Analyses Available From Sanitary District's Lab

The Garrett County Sanitary District's laboratory located at Deep Creek Lake has recently received a State of Maryland certification for conducting bacteriological assays on drinking water. Individuals requiring analysis on well water for lending institution requirements or personal interest may contact the laboratory and schedule a collection appointment. The cost of the analysis is $15.00 plus an additional charge for collection by a state certified drinking water collector. Payment is required at the time of collection. Results are usually available within five days of the collection.

Municipalities and individuals who operate public drinking water facilities or who are required to conduct analyses on the parameters of a State issued discharge permit are invited to utilize the laboratory on a contract basis. Analyses currently available include Total Suspended Solids, BOD₅, Coliform Bacteria, pH, and Alkalinity. Other tests may be available upon request.

Please direct any inquiries regarding the laboratory and its services to Clay M. Stern, laboratory director, at (301) 387-6115.

Turkey Harvest Sets New Record

Wildlife officials credit good weather during the fall turkey hunting season, which ended November 11, for a record kill this year which more than doubled the old 1986 harvest record. The official Western Maryland total was 575 birds, let by Allegany County with 350, followed by Garrett County with 188, and Washington County with 37 birds.

According to local wildlife manager Al Bourgeois, the Garrett County total compares to 87 birds taken last year. "The turkey population is high," he said, and feels it has been influenced by two good springs which provided excellent hatches, followed by mild winters the last two years.

Some large turkeys reported in Garrett County included a 23-pound bird taken in the Middle Fork area of Savage River State Forest; a 21½-pound bird taken near Sang Run; a 20-pound bird (no location given); a 19½-pound bird taken in the O'Brian Road area; two 19-pounders, one killed in the Savage River State Forest near Swanton, the other near the Mr. Zion Road; and two 18 pounders, one killed in GCC Receives S.B.H.E. Grant For Computer Ed.

Dr. Stephen J. Herman, president of Garrett Community College, announced this week the recipient of a grant award of $14,500 from the Maryland State Board of Higher Education.

The funds will provide in-service training for teachers in the use of microcomputers to enhance student learning. The proposal was developed by GCC's Business and Technology Division in conjunction with the Garrett County Board of Education.

"This program is another example of the joint effort between the public schools and GCC to bring excellence of educational opportunity to both Garrett County teachers and students," stated Dr. Herman.

The program to be developed under this grant will have a direct tie-in to the new computer classroom laboratories Potomac Edison recently donated to both the county public schools and Garrett Community College. Teachers are expected to develop proficiency in applying educational technology to

Workshop Sustains

Major Damage

By Fire Sunday

A workshop located along Mayhew Inn Road about two miles west of U.S. Rt. 219 sustained heavy damage by fire Sunday evening.

Firefighters from Deep Creek and Oakland volunteer fire departments that responded were called to the scene at 5:05 p.m. and found heavy smoke coming from the 20-by-20 foot wood frame structure owned by Thomas Savage. The fire was contained quickly, however there was an estimated $5,000 in damages, according to James Martin, fire investigator for Allegany and Garrett counties.

Much of the loss was from the destruction of several wood-working tools, Martin said. He noted that Savage had some insurance on the building.

The cause of the fire is still under investigation.

Firemen remained on the scene for about one and one-half hours. There were no injuries reported.

BPW Seeking Young Careerist Candidates

The Garrett County Organization of Business and Professional Women is seeking qualified candidates for the club's Young Careerist Program. The program recognizes young successful career women for their outstanding contributions in the work world and the community.

This year the program will be held December 10 at the Will O'The Wisp, Deep Creek Lake. Young Careerist candidates must be between the ages of 21 and 30, inclusive, by July 31, 1988, and have been employed full-time for one year. Full-time employment is considered to be at least 30 hours per week. Applicants must either live or work in Garrett County.

The young careerist chosen by the Garrett County BPW will go on to the Maryland Federation of BPW's state convention next year. The state finalist will then represent Maryland at the National BPW Convention.

The December Young Careerist Program will also be the Christmas program for the Midlake Mall Accepting Donations For Santa Project

Mid-Lake Mall recently joined the efforts of raising money and collecting toys for Lou "Santa" Stouffer, who delivers toys and food to needy families in West Virginia and Garrett County.

A collection box has been placed in the common area at the entrance of the mall. New and good, used toys and canned foods are being accepted.

Word was also received this week that the Southern Band Boosters have raised a substantial amount of money for Santa's good deeds.

Several churches and school groups have also pledged their support of the project.

An Individual Matter . . .

It was announced yesterday that Maryland's highway death toll for 1987 is surging toward an anticipated total of 825 by the end of the year. This figure is the highest yearly total since the early 1970s.

No one seems to know exactly why the number of fatalities has increased so this year. Among the probable reasons are: more traffic on the roadways, increased disobedience of the 55 miles per hour speed limit, more drunk drivers, and still not enough people using seat belts.

There is little that can be done about the amount of traffic; however, our law enforcement officials seem busier than ever in nabbing those who speed and those are driving while under the influence, and Maryland is known for its strict DWI laws and severe penalties.

Our state government finally passed a law making the wearing of seatbelts mandatory and the child safety seat law has now been in effect for several years.

Yet, the number of deaths is climbing. Our conclusion is that there is only so much that can be done via the creation of laws and stricter enforcement of them. Ultimate safety on our highways rests with each individual driver. The police simply cannot catch all of the violators; indeed, they can only scratch the surface.

As we enter this holiday season, a time when the number of traffic mishaps increases even further because of the greater number of vehicles on the highways and a higher consumption of alcoholic beverages, let each of us do his part to keep the roadways safe. All it takes is obeying the law and being more aware of the oncoming driver who may not be obeying the law.

The Thanksgiving/Christmas season should be the most joyous time of the year. But that joy is so quickly shattered when a loved one is the victim of a fatal mishap. And in so many cases, such tragedies can be avoided, just by the use of common sense, awareness, courtesy, and respect for the law.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Those of us who live in Garrett County have so much to be thankful for. We have been blessed with the beauty of our area, but more important, we have some very generous folks who live here. This fact especially rings true when community service comes into play. During our recent Spaghetti Dinner for Hospice, we were fully supported by the community and businesses, namely — Brown's Foodland, Englander's Pharmacy, A&A Realty-Better Homes and Gardens, Nationwide Insurance, Master-Craft Printers, Signs by Dornick, and Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Inc. This enabled our Junior Woman's Civic Club to give just over $1,000.00 to Mr. Wayne Johnson of Hospice. For this we thank everyone.

An incident comes to mind, though, that particularly touched me. Thanks to Danny Bosley, Bill Weissgerber and Tom Graham of A&A Realty/Better Homes and Gardens, fourteen, "clients" from the Area Agency on Aging received a free spaghetti dinner. This kind of sharing was appreciated by our club and I'm sure by the fourteen recipients. It brings the true meaning of Thanksgiving a bit closer.

So, next time we wonder why we live in small-town U.S.A. with all its negatives, don't forget the pluses far outweigh the minuses. Our strength is in our caring, be it club service, church service or personal commitment.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Patti Battista

To the Editor:

Downtown Oakland. Have you been there lately? Many of us pass through it going to or from work, or running errands around town. But, have you bothered to park that car and wander up and down our streets?

If you have, you probably noticed a busy place of specialty shops, financial institutions, profession offices, residences and new construction.

Much of Oakland is an historically important part of our heritage. The Courthouse, B&O Railroad station, St. Matthew's Episcopal Church and the Shirer house weren't built yesterday, you know.

In today's pre-fab world, none of these buildings could be replaced in the original manner. It's a fascinating place which is experiencing unprecedented growth and revitalization.

One of my jobs as president of the Greater Oakland Business Association (GOBA) has been to make the local population realize that our community is a wonderful place to be. Our ever-expanding organization which includes over 75 members from Deep Creek Lake to Deer Park, recognizes that a vital commercial center is the key to our mutual prosperity.

GOBA sponsors numerous promotions and its membership participates in Autumn Glory, Halloween, Old-fashioned 4th of July celebration and church and school socials through out the year. Now that we're approaching the Christmas season, we have something special for you.

GOBA invites you to attend "Light Up Night," Friday, November 27, beginning at 5 p.m., featuring our brand new (and, I might add, not quite paid for) street decorations. Santa Claus will be in town with free popcorn balls for all the children. Approximately 300 treats will be tagged for special prizes donated by participating GOBA members.

One of the best bands in the land — Southern Garrett Band will entertain. The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Nancy Leary, is also scheduled to perform. Rob Michaels, in all attire, no less, will emcee the festivities. All through the Christmas shopping season, shoppers can register at area stores to win a VCR or $100 gift certificates or savings bonds. Radio WJIE broadcasts live drawings every Saturday at 2:30 p.m. Winners' names also appear in The Republican.

As you can see, it is going to be a special Christmas in Oakland, whether you come by for "Light Up Night," the wonderful selection of stores or for the every day, helpful service that area merchants are noted for, this hometown celebration should be the best ever.

Merry Christmas to one and all.

Jack Jones

To the Editor:
While we are on the subject of Friday night events, a great way to top off the evening (after Light Up Night) is to attend the Common Bread Concert at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Oakland.

After hearing two of their concerts and personal word and witness the past few years, I'm an avid fan — not because they are Lutherans, but because they are good!

Common Bread is composed of a group of young adults who have taken a year off from college or jobs to spread the good news through song, personal accounts and puppetry. Their music ranges from Contemporary Christian to knee-slapping gospel.

So join us on Friday night. If you can't make it then, there's another performance Saturday at 8 p.m.

If you have teenagers, they won't want to miss the ecumenical youth retreat on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 6 p.m.

Come share the spirit this weekend!

Thank you,
Pamela R. Ashby

The Origin Of Hospice

As part of the observance of National Hospice Month during November, this article was written by Cathy Chapman, RN, Director of Nursing for Hospice of Garrett County.

Although the first hospice was founded in 1963, the seeds for this new type of care had been planted as early as 1947. Cicely Saunders was nurse turned social worker due to a back injury. Her first job as a social worker was on the cancer unit of a British hospital. It was there that she developed a friendship with David Tasma, a terminally ill Polish refugee. The two were able to talk freely of his feelings and his needs as a dying person. Miss Saunders realized that the care of a dying patient needed to be different from a patient who was expected to recover. She was the first to understand that the pain of a dying person was not just physical but emotional, social, spiritual, as well as economical. Upon his death, David Tasma willed Miss Saunders $1,000 to be used for the care of the terminally ill.

Shortly after the death of her friend, Cicely Saunders began doing volunteer work at St. Luke's, a Catholic home for the terminally ill indigent. There she found dying people who were relatively painfree yet alert — very unusual for the terminally ill at that time. A dying patient normally had to choose between being painfree but barely conscious or alert at the cost of agonizing pain. Miss Saunders discovered that this was due to a unique concept of "regular giving," the administration of pain medicine on a regular basis.

Miss Saunders wanted to expand her work with the dying patient, implementing all she had learned at St. Luke's. She felt the best way to accomplish this was to further her education on physiology and pharmacology. In 1957, Miss Saunders became Dr. Saunders. Upon graduation, Dr. Saunders was given a research fellowship to study the effects of drugs on pain in the terminally ill, an unexplored area of medicine.

Dr. Saunders travelled to the United States in 1963 to observe how American facilities cared for their terminally ill and to share the results of her work in England. Her American colleagues were so impressed that at Yale University she received a standing ovation after her lecture.

As Dr. Saunders worked on helping the terminally ill with their physical pain in England, Dr. Elisabeth Kubler-Ross, a psychiatrist at the University of Chicago, was attempting to help the terminally ill with their emotional pain. As she wrote her best selling book, On Death and Dying, she also spoke across the country sharing her profession views. Dr. Kubler-Ross' symposium at Yale was attended by two individuals who had also attended Dr. Saunders' lecture. These two were catalytic in organizing a group of professionals and concerned citizens from Yale University and the community of New Haven, Connecticut to discuss the ideas of these two pioneers in the medical field. Initially this group worked with the Yale New Haven Hospital to implement this new hospice concept. Then in 1971, this group formed Hospice, Inc., the first organization in the United States committed to the care of the terminally ill.

Hospices in the United States have grown from 1 in 1971 to 1,683 in 1987. Although hospices may be quite varied in size and organizational structure, they all share the same goal for keeping the patient comfortable so that he/she can make the most of their remaining time.

Your purchase of this wreath not only makes a pretty holiday decoration for your home, but would also be a nice, inexpensive present for someone special, or a good way to say thank you to your employees.

These wreaths have the added attraction of contributing financially to the Habitat program in Garrett County.

We appreciate your purchase. Thank you very much.

To the Editor:

I would like to use this opportunity to reflect for a couple of moments on a truly outstanding football season. The 1987 Ram Football Squad was one that will live in the memories of Ram fans forever. Who will ever forget the exciting wins and emotional play exhibited every Friday night by the Rams?

Those of us in the football program have never felt closer to a group of people than we have this season with our school and community. The tremendous school spirit caused by the cheerleaders and carried to each game by the administration, faculty and students was always at a fervent pitch.

Our hearts were always warmed by the sight of the Maruccis on the field every day trying to improve on an already great facility, and the unbelievable pride exhibited by the county roads employees who worked through rain, snow and cold to prepare our field for the Oakland-Cumberland football clash.

The names of the people are far too numerous to mention, but their actions and help are etched in our memories forever. As we practiced each day during the season, we saw their countless hours of devotion and it pushed us to perform to an even higher level.

Although we ended two games short of our goal, I look at this season as the best I have ever had in Oakland. The group of kids, which we as coaches marveled at each Friday night, will always be special to us.

Their desire, intelligence and preparation always outweighed the opponent's level of ability.

Every successful athletic team has that "special" ingredient that sets them apart. The 1987 Ram team had the unifying spirit of team PRIDE. We had PRIDE in ourselves as a team. Never was the thought of individual achievement a point of concern. Our team had PRIDE in togetherness as a group and PRIDE in representing our community and school.

The education that our young men and women received this year will always be special. It was an education in real-life goals and achievements. It was an education in community pride and involvement. Finally, it was an education in what desire and preparation can lead to in the game of life. I guess it is these experiences which help make athletics the greatest education of all.

Owners Protest

advance of the time mining would occur. This negotiation would be to obtain a waiver of the support area requirements. If such a waiver is obtained, the Bureau of Mines will allow the company to mine under the structure. However, if a waiver cannot be obtained, Mettiki is required to submit plans for and leave the required support area under the structure. This means, Hooker said, that the owner of a structure has the right to decide on the nature of protection given to him.

Hooker also explained that if the owner waives the right to support areas under his structures, and the property is then sold, the subsequent owners do not have the right to support areas either. Permits must be renewed every five years, however, and the owners of new structures built in that period of time will also have the right to support areas, or may waive that right through negotiations.

According to Hooker, subsidence protection may take either of two forms: prevention of subsidence damage or mitigation of damage, meaning that the mine operator repairs or replaces a damaged structure, or compensates the owner for the damages. In either case, he said, the mine operator must conduct his operations to prevent subsidence from causing damage to the land surface, and must have a plan for correcting damage should it occur.

Leaving coal in place or back-filling voids where coal has been removed, said Hooker, are techniques for prevention of subsidence. Planned, controlled subsidence, he went on to say, allows subsidence to occur in a manner that does not produce damage to the surface. The goal of planned, controlled subsidence is prevention of property damage, rather than prevention of subsidence.

Hooker stated that the authority of the Bureau of Mines to require replacement of water supplies impacted as a result of deep mining is not specifically stated in Maryland coal mining law or regulation. However, regulation does require that an application contain a description of the measures to be taken to correct the effects of any material damage or diminution of value of lands which may occur. Hooker stressed that the Bureau considers loss of a water supply as a material damage and diminution of the value of the land, and therefore requires the applicant to include water supply replacement plans in the application.

Mettiki's application specifies that in cases of water supply loss the user will be supplied with water until it is determined if the loss is permanent. If the loss is determined to be permanent, Mettiki will provide a permanent replacement supply through deepening the well, drilling a new well, or other means.

The Bureau intends to include a condition dealing with the issue of water supply replacement on any deep mining permit issued as a result of this application. The condition would require the permittee to replace any water supplies determined by the Bureau to be impacted by the mining operation.

Giving a brief description of the area to be mined and the method of mining being proposed were Mettiki officials Fred Polce, vice president of operations, and Joe Sovinski, engineer. The mined area, they said, will be on both sides of the Wilson-Corinna Road. The entrance to that mine will be from Mettiki's present operation. Sovinski estimates that the longwall would be implemented within three years.

Representing the Southeast Backbone Mountain Regional Improvement Association was Donald S. Goldbloom, an attorney from Cumberland.

Goldbloom took issue with several sections of the permit application.

First, he stated that the permit is not in proper form, in that it is merely an amendment to the existing permit issued in 1984. "The entire area to be permitted is territory that is not included in the existing permit," he said. He objected to many references in the permit which say, "Refer to original application DM-101" which he said is "clearly inappropriate."

His second point was that the permit that is being applied for entails surface mining as well as deep mining in that Federal law provides for surface effects of underground coal mining operations, and that Maryland law reads the same way. He quoted Maryland law which includes, "Activities conducted on the surface of lands in connection with a surface coal mine or surface operations and surface impacts incident to an underground coal mine. . ."

He testified that in this case,

Our Turn

Mixed Blessings
by Pam Ashby

"It takes all kinds."

"Variety is the spice of life."

"To each his own."

"Whatever turns you on."

"Those tired, overquoted phrases surprisingly do present a powerful statement about our society. Although most of us sway back and forth from being "good" or "bad," deep within us we hold fast our values regarding life and the people, places and things in it. With this being the eve of giving thanks, let us explore how we human creatures count our blessings.

We can trace our values back to our early days in grammar school. We all had to write poems or stories about which we were thankful. The "traditional" students always spoke of family, pets, food, shelter, warm clothing and the Indians and pilgrims.

Those students are now the adults accepted by society as fine, upstanding citizens.

But what about the "non-traditional" students? Did we somehow have them pegged long ago when we read in shock what they had to say about Thanksgiving?

Remember little Johnny who with a gleam in his eye said he was thankful that he got to help his dad chop off the turkey's head? He's an axe murderer now serving life in San Quentin.

And what about nasty Susie who gave thanks for getting to make up the recipe for the holiday punch? This was the same child who always had witchcraft books in her desk. She has been married seven times and each husband has mysteriously died.

Then there was creepy Charlie who was thankful for his mother's brand new electric knife that would carve the Thanksgiving turkey. You've heard about the Texas Chainsaw Massacre?

Of course we'll never forget lovely Linda in the tight, tiny leather miniskirt who felt blessed by all the make-up she was allowed to wear in the third grade. Where is she now? Let's put it this way — she's not selling apples at the corner of Fifth and Vine.

Five-finger Freddie was always ecstatic about the day after Thanksgiving, the kick-off day for Christmas shopping. He was so thankful for all the "bargains" he found. He has since been nabbed for shoplifting eight times. He has beat the wrap six times and is naturally thankful for that.

Maybe we should have seen those warning signals years ago. Perhaps we could have changed a few lives while there was still time. Maybe it wouldn't even hurt to remember Johnny, Susie, Charlie, Linda and Freddie in our Thanksgiving prayers tomorrow. Maybe there's still hope for those poor, misguided souls.

he feels that it should be necessary for Mettiki to obtain a surface mining permit in addition to the deep mining permit, and that "due to the admission that houses or dwellings will be impacted as a result of the mining by the longwall method, the permit as now constituted should not be granted."

Goldbloom's third point was that the permit does not include a Cumulative Hydrologic Impact Assessment (CHIA), nor a Determination of Probable Hydrologic Consequences (PHC). He admitted that Maryland law, apparently, does not provide for these two items, nor does it require its functional equivalent.

His fourth point was that the Improvement Association feels that there have been no provisions for preventing the subsidence effects of longwall mining, and it is the prevention of the subsidence effects that should be a priority rather than the mitigation of those effects. State law, he says, also states that the operator's plan must insure that the water resources of the state are protected. "This is precisely one of the principal claims of the plaintiffs in the case," he said. Some of the plaintiffs, being farmers, hoped to show that farmers need water, not only to supply their farmhouses, but depend on the underground aquifers, and springs to water cattle and provide for agriculture.

Goldbloom stated, "What is being discussed here is prime or traditional farmland and other types of land that constitute 'renewable resource land' and as such falls under . . . (Maryland law) which provides for even more stringent controls over subsidence in these areas."

The attorney's fifth point was that no pre-application investigation regarding prime farmland has been prepared. While the Soil Conservation District had been contacted, Goldbloom said, they "wrongly felt that the law did not require their comments" on the permit application which is for deep mining, not surface mining.

His last point was, "The permit is defective in that the land owners who live within 1,000 feet of the permitted area were not given the appropriate notice."

Also speaking for the Improvement Association was Richard S. diPietro, geologist and surveyor from Morgan town, W. Va. diPietro noted that in the permit application, no mention is made of abandoned mines in the Bakers-town coal seam, four of which are shown on the applicant's maps. He explained that each such mine extends downward from its opening and is therefore probably flooded.

The Bakerstown coal seam is approximately 250 feet above the Upper Freeport coal seam proposed to be mined. The Upper Freeport coal seam averages 8.5 feet thick in the permit area, according to data submitted to the Bureau by the applicant. diPietro also noted that fracturing from longwall subsidence is generally acknowledged to extend 30 to 60 times the mining height which is the coal thickness. For the permit area, fracturing could then be expected to extend 255-510 feet above the Upper Freeport coal seam, "easily enough to intercept the Bakerstown mines," he said. "Catastrophic or near catastrophic rushes of water to the Upper Freeport workings are therefore possible."

diPietro also pointed out a prediction by the applicant (Mettiki) that the final elevation of the mine pool would be 2,500 feet and that the seepage area would be the lower portions of the valley floors above the mine. He said he agreed with that prediction, and predicted himself that the seepage area would, more precisely, be near the confluence of Aronhalt Fork with Shields Run. The reasons given for that prediction by diPietro are that that confluence is lower in elevation than most of the permit area, it is on the axis of the syncline, it's near the intersection of three mapped fracture traces, and it's 500 feet lower than the highest portion of the coal seam to be mined under this plan.

"The net result of the above conditions," said diPietro, "is that large artesian springs of highly acidic water would emerge from contaminated aquifers and severely pollute Shields Run and further pollute the North Branch of the Potomac River." The applicant, the geologist said, is required to submit a "plan for preventing mine drainage violations of state water quality standards after the mining operation is completed and abandoned."

The applicant's "plan," the geologist said, is to suggest that "any drainage problems after the operation is completed could be handled by the Acid Mine Drainage (AMD) Facility or new technology that is being developed, such as artificial bogs, etc." diPietro reports that the applicant estimates the time to fully flood the mine as three to five years. "Nowhere does the applicant propose maintaining the AMD Facility while waiting for the mine to flood and there is no water quality performance bonding proposed by the state. Who is to pay for the construction of artificial bogs to handle millions of gallons of highly acidic water per day which would flow into Shields Run, even assuming that such a technology is ever successfully developed on that scale? Whose land would be taken to build it?" diPietro asked.

Speaking for himself and the Improvement Association was Edward MacNichol, a property owner in the proposed mining area. MacNichol presented a video taped testimony of 90-year old Garrett C. Dixon, who was not able to attend the hearing. Dixon has lived on his land since 1918, and he, his son and his grandchildren operate a dairy farm and maple sugar camp, and are totally dependent on the income made from these operations.

"We've got everything we've got invested in the dairy business," said Dixon. "The dairy is 100 percent dependent on water. If the water quit, we'd have to quit." He also stated that the maple sugar trees are dependent on ground water. "Where's the water going to come from to replace what we'll lose and who's going to pay for it?" he asked.

At this point, Hooker stressed that property owners "cannot sign away protection of the land — structures, yes, but not the land," referring to the structure support waiver. In the regulations, Hooker said, coal companies must replace water if the loss is deemed permanent. "However, we don't know what impacts longwalling will have, so we can't require the company to know exactly what they will do about impacts," he said.

Association members suggested that if the Bureau and the coal company don't know what will happen (after longwalling) they should base their predictions on other areas in other states where this has been done before. They repeated that longwalling seems to be much more drastic than traditional methods, but had to admit that they know of no complaints from the area of Mettiki's current longwall operation.

Also testifying was Gary E.

angel. Project chairman, Dr. David Bolinger, noted, "The toys are not necessary items, but they help the children who return to school after the holidays and hear 'What did you get for Christmas?' This way they don't have to reply 'New boots and a food basket for the family.' It just helps make Christmas special for them, like Christmas is for my children or your children."

Dr. Bolinger also compared the live tree and the project. "They are both alive... real. There are so many real needs out there. It's a shame it's only at Christmas, but it helps a little."

The chairman noted that the 50 families which will be served this year are not necessarily traditional families. "We have many single parent situations, elderly couples and children in group homes. We base who we help on need only — not family size."

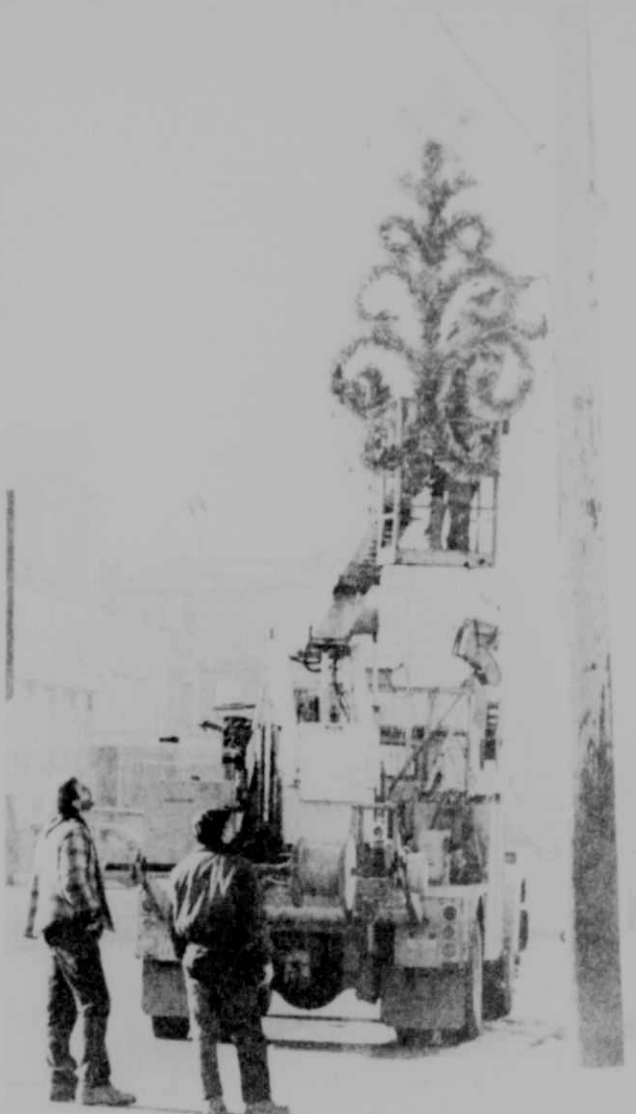

The project has grown over the years. In 1981, 10 families were served. That total has quadrupled.

With the cooperation of the Salvation Army, the local 60-member club received old, but salvagable dolls. The Garrett County Extension Office with the aid of local home-maker's clubs then took to the task of dressing the dolls. "They even had a contest on the best costumes," said Bolinger.

The project benefits people all over the county "from Finzel to Walnut Bottom," said Bolinger.

The Rotary Club is accepting donations of food staples and money from local businesses and individuals. Interested persons may contact Bolinger at 334-1122 for a list of staples needed or for information on how to donate other items or money.

GOING UP! Brand new Christmas decorations for downtown Oakland were installed Monday by town employees, assisted by a C&P Telephone crew, in preparation for the 1987 Christmas season. The $20,000 worth of new decorations are being paid for via a fund-raising effort by the Greater Oakland Business Association, with about one-third of the amount still to be raised. The decorations, which include lights on a large evergreen tree in the center of town, will be officially lighted this Friday evening following the annual Christmas parade. See front page story for details.

those lights are to be turned back on again, simultaneously.

Following the parade will be the official lighting of the tree, with the switch to be thrown by a member of city government. Rob Michael will be the master of ceremonies.

After the tree lighting, the Garrett Choral Society is slated to lead the singing of Christmas carols and there will be holiday music by the Southern High School Band.

Drawings of names of persons who donated money to help pay for the new decorations will follow, with the BPW Club awarding prizes to those whose names are drawn. Winners must be present to claim their prize.

Popcorn balls, some with prize tags, will then be distributed by Santa Claus, who will be housed in a small portable building along the street. Use of the building is being donated by Mountaineer Log and Siding, Oakland. Only youngsters ages 10 and under are eligible to receive a popcorn ball.

The prizes for the winning popcorn balls are being donated by the members of the Greater Oakland Business Association.

Approximately $13,000 has been raised over the past several months to pay for the new decorations; however Ms. Margison stressed that "we still have about $7,000 to go." She said various fund-raising activities will continue and persons who wish to make a donation are asked to contact her at Marvin's Men's Wear or any GOBA member.

Ms. Margison said she was "thrilled" with the success of the effort so far, and hopes that those who have not yet donated will do so within the next few weeks.

"A lot of people never dreamed we could raise as much money as we have for this project," she said. "But we (GOBA) believe that these decorations are not only good for the downtown economy, but also beautify the town during the Christmas season and provide a real boost to everyone's holiday spirit."

The lighting celebration is slated to become an annual event, she said.

Lisa Thayer, of the BPW Club who has assisted Ms. Margison with coordinating the event, added that others who wish to participate in the parade Friday night are invited to do so and should contact Dan Daniels at 334-1100 or her at 334-9622.

Deer Season

available to them. Today, small woodlots, and agricultural crops like soybeans, corn and small grains, give deer a perfect habitat and plenty of food.

A bag limit for the season is one deer. Wildlife Manager Al Bourgeois reminds hunters that antlerless permits are not valid during buck season, and that those hunters who bag a buck are not eligible to hunt during antlerless deer season.

He also reminds landowners that although no license is required for them to hunt on their own land, they are required to field tag their kill. This can be done on a home-made tag, stating name, address, area killed and date. These deer must be checked in even though no license is required.

Bourgeois says that if the weather cooperates, he expects a good harvest in the county this year.

(Santoro) Fischetti.

MSTA President To Visit Garrett County Tuesday

Beverly L. Corelle, the president of the Maryland State Teachers Association, will visit Garrett County on Tuesday, Dec. 1.

Ms. Corelle will be at the Wisp Ski Resort, McHenry, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. to discuss her work on the Governor's Commission on Teacher Salaries and Incentives, the MSTA Compensation Plan, and other Garrett County teacher concerns. All teachers are invited to attend.

The Garrett County Teachers Association is an affiliate of the MSTA and National Education Association.

Library Corner

This weekend will offer the very last opportunity to view a unique exhibit at the Ruth Enlow Library in Oakland of the B & O Railroad resort hotels in Oakland and Deer Park. The exhibit, which has attracted hundreds of visitors during the past three months, will be taken down on Monday. Although the library will be closed on Thanksgiving Day, it will be open the usual weekend hours: 9:15 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Friday, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday.

Those wanting to learn more about the B & O Railroad may want to see a new book by John F. Stover, "History of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad." Stover came to Garrett County in the summer of 1984 to speak on John W. Garrett and the B & O. His book combines solid information with many interesting details of the railroad's operations through the years.

Movies for children this Saturday at the library in Oakland will include "Nature's Strangest Creatures," "Man O' War" and "Tender Tale of Cinderella Penguin." The program will begin at 1:30 p.m.

Class Of 1953 To Plan Reunion

Interested members of the first graduating class of Southern High School, the class of 1953, will meet Wednesday, Dec. 2, at the Knights of Pythias Lodge in Oakland to make plans for a 35-year reunion. The meeting is slated to get underway at 7:30 p.m.

Omission Noted

Evans, who farms 600 acres with his father, John T. Evans. "I don't want to fight," he said. "I don't want to start over, either, and I think the rest of the people here feel the way I do." Evans spoke of a gravity-flow spring on his farm which would be impossible to replace, saying that documented tests showed the spring to produce 2.7 gallons per minute last summer during the drought. Further tests show the spring's flow to be back up to 4.9 gallons per minute now. The spring waters 150 cattle at no pumping or other energy costs. "We need this industry (mining)," Evans said, "but we need it so all of us can survive."

Another question was raised by property owner Gary Cooper Sr. He said he felt his land was valuable for resale because of water readily available near the surface. "Would we be compensated for loss of that value if we lost that water?" he asked. Abar replied that he wasn't aware of an answer to that question now, however, he said that amounts of water lost (example, eight gallons per minute) would be replaced with like amounts of water.

At one point, Hooker exclaimed that the Bureau seemed to be taking a lot of fire for suggesting individual negotiations with Mettiki. "We felt that would be fairer than the Department making one set of negotiations without the personal input of property owners," he said. He also reiterated that to sign an agreement waiving support under dwellings and other structures is the property owner's option. "The coal companies will ask them, but they don't have to enter into any agreement. They are protected without it; an agreement would waive that protection," Hooker said.

One property owner said that if everyone kept the support under their houses, the company couldn't longwall, and another property owner asked who was going to check for support areas. Mettiki's Police answered, "We're not going to cheat. We're not going to mine under a lot of houses. A lot of you may be jumping to conclusions."

However, a feeling of mistrust toward Mettiki seemed to prevail among the property owners throughout the hearing. "I don't trust them to do what they say they'll do," said one unidentified property owner.

At the conclusion of the unhurried hearing attended by approximately 45 people, Abar reiterated again, "If the company cannot get a waiver agreement they cannot take out structure supports. The supports will stay. That's not just my word — it's state law," he said.

Abar also made it clear that the Bureau of Mines does not make the laws. "It is our job and responsibility to carry out the law," he said. He added that hearings are held for citizen input that may bring something to the Bureau's attention they had previously missed. He said, however, that the Bureau of Mines, as a state regulatory agency, does not have the option to turn down a permit, if the applicant has adhered to regulations and provided all necessary safeguards.

A NEW FACE — Renovations which began last February on the Mt. Zion United Methodist Church, Swanton, are now complete. A rededication service will be held Sunday, December 6, at 7 p.m. with Pastor Hal Rotruck and District Superintendent Rev. John Mason participating. The public is invited to the celebration.

Postively no hunting, trespassing or trapping on the Evans property on Rt. 38, Kitzmiller.

HUSKIES!

Potomac State College was the other opponent in the tournament and also recorded wins over the two Penn State teams.

The Lakers were never threatened in the game against Fayette, as they jumped out to a 10-2 advantage in the early moments and extended that margin to 25 points (49-24) by halftime.

Freshman 6-7 center Eric Downs, out of John Marshall High School in West Virginia, led the Lakers with 18 points, a dozen rebounds, four blocked shots and three steals.

Duane Tabor finished with 17 points, while former Central Preston standout Joe Schmide added 16 and Aaron Davis and Steve Felton each hit 10. East Preston's Tony Haskiell provided six assists and Eric Jordan added five.

Pacing Fayette and all scorers was Peter Pilko, who netted 23 points.

The Lakers also dominated the board play, pulling down 53 rebounds compared to just 19 for Fayette.

After being down 13-12 at the 13:38 mark of the first half against New Kensington, Laker William Scales stole the ball and fed it to Kerwin Thompson, whose bucket put Garrett on top for good.

Scales made it 16-13 moments later when Thompson came up with a steal and feed.

A pair of unanswered jump shots by Downs gave the Lakers a 20-13 lead at the 12-minute mark. They were on top at halftime by a 47-30 margin.

A three-pointer by Steve Penn State Fayette (58): Rodriguez 2-4-10; Clingan 2-0-5; Halbrook 2-4-4; Pilko 8-6-11; 23; Klinko 1-0-2; Rosso 2-0-1-4; Soberdash 2-0-4; Coveag 2-0-4. Totals 19-14-26-58.

Garrett CC (103): Eric Rice 9-21-10; Rob Germain 2-0-4; Aaron Davis 4-22-10; Kerwin Thompson 1-0-2; Joe Schmide 8-0-1-6; Eric Jordan 4-0-1-9; Duane Tabor 7-24-17; William Scales 3-0-0-4; Steve Felton 3-0-0-18; Roberto Frazier 0-0-1-0; Tony Haskiell 3-1-1-7; Eric Downs 8-24-18; Dell Youngblood 2-0-4. Totals 47-7-15-103.

Halftime: GCC 49; Fayette 24. Three-point goals: Fayette 2 (Clingan, Pilko); Garrett 2 (Jordan, Tabor). Fouled out: Soberdash.

Chepkovich in the second half brought New Kensington to within 13 in the second half, 76-63, but the Pennsylvanians could get no closer.

Coach Gibson received another balanced scoring attack from his team, as four players finished in double figures. Downs again led with 21 points, Schmide hit 13, Kerwin Thompson hit 12, and Haskiell, who came off the bench to fill the point guard position for injured Aaron Davis, finished with 11 points.

Gibson noted that he was especially pleased with the Lakers' victory because the New Kensington players were considerably taller. "Their front line measured 6-9, 6-6, 6-5, and 6-4," he said. "Our better team-quickness made the difference."

Downs also paced the Lakers in rebounds with eight, although New Kensington out-rebounded Garrett, 28-23.

Leading all scorers was Chepkovich, who hit 27 points for New Kensington, while Eric Bielata finished with 23 and Garth Scott netted 15.

The 2-0 Lakers will return to action this weekend in New York City in the Fashion Institute of Technology Tournament.

Penn State New Kensington (71): Tony Paul 9-13-1; Matt Henrich 1-1-3-3; Garth Scott 4-3-3-15; Steve Chepkovich 13-2-27; Pat Cobert 0-0-1-0; Eric Bielata 10-3-4-21; Matt Gourley 1-0-0-2. Totals 31-8-16-71.

THE GOING WAS TOUGH for Southern tailback J.R. Bosley and the rest of the Rams in Saturday's Maryland State Class B semi-final game at Fairmont Heights. The Hornet defense, which was described by Southern Coach Tom Woods as the strongest, quickest defense faced all year by the Rams, keyed on Bosley all afternoon; however the senior running back still finished with 98 yards on 24 carries, to give him a total of 1,751 yards for the

Rams Eliminated From State Playoffs With 14-8 Loss To Fairmont Heights

The best season ever for the Southern High School varsity football team came to an end Saturday afternoon, just two victories short of a state championship, as the Rams were edged by Fairmont Heights, 14-8, in the Maryland Class B semi-finals.

The contest with the Hornets was primarily a defensive struggle, as each team finished with less than 200 yards of total offense. Not only did both defensive units play well, but the strong wind which prevailed throughout the game was also a great hindrance to the offenses and the kicking games.

Senior Ram tailback J.R. Bosley was again the workhorse on the ground for the Rams, compiling 96 yards on 26 carries, however Southern managed only a net yardage of 92 yards rushing. Quarterback Zack Gibson added another 64 yards through the air, completing four of eight passes.

The Southern defense limited the Hornets to 100 yards on the ground and 81 more through the air; however the Rams found themselves down 14-0 at halftime and, while they played a better game in the second half, they managed to reach the end zone only once. The eight points scored by the Rams was the most in any game this season against the Fairmont Heights defense.

The Rams won the coin toss, elected to defer possession of the ball to the second half put the strong wind at their backs.

The Hornets received the kickoff and called three straight running plays, but moved the ball only five yards and were forced to punt.

Southern began on its own 26-yard line and moved the ball to the 46 on runs of five and 14 yards by Bosley. However on the next play, the snap was fumbled and Eric Myers recovered for Fairmont Heights at the Ram 43.

After a five-yard motion penalty, Hornet quarterback Daniel Taylor connected with Sterling Mills on a 48-yard scoring pass. Mills caught the ball in the left flat, broke two tackles in the Southern secondary, and went the rest of the way for the touchdown.

The conversion kick by Myers was wide to the right, leaving the Hornets with a 6-0 advantage at the 7:28 mark of the first quarter.

The Rams were presented a scoring opportunity later in the quarter when Garnell Wilson's quick kick on third and six at the Hornet 26 went straight into the line and the ball was recovered by Southern on the Fairmont 27. However, the of the ball had been a key in several Ram victories, but the swirling wind took away that advantage.

The Hornets' drive was halted on a recovery of a Jeff Turner fumble by Bobby Bernard at the Ram 44, but Park was again forced to punt into the wind and gained only four yards.

Fairmont moved the ball deep into Ram territory, but was stopped on a fourth down and one at the 20-yard line.

The Rams again went nowhere and, for the third time in the second quarter, Park had to punt into the wind and this time the ball traveled only 12 yards, giving the Hornets

Park had come into the game averaging over 31 yards per attempt and his excellent placing Bernard with a 13-yarder on third down and six from the 20; connected with Bernard again on a 17-yard toss to put the ball on the Fairmont 14, and then, after a sack which moved the ball back to the 26, threw 24 yards to Brent Sanders to give the Rams a first down on the two-yard line and set up Bosley's scoring run.

The first attempt for the two-point conversion was an unsuccessful pass by Gibson; however, a Hornet penalty gave the Rams a second chance from the one-and-a-half and Bosley crashed over for the final points of the game.

Leading the Rams' defensive attack were Bernard and Chris Helbig, who each had eight tackles. Marty Sharpless, Gary Long, and Mike Inglesse each finished with seven.

"We had a very difficult time getting field position in the first half," Southern Coach Tom Woods said. "And our fumble on our first drive really hurt."

Woods said his players were "flat" at the beginning of the game, for reasons he says he will probably never know. "It was a very atypical start for us, and I really don't know why," he said. "We seemed to warm up well and our enthusiasm appeared to be really high just before the game, but we just didn't play very well in the first half."

He said that the wind obviously took away any advantage the Rams may have had with their kicking game, but he quickly added that Fairmont Heights had to contend with the wind also. While Southern averaged only 17.5 yards on six punts, the Hornets did not fare much better, finishing with an average of 9.7 yards on three punts.

"At halftime we just dwelled on all the positive things that we knew we were capable of," Woods said, "and the kids came back out and played with their usual high level of emotion and confidence in the second half. Our defense was definitely the best we had faced all season." Woods noted that the Fairmont coaching staff told him after the game that the Rams had not only scored more points against the Hornets than any other team this year, but were also the only team to score against them on a drive of more than 50 yards.

After the game, the other coaches and I really believed that, all in all, we had the better of the two teams," Woods said. When asked if he would call anything differently if he had the opportunity to play the game over, he said, "I think the only thing I might do differently is not punt as many times into the wind as we did. We gained a little on our punts, and even just yardage once, that we could have been better off taking a chance on fourth down."

In response to whether or not he believed the Rams should have passed more, Woods said, "It is my philosophy that a team should rely primarily on the few things that it does exceptionally well. Our basic running game is what got us there, carrying us through 11 straight games."

"When we did decide to throw, Zack did a good job," he continued. "But for the first time we did not win on the offensive and defensive lines. I don't believe we lost there, but we didn't win."

Although he and the rest of the staff and players were feeling down after the loss, Woods said that, after reflecting back on the Rams' accomplishments this season, he felt good again.

"Back in August we never dreamed we could accomplish what we did," he said. "There were so many new faces in our line-up and we knew there were at least three teams on our schedule that would be very hard to beat (Musselman, Keyser, and Tucker County). But we beat all of them."

"Of all the teams I have coached since I have been in Oakland," he continued, "never have I had one that has accomplished more for its ability. We played teams with more skill, but our kids played with every ounce of ability they had, week after week, and I can't express how proud of them I am."

Woods said he has already begun preparing for next season, as weight training began on Monday. "Football season never really ends," he said, noting that he expects to have a strong nucleus of players back next fall. "Our biggest concern right now is the loss of a lot of linemen," he said.

SWEEPING TO THE RIGHT on this play against the Southern Rams was Fairmont Heights' halfback Jeff Turner during Saturday's Class B state semi-final game on the Hornets' field. A strong wind, plus outstanding defensive performances by both teams kept yardage and point production at a minimum, but the Hornets emerged the victors, 14-8, and will face Walkersville this weekend for the Maryland Class B championship. The Rams finished the regular season with an 10-0 record and then defeated Allegany in the Class B quarter finals. HFC Banquet Slated: Frostburg Coach To Speak

"I have so many different people to thank for all their assistance this year that I want to take plenty of time to prepare a list for next week's paper," he said.

In other games, A&A Realty whipped the 76'ers, 79-47; Miners & Merchants Bank knocked off Ferrell's Mart, 70-46; Durst Exxon (Mt. Storm) topped Fairfax Stone 62-49; and the National Guard marched over Video Connection, 77-47.

This week's games were played Tuesday because of the Thanksgiving holiday. Next week's games will be played Thursday, December 3.

Many Accidents

were both treated and released.
Cpl. Richard Graham investigated and charged Warnick with failure to control speed to avoid a collision.

In yet another Friday accident, an Oakland couple was transported to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, W.Va., by the Tri-Towns Rescue Squad.

The 5:51 p.m. accident occurred when a 1985 Chrysler operated by Harold D. Trickett, 63, Oakland, had become stuck crossway on Route 135 near Chestnut Grove when he attempted to avoid a mishap which had just occurred.

At that point, a 1980 Buick operated by Joann C. Ashby, 32, Oakland, was also eastbound on Route 135 when it crested the hill. Ashby was unable to stop because of icy conditions and skidded into the Trickett vehicle, forcing both vehicles across the westbound lane and into an embankment. The other vehicle involved in the first mishap, operated by Carol J. Kroll, 25, Swanton, was able to avoid the second collision.

Kroll's vehicle had become stuck in the first mishap as she attempted to go around a disabled vehicle by backing across the eastbound lane, which had caused the Trickett vehicle to skid across the road.

Trickett and his wife, Phillis, a passenger in the car, were treated and later released from Potomac Valley Hospital.

No charges were filed in the dual mishap by Tfc. R.T. Wilson, investigating officer.

As the snowy conditions continued on Saturday, several other accidents were reported by police.

A 9:10 a.m. accident sent three persons to the hospital where they were treated and released for minor injuries.

A NEW LOCATION for Century 21 Country Time Realty Company was announced recently by Robert and Barbara Kirkham, owners of the company. The Country Time offices are now located on the former Bowman property at McHenry, just across U.S. Route 219 from the Garrett County Fairgrounds. The business was formerly housed at the Humberston Homes Center further north along Rt. 219. The real estate sales and rental office is open seven days a week from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. It offers the following toll-free telephone number for long distance callers: 1-800-221-7595.

Snow-covered Route 135 again caused the accident when Bernice L. Wildman, 73, Swanton, operating a 1987 Ford Bronco, lost control of the vehicle and crossed the center of the road as she was eastbound on Route 135.

Clarence A. Moats, 28, Front Royal, Va., was operating a vehicle in the westbound lane and left the side of the road to avoid a collision causing his vehicle to hit some trees.

Tri-Towns Rescue Squad transported Moats and his two passengers, Debbie Moats, 29, and Donald B. Clatterbuck, 11, to Potomac Valley Hospital.

No charges were filed by Tfc. D.G. Riggelman.

Just 30 minutes later another accident on Route 135 sent two persons to the local hospital.

Melvin L. Smith, 47, Elk Garden, W.Va., was driving a 1985 Chrysler westbound on Route 135 and as he slowed to turn into a driveway, his vehicle was struck from the rear by a 1979 Ford, operated by Charles H. Hardesty, 45, Swanton. Hardesty was unable to maintain control of his vehicle because of the icy road.

The Southern Rescue Squad transported Smith and a passenger in his car, Carol Smith, 43, also of Elk Garden, to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where they were treated and released.

Tfc. Larry Rosage investigated and filed no charges in the mishap.

A 2:30 p.m. accident on Route 219 South sent a family of four to the hospital Saturday where they were treated and later released.

Michael C. Guthrie, 28, Oakland, was operating a 1980 Buick when he stopped in the southbound lane of the highway because of drifting snow. The Guthrie vehicle was then struck in the rear by a 1971 bus operated by George E. Dankovchik Jr., 36, Weirton, W.Va.

Dankovchik had reportedly attempted to brake to avoid the collision, but slid approximately 20 feet before striking the other vehicle.

Guthrie and his wife, Patricia, 36, and their two children, Michael Jr. and Melissa, were transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital by the Southern Rescue Squad where they were treated and released.

Leftover Turkey?

Try something different!

TURKEY OYSTER PIE

Pastry for 10-inch double-crust pie
1 cup milk
1 (12-ounce) jar turkey gravy or 1 cup leftover turkey gravy
1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
3 tablespoons all purpose flour
2 cups chopped cooked turkey
1 (12-ounce) can fresh Standard oysters, drained
1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
1 tablespoon finely chopped celery
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper

Roll half of pastry to 1/8-inch thickness on a lightly floured board, fit into an 8-inch square baking dish. Set aside. Combine milk and gravy in a large saucepan, cook over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil, stirring constantly. Reduce heat to low, simmer 10 minutes, stirring often. Combine butter and flour, mixing well to form a smooth paste, stir into gravy mixture. Add turkey and oysters. Cook over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil, stirring constantly, remove from heat. Stir in parsley, celery, salt and pepper, spoon mixture into pastry shell. Roll out remaining pastry to 1/8-inch thickness, carefully place over pie, leaving a 1-inch overhang at edge of dish. Seal edges and flute, cut slits in top for steam to escape. Bake at 350°F for 40 to 50 minutes or until golden brown. Yield: one 8-inch pie.

What does a wheat field have to do with the capital of Rhode Island? Everything!

In 1636 Roger Williams founded the town of Providence on land given him by friendly Narragansett Indians. He believed God had guided him to the spot. In naming his town he was expressing reverent gratitude for God's goodness.

A field of wheat awaiting harvest is always a vivid reminder of the providence of a loving Heavenly Father. Though man must labor to plant, cultivate and harvest the fruits of the earth, it is God who provided the continuing miracle of seed-time and harvest.

The same reverent gratitude which inspired our Puritan forefathers in New England inspires all Americans to express our faith through Thanksgiving.

BUT GOD MEANT IT FOR GOOD

November 29, 1987

Background Scripture: Genesis 42:1-36; 45:1-15:21

There is an old saying: Man proposes, But God disposes.

Actually, there is a lot of holy wisdom in that saying—wisdom that is essential. If we can distinguish between "proposing" and "disposing," we will be much better able to understand both the ways God does and does not work in our world.

For example, the story of Joseph and his brethren out of envy and jealousy, his brothers sold him into slavery. They were proposing to get this dreamer and his dreams out of their hair. So, also, Potiphar's wife, furious when Joseph rejected her overt sexual advances, she proposed to make him pay dearly for his refusal.

WHOSE FAULT?

Many people when they, like Joseph, are the victims of jealousy and anger, want to know, "How can God let something like this happen?" Yet, it was not God who proposed to sell him into slavery.

cry, but his brothers. It was not God who took the initiative to have Joseph thrown into prison, but Potiphar's wife. Sin or evil or both—are the root of most of the troubles and tragedies that afflict the human race. All of the proposed or committed by human beings, not God.

Joseph's brothers were well aware of the "ways of the world." Although Joseph had received them warmly and was reconciled with them, when their father, Jacob died, they were afraid once again that perhaps Joseph had held out only for the sake of his father. "It may be that Joseph will hate us and pay us back for all the evil which we did to him" (50:15). They freely acknowledged that they alone were responsible for what was done to Joseph. (There is no evidence that Potiphar's wife was equally repentant!)

GOD DISPOSES

Joseph realized that, although his brothers and Potiphar's wife were responsible for what had happened to him, they were the ones who had sinned—still God was able to use their deeds to bring about his will. God made his own disposal of what they in their sin had proposed. Even their evil intent, God could turn to his advantage. As Joseph reassures his brothers, "As for you, you meant evil against me; but God meant it for good." (50:20). Thus, there is not an evil intent proposed by us that God cannot dispose of to meet his purposes.

Soap opera actor returns to a role his fan loves

By Kimberly Redmond

Has Michael O'Leary permanently returned to "Guiding Light" and his role as Rick Bauer? I hope he's around forever. — K.R., Spartanburg, S.C.

Michael O'Leary

O'Leary has signed a long-term contract with "GL," so he'll be around for awhile.

Do soap opera actresses wear their own clothes or are their clothes provided for them by the show? — C.F., Los Angeles, Calif.

If the actress in question is a contract player, she would have a wardrobe that was bought exclusively for her. If she is playing a non-contract role, she would probably wear her own clothes.

When the actresses wear fur coats, they are nearly always on loan from a furrier whose name will usually be listed in the show's credits. Evening gowns are usually rented or also on loan.

What happened to Henderson Forsythe, who portrayed David Stewart on "As the World Turns"? I haven't seen him in months. — C.J., Gulfport, La.

Forsythe, who is no longer a contract player, was absent for most of last year because he has been doing theater work. He does return to the soap on occasion.

Is there any chance that "General Hospital" will bring back Blackie Parrish, played by John Stamos? — S.H., Houston, Texas.

John Stamos

It's unlikely that "GH" will ever bring Blackie back into the story, but if they did, Stamos probably wouldn't play the role. He's now a cast regular in the ABC series "Full House."

'Adderly' actor admits his character is a nerd

By Toni D'Amato

We really enjoy watching the CBS show "Adderly" and the man who plays Melville. We would like to know more about him. — M.H.A., Darby, Pa.

Jonathan Welsh

Melville Greenbaum, head of Miscellaneous Affairs, is portrayed by Canadian-born actor Jonathan Welsh.

Welsh says his interest in the arts began when he was 15 and continued through college where he earned B.A. and M.A. degrees in theater. "I came from a background of experimental theater, my first professional gig was 'Hair' in Toronto," he recalls. "My introduction to theater was in 1963 when I was about to get thrown out of school because I was uncontrollable. I went to a Catholic high school but was joking around because it was easy."

Finally, a nun told me I had to do something with my life. She encouraged me to take up public speaking.

"I don't ever want to be negative and I don't want Melville to be that way," says Welsh. "He can be a bit of an idiot, a flake and a nerd, but negativity would defeat the whole purpose of 'Adderly.'"

Welsh, who lives in Toronto with his wife and two children, has a sense of humor which spills over to his character. "He can laugh at himself if he's found out. He can take it," says the actor, who recently completed filming "Switching Channels" with Bart Reynolds.

Send mail in care of "Adderly," The Lippin Group, 501 Madison Ave., 23rd Floor, New York, NY 10022.

Is it true that Samantha and Sabrina of "Bewitched" were played by the same person? — A.S., Daytona Beach, Fla.

Yes, both parts were filled by Elizabeth Montgomery.

My mom says Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh starred in "Gone with the Wind." I say it was Cary Grant. Who's right? — E.B., Augusta, Ga.

Your mother.

CINDY SAYS

Bette Davis is revealed; Kathie Lee Gifford reveals

By Cindy Adams

Shaun Considine, author of that unauthorized, unappreciated Streisand bio, is now writing "The Divine Fend," about Bette Davis and Joan Crawford. This guy's got a death wish. "I specialize in neurotic women," he says. With the opening of the new Paul Newman-Joanne Woodward movie of "The Glass Menagerie," Considine learned that in 1950 Bette Davis, who'd just jumped Warners, wanted to play Amanda Wingfield in this Warner film. She called the director, "Hear me, I won't have that within six miles of my studio," Gertrude Lawrence, landed the role. Twelve years later Bette returned to Warners for "Whatever Happened to Baby Jane?" The co-star? Joan Crawford.

Bette's widow Anna visited the Deborah Long and Heart Hospital in New Jersey. The good ladies spent hours shaking hands and meeting the patients.

Kathie Lee Gifford

Kathie Lee Gifford, host of a local talk show in New York and wife of Frank Gifford, invited chums to meet fashion designer Stephen Yearick. Care to know what fancy ladies talk about over shrimp salad? Jane Powell said she had to get her hair streaked. Ron Perlman's wife, Claudia, and Neil Sedaka's wife, Joy, assured me I didn't really look as lousy on the air as people say. Pete Rozelle's wife, Carrie, said she handled the football commish during the NFL strike by keeping themselves unsocial going to the movies and not asking questions. The conversation was as good as the food, the fashions, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gifford's handsome home.

Bette Davis

Sophia Loren and Lee Stras

Hunter (Fred Dryer) becomes suspicious when a Bel Air housewife refuses to identify the man who stole a million-dollar necklace on NBC's "Hunter." It airs Saturday, Nov. 28.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Ronny Cox has checked in to the 'St. Elsewhere' staff

By Frank Lovece

With his new role as Dr. John Gideon on NBC's "St. Elsewhere," Ronny Cox finally has a change for some public recognition.

Ronny Cox

"People didn't recognize me from one role to the next," explains the actor. "I play characters, not a persona." Two of those characters netted him a lot of attention: the good-guy police lieutenant in the "Beverly Hills Cop" movies, and the bad-guy corporate slime in "Robocop." As it turns out, both characters had similar qualities to Gideon, the bottom-line oriented hospital administrator running St. Elgins.

While Gideon is by no means a likable person, "he's not a bad guy either," says Cox. "The writers are doing their damndest to write a complex guy. He's not the heart and soul West-phall was; he practices bottom-line medicine. He's a damn good doctor, but he also believes that if he hadn't come to save St. Elgins, it would be gone."

The great thing about this and also my character in "Robocop," he adds, "is that you have the freedom to not worry about others' feelings. When you play bad guys, you have to injure yourself. That's an interesting mask for a guy like me."

Cox apprenticed for six years with The Arena Stage in Washington, D.C., then hooked up with Joseph Papp's Public Theatre in New York. "Joe kept me alive," Cox remembers. "In the early '70s, I was just another actor living hand-to-mouth, and Joe would slip me a couple of hundred dollars every now and then."

A role as the bango-playing suburbanite in the movie "Deliverance" (1972) eventually led to steady roles; Cox's best-known previous TV role was as George Apple in the mid-'70s family drama "Apple's Way."

Ironically, now that he's no longer playing a good guy, Cox finds his heart working overtime. "It takes a certain psychic energy to have (Gideon's) callousness," he observes. "And your body doesn't know you're acting — all it knows is that surge of adrenalin."

If worst came to worst, would he check into St. Elgins? "Yes," he laughs. "It's always been a second-rate hospital, but with a first-rate staff."

PBS

Skaters Robin Cousins (r.) and Rosalynn Summers star in the ice ballet "The Sleeping Beauty," adapted from the classic fairy tale. It airs Monday, Nov. 30, on PBS. (Check local listings.)

CABLE LOG

It's Shandling's own show but this actress fits right in

By Connie Passalacqua

Molly Cheek is an actress with nice but modest credits that include guest spots on "Family Ties" and "Dynasty." But you can say she wasn't chosen for her role as Nancy on Showtime's "It's Garry Shandling's Show" (airing Friday, Dec. 4) solely for her experience. She was probably chosen because she's both quick and smart — the kind of qualities needed to keep sane in this original and critically successful sitcom.

Molly Cheek, Garry Shandling

"Well, it's a lot different than when I was on 'T.J. Hooker' and I had to say lines like, 'I'm Hooker trained,'" laughs the actress. "Actually, I knew from the audition that things would be different than on other shows. They [the producer and the directors] talked to you and told you what they were looking for."

The audition had other unconventional aspects. "You had to decide whether or not you could bounce off Garry," says Cheek, "because he doesn't exactly follow the script. When I did the test I brought in all kinds of improvisational props like turkey legs so I could show them I was willing to go as far as they would."

Cheek says she was rewarded with a great job. "I feel like I'm stealing money going into work. Garry and [producer] Alan Zweibel are great comedy teachers. They teach you how to put yourself into what you do and trust your instincts, to have the courage to try anything until it works."

Cheek, a veteran of repertory theater and dozens of commercials, is thrilled to have an unusual television role — as the platonic best friend of a male lead. "People think you can't have a friendship with a male unless it's sexual," says the actress. "I have both male and female friends. But I'm also pleased the show did it this way because the other way (if she played his girlfriend) I'd be pretty limited — a couple of episodes and I'd be gone."

She particularly likes that Nancy has been given a lot of habits, many associated with males. "I get to go to the track and lose money." And it's better than doing any network show. "There's a freedom connected with this show and a trusting of what you can bring to it," she says. "There's a real allowance for change."

SUNDAY

When David (Chad Allen, l.) joins the basketball team, Gus (Wilford Brimley) decides to give him some pointers on NBC's "Our House." It airs Sunday, Nov. 29. (Rerroadcast.)

RESA Conducts Symposium For School Counselors

Secondary guidance counselors from Allegany, Garrett and Washington County Schools gathered recently at Allegany Community College for a day-long symposium entitled, "Admissions, Financial Aid and Articulation." The program was offered by the Regional Education Service Agency in cooperation with its Committee for Articulation. Dr. Walter Hohenstein of the University of Maryland and Frank Peto of RESA coordinated the day's events.

In the morning session, representatives of Maryland colleges presented briefings on college admissions policies. Those presenting were Mary Hartman, Allegany Community College; Darlene Tressler, Garrett Community College; Max Creager, Hagerstown Junior College; David Sanford, Frostburg State University; Phyllis Gressens, University of Maryland-Baltimore County; Diane Rozanski, University of Maryland-Baltimore County; and Sharon Alston, University of Maryland-College Park. Following the presentations counselors and presenters discussed issues of mutual concern in an open forum.

The feature speaker for the day was Dr. Douglas MacDonald, executive director of the Maryland State Scholarship Board, who outlined for the counselors all of the state and federal funding sources that are available now to assist students in attending college.

MacDonald said that the level of funds available to Maryland high school graduates provides that almost anyone wishing to go to college should be able to do so. Anyone wishing to know more about how to make application for college funds should contact the guidance counselor at his or her local high school. The afternoon session of the symposium focused on articulation agreements shared by high schools and colleges in the region. Max Creager, of Hagerstown Junior College, and Barbara Downey, of Washington County Board of Education, provided leadership for the session by detailing the agreements shared by their institutions in providing for the needs of the citizens of Washington County.

The final segment of the symposium was a planning session designed to identify new concerns of special interest to the group. The new ideas will be developed for follow-up activities at a later date.

RESA Continues Mini-Grant Fund For School Year

The Regional Education Service Agency has announced the continuance of its mini-grants program for the 1987-88 academic year. The program offers funding for educational projects and is open to all faculty, staff and administration of the RESA member institutions. Persons eligible to make application for the RESA mini-grants include those employed by the Allegany County Board of Education, Garrett County Board of Education, Washington County Board of Education, Allegany Community College, Garrett Community College, Hagerstown Junior College, Frostburg State University and the University of Maryland.

The RESA Mini-Grants Program was established as a means to promote a shared involvement in the educational concerns of the region. The program has three primary goals: to develop interinstitutional cooperation, understanding and awareness through the joint efforts of faculties and staffs by sharing expertise; to create an atmosphere that promotes experimentation, research and creativity; and to implement changes in the educational community to produce an improved environment for learning.

Mini-grants projects are required to involve two or more RESA institutions in their development and implementation. The projects are required also to serve one or more program areas targeted by the Agency for development this year. The program areas are: articulation; staff development, K-12 and/or higher education; cultural affairs; health and human services; and education, business, industry and government relations.

Each proposed project is required to include a minimum of 25% matching funds to be provided by the member institutions served by the project. Any eligible educator interested in making application for a RESA Mini-Grant may call the RESA office at 777-3525 for details.

GCFT Meets With Local Legislators

The Garrett County Federation of Teachers held their annual legislative reception at the Holiday Inn in Grantsville on Tuesday, November 17.

Garrett County representatives attending were Senator John Bambacius and Delegate George Edwards. Also attending was Betty Pitt of the Maryland Federation of Teachers.

Bambacius and Edwards discussed the upcoming legislation, according to both representatives, will deal with higher education, but other areas will be discussed.

The Senator said that Civeletti, which is now called the Apex Program, will be increased over the next few years, meaning higher salaries for teachers.

Delegate Edwards talked about the renovation of Southern High School and the funding formula the state may use. He expressed his concern about the county's ability to pay its share and said there will be a lot of discussion about this subject in the legislature.

Betty Pitt told of an effort to have teacher retirement rolled back to 25 years to receive full retirement benefits.

Residents May Have Tax Refund Checks Coming

The Internal Revenue Service and the Maryland State Comptroller's Office are trying to locate some area residents who are due a tax refund from their 1986 federal and state income tax returns. For the second year in a row the federal and state tax agencies have combined their efforts to locate taxpayers who are due refunds.

According to Teddy R. Kern, IRS District Director for Maryland and the District of Columbia, approximately 3,435 federal refund checks totalling over $1.8 million and ranging from as low as $1.50 to as high as $21,079 were returned by the Postal Service as undeliverable in this area. The average federal refund is $332.00. Comtroller Louis L. Goldstein said 1,471 state refund checks totalling $135,745 and ranging up to $2,896 were returned. The average state refund is $120.60.

Local persons for whom the IRS have a tax refund check are: Ernest M. Dalton Sr., David T. and Glenda M. Ward, and Barbara A. Riley, all of Oakland; Malachi J. and Dawn M. Willis, Mtn. Lake Park and William and Regina Butler, Thousand Acres.

Kern said these taxpayers may have moved or changed their last names during the year and did not notify the IRS, or the address on the tax returns may simply have been illegible. Goldstein noted that the state always faces the problem of those taxpayers who move out of the state during the year, as well as those who relocate within the state.

When a refund is returned by the Postal Service, the two agencies attempt to find the taxpayers and deliver the checks, but there are always some who cannot be found. Anyone who is expecting a 1986 or a previous year's federal refund, has moved or changed their name during the year, and has not already contacted IRS, should call 1-800-425-1040.

Taxpayers should call 974-3701 to inquire about a Maryland state refund check.

The regular meeting of North Star 4-H Club was held Saturday, November 14, at the home of Nancy Friend, leader with Sharon Thomas, assistant.

The club will go Christmas caroling December 5. We will meet at Nancy Friend's at 5:30 p.m. and return there for our Christmas party at 7:30. Names were exchanged and each member is to make two ornaments which will be given to the people we sing to.

Fayann Saturday, project leader, is doing "Learning the 4-H Way" with us as a group at our regular meetings. This month we are growing a plant.

Refreshments were furnished by Nancy Friend.

October was a busy month for the 4-H'ers and their families. The monthly meeting was held on October 20 at the Community Building. Plans were made for making cider and the Annual Halloween Social.

On October 24 at 8:30 a.m. many of us met with a beautiful sunny day to make cider at the Pavilion of the White Methodist Church. We ended up with about 25 gallons of cider. Our thanks go out to the Ethelwyn Riley family for lending us their cider press and helping hands.

On October 31st, the "ghosts and goblins" started gathering at the Community Building. The judges awarded the prizes and everyone enjoyed games, cake walks, the haunted house and lots of good food.

Our November meeting was held on the 17th with 15 members present.

Discussion and plans were made for a Kennyswood Park trip in the spring, the annual Family Dinner and Demonstration Night in January, a possible Sweetheart Dance in February, and our Christmas Party on December 12, from 2 p.m. until everyone gets tired of

The best man was Timothy Schreiner, brother of the groom. Ushers were Capt. James Schreiner, John Hains and Marshall Freedman.

Penny Sutcliffe, sister of the groom, recited a passage from the Bible and was in charge of the guest book.

A reception was held at the Park Savoy in Florham Park, N.J. The bride received a BS degree from Clemson University in Clemson, S.C. She expects to earn a master's degree in zoology from Clemson in December.

Miss Valdes Becomes Bride Of Mr. Savage In October Ceremony

Christina Maria Valdez, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar E. Valdez, Pittsburgh, and Allen Earl Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Savage, Friendsville, were married Saturday, October 3, at Heinz Memorial Chapel in Pittsburgh.

The morning ceremony was performed by Rev. Oswald Romero. He was assisted by Rev. Orville Davis, the groom's uncle. The bride's brother, Jose Valdes, and the groom's sister, Amy Savage, read passages from the Bible as part of the ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore an ivory gown of lace and satin. To complement her dress, she wore ivory roses and French netting in her hair, and, for her bouquet, she carried an armful of calla lilies nestled in ivy.

Mrs. Maria McGee, the bride's sister, was matron of honor. Her ballerina-length dress was of cranberry faille and her bouquet, a cascade of ivory roses sprinkled with miniature cranberry flowers.

The bride's mother was dressed in blue chiffon and the groom's mother wore a dress of pink satin brocade. Each wore an ivory orchid with a fuchsia throat as a corsage. The groom's grandmothers, Mrs. Jessie Davis from Rowlesburg, W.Va., and Mrs. Cora Savage, Bruceton Mills, W.Va., also attended.

Another of the bride's brothers, Oscar Valdes, served as usher.

A luncheon in the River Room of the Grand Concourse Restaurant in Pittsburgh followed the ceremony.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh and holds degrees in economics and computer science. The groom was graduated from West Virginia University with a degree in aerospace engineering. Both work as engineers in Baltimore where they will continue to reside after a week-long honeymoon in Bermuda.

Attending from the local area were: Mrs. James Frazee, Timmy, Kevin and Nicklaus, Mark Savage, Amy Savage, all of Friendsville; Bob and Lisa Frazee, Erin and Ryan and Matthew Eary, Oakland.

EASY DOES IT
The first bit of advice that a person gets as he embarks on a physical exercise program is to "start slowly." At first, the body will not be used to the rigors of physical exertion. Stamina will build with time. The same bit of advice can be applied to the new hearing aid user. He should not expect to be accustomed to his new aid immediately. It will take time to get used to the many background sounds that have not been heard in a while. The wearer will even have to get used to hearing his own voice. For these reasons, aid wearing time should be built up gradually. An hour the first day should be enough, and up to five hours at the end of the first week.

At ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES we offer all that you would expect and then a whole lot more so that your enjoyment of the sounds around you will be complete. We provide the latest in hearing assist devices along with an experienced staff to properly fit you and provide the helpful hints that will bring a pleasurable world of sound back to you. Come in today and see the people who care about your well being. Best wishes for a very happy Thanksgiving!

A hearing aid does not guarantee that a person will hear perfectly, only better.

Southern States Co-Op Members Attend Annual Videoconference

Members and guests of local Southern States Cooperatives attended the cooperative's annual stockholders live videoconference this month in Greensboro, N.C. At the November 18 videoconference, they heard good news from Gene A. James, the association's president and chief executive officer.

"Our share of the market increased in most major product lines," he said. "Our net savings showed significant improvement. In fact, net savings from operations (before taxes and equity income) were the highest since 1981."

"Southern States' business philosophy is very simple: 'Everyone who deals with us should leave each encounter feeling that he has been warmly greeted and fairly treated by an honest, professional, well-run business enterprise.' Everyone on our staff is striving to make that philosophy a reality. Perhaps that is a major reason why this cooperative has concluded its year with the best operating results in some time," James said.

The cooperative's videoconference was telecast from the War Memorial Auditorium in Greensboro's Coliseum Complex. It was viewed by members and guests at 10 other locations across the co-op's six-state territory by means of broadcast signals beamed to satellites and relayed back to earth.

James reported that he is "pleased with the performance of our petroleum, feed and farm supply lines, even though our total dollar volume was down for the year. Price deflation — especially notable in feed, fertilizer and petroleum — was so sharp that it more than offset our growth in unit sales."

Net savings (before taxes and equity income) was $13 million, up from $3.8 million last year.

Feed tonnage reached 755,000, up from 614,000 tons last year.

Fertilizer volume rose to 767,000 tons, up from 735,000 tons for 1985-86.

Petroleum sales totaled $124 million as compared to $159.8 million last year, despite the fact that gallonage reached 255 million as compared to 232 million the previous year.

Seed sales stood at $32.3 million, up from $27.1 million last year.

Bernice Keppie, Farm Editor

Total farm supply and chemical volume increased from $121.2 million last year to $135.4 million.

Grain marketing volume was $73.6 million as compared to $100.2 million in 1985-86. Bushel volume was 27.5 million as compared to 31.6 million last year.

Southern States' managed member cooperatives had a combined retail volume of $227.4 million in their respective fiscal years. While this was a decrease from prior year sales, total net savings for these local cooperatives improved from a small minus figure to $3.6 million for 1986-87.

James said that implementation of Southern States' business philosophy was not the only reason for the improvement in operating results for the year.

"Some segments of agriculture have seen their economic outlook brighten considerably," he said. "Our first full year serving North Carolina farmers allowed us to utilize our manufacturing and distribution facilities more efficiently. And we did some major restructuring."

James said that strategic structural changes were important. "We consolidated 11 operating regions into four, re-ordered responsibilities, streamlined communications and continued grouping retail stores into clusters where appropriate."

"Every implementation was designed to pare expenses, at the same time assuring our patrons service at a level equal or superior to what they had been enjoying."

The program also included a report by board chairman Richard F. Price, of Phoenix, Md. In addition, there were videotaped welcomes from several of the governors of the six states involved, videotaped segments featuring each of the cooperative's 17 directors, and introduction of three newly elected directors plus the announcement of the reappointment of two public directors.

The elected directors are: George E. Fisher, Gordonsville, Va.; Galen B. Brubaker, Rocky Mount, Va.; and Jere L. Cannon, Flemingsburg, Ky.

Y.D. Hance of Prince Frederick, Md., and William Vanderwende, of Bridgeville, Del., were reappointed public directors for their respective states.

There was also an open forum moderated by Carroll Gilbert, SSC director of member and institutional relations, during which members at the various sites viewing the meeting were able to ask questions of the cooperative's top management.

Thomas M. Kirkpatrick, the cooperative's Central Region manager from Richmond, Va., was the recipient of the president's awards for the largest total dollar increase ($5,557,000) and the greatest percentage of dollar increase (4.2 percent).

Patrick H. Murray, the cooperative's Northern Region manager from Baltimore, received the president's award for balanced performance (volume increase in 19 of the 44 individual commodities).

The 10 sites receiving the videoconference were: the Sheraton Inn, Salisbury; the Bowling Green Country Club, Front Royal, Va.; the State Fairgrounds, Richmond, Va.; the Lynchburg Hilton, Lynchburg, Va.; the Holiday Inn, Wytheville, Va.; the Holiday Inn North, Lexington, Ky.; the Greenwood Executive Inn, Bowling Green, Ky.; the Ramada Inn, Morgantown, W.Va.; and the Holiday Inn-Gateway, Barboursville, W.Va.

Southern States members attending from the Eglon, W.Va., area were: FHAC Committee members Joyce Dixon, Cheryl Dixon and Jean Winters, and her husband, Claude Winters. Also attending the session was Mr. and Mrs. Ron Bishop. Bishop is manager of Eglon Farm Service.

From Accident, those attending were: Mr. and Mrs. Carl Bender, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Fratz, Mr. and Mrs. Paul D. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ringer, and Mrs. Orpha Miller. Also attending was Mr. and Mrs. Harry M. Wolfe. Wolfe is manager of Bruceton Farm Service, Inc. - Fratz Division, Accident.

Local Beef Farmers Become Members Of National Association

Dayton R. Broadwater and his daughter, Darla Fay, of Grantsville, have been elected to membership in the American Angus Association, reports Dick Spader, executive vice president of the national organization with headquarters in St. Joseph, Missouri.

The Broadwaters, who have raised black cattle for years, are just getting their start with registered Angus. Darla, current vice president of the North Garrett FFA Chapter, raised an Angus steer for the fair sale as her FFA project last year and is raising another to be sold this year at the fair.

The American Angus Association, with over 30,000 active adult and junior members, is the largest beef cattle registry association in the world. Its computerized records include detailed information on nearly 11 million registered Angus.

The Association records ancestral information and keeps records of production on individual animals for its members. These permanent records help members select and mate the best animals in their herds to produce high quality, efficient breeding cattle which are then recorded with the American Angus Association. Most of these registered Angus are used by the U.S. farmers and ranchers who raise high quality beef for U.S. consumption.

Deere & Company Presents Series On Tillage Practices

Tillage systems, their cost, their performance, fertilizers needed, and the results of new research, are some of the topics in this series of articles on tillage printed by Deere & Company of Moline, Ill. Gordon D. Tjelmeland, agricultural product information specialist with Deere & Company, says that misconceptions persist about tillage and agricultural chemical practices, and that the most current data has shed new light on the matter. In printing the series of articles, Tjelmeland says, Deere & Company hopes to provide sensible, balanced, straightforward information that people can put to good use.

The following is the fourth in a series of six articles from Deere & Company scientists and technicians.

TILLAGE ALTERNATIVES FOR SMALL GRAINS

For small grains, residue management remains crucial for reducing soil erosion, but problems differ in small grains areas from those of the Cornbelt.

In the Plains, protecting soil from wind erosion is often more important than preventing water erosion. Moisture conservation becomes increasingly important as inches of annual rainfall decrease. On the steep hillsides of the Pacific Northwest, stopping sheet erosion and gullying is essential.

Farming techniques and equipment to tackle these problems vary. Despite these differences, small grains farmers share the same overall tillage goals with other farmers: 1) retain soil in place, 2) keep soil and groundwater free of chemical pollution, 3) make fertilizers available to crop roots, 4) maximize use of soil moisture for grain production, 5) integrate tillage with other inputs to develop a low-cost system.

Severe soil erosion occurs on less than half the cropland in the United States. On problem fields, conservation tillage (that is, tillage that leaves at least 30 percent of the old crop residue on the soil surface at planting) can help reduce soil losses.

Surface residue at planting time not only can cut water-caused soil erosion but can also effectively limit wind erosion. If residue is insufficient to control erosion, roughness created by tillage can help it.

There are many ways small grains farmers can maintain crop residue on the soil surface. However, there are situations when maintaining heavy residues on the surface is not a good idea, according to Glenn M. Olson, manager of cultivation and planting equipment planning at Deere & Company, Moline, Illinois.

"In fields with no real erosion problems, switching to conservation tillage may be an economic mistake. Research in the Plains states and Canadian prairies suggests that increased surface cover and soil roughness can be counter-productive to meeting agronomic and profitability goals," he says.

"Maintaining previous crop residue on the soil surface can increase crop disease susceptibility and lead to more losses from larger populations of insect pests," Olson says. In many situations, he adds, conservation tillage also contributes to slower crop growth in early spring because of cooler, more moist soil conditions.

Also, annual grasses such as downy brome (cheatgrass) can easily get out of control in fall seeded small grains grown under conservation tillage, Olson warns. "Entire wheat fields can be wiped out by infestations of these hard-to-eliminate weeds when reduced or shallow tillage is used exclusively."

"Chemical control of annual grasses in small grains can be expensive and risky because grassy weeds such as downy brome share many genetic characteristics with small grains. Chemicals that kill the grasses can also easily damage wheat or barley, especially if application conditions are less than ideal," Olson says.

"Clean tillage is a safer way to eliminate grassy weeds in small grain fields. Downy brome, for example, germinates only when it is close to the soil surface. Moldboard plowing, along with crop rotations that allow spring tillage, will control most annual grasses that plague small grain fields. Chisel plowing, one-way disking or sweep plowing do not seem to be as effective as moldboard plowing, since all of these methods leave at least some weed seeds close to the soil surface."

One controversy surrounding conservation tillage and small grains production is soil moisture management: storing and retaining water in the crop root zone.

Olson says, "You often hear the statement that each tillage pass will cause the loss of one-half inch of soil moisture. Without really investigating to find out if the statement is true, some people mistakenly use this argument to justify chemical fallow in place of tillage operations, particularly in summer fallow areas."

"But in recent years, researchers have been finding that the situation is much more complicated than previously supposed. In many cases, tilled fields actually retain equal or more soil moisture than non-tilled fields."

Sorting through all the conflicting data, Olson has found a few universal rules to follow in choosing tillage systems for small grains. Here they are:

1. Any tillage decision must be site-specific. Soil types, weather patterns, cropping rotations, erosion problems all vary from field to field. Don't assume that tillage data from other places apply to your farm. Only on-site tillage trials can supply valid answers.

2. Concentrate on how tillage techniques affect crop yield, not on how they affect soil moisture. Many factors other than soil moisture contribute to the success or failure of a tillage program. Broadleaf weed populations, insect infestations, annual grasses, crop emergence, seedling vigor, winter-kill of fall-seeded grains, fertilizer utilization, scheduling of farming operations are all related to tillage system choices. All are important.

3. The constant measuring stick for choosing a tillage system is economic. Always ask, "Will a change increase profitability?" Generally, any tillage system that significantly reduces crop yields will probably cut profits, regardless of input cost savings. "As we move to the future," Olson says, "I think we'll get some of the conflicting data cleaned up through use of improved tillage tools that will give both better erosion control and reduced costs per acre."

"Electronics will play a central role. There will be significant technical applications for electronic control of tillage and planting equipment. Linked monitors and controls will be able to measure factors such as tillage depth and flow rate of applied materials. Tool adjustments will be made automatically."

"In small grains, increased use of semi-dwarf varieties will make electronic control of seeding depth ever more important. Differences of soil firmness, residue levels, and soil type all have to be taken into consideration. If the planting depth is automatically adjusted for the changing conditions, significantly higher crop yields could result."

"These developments will increase farm profitability while answering public concerns about soil erosion and potential groundwater pollution from farm chemicals," Olson predicts.

Stephen Wolford Joins MDA Team

Dr. Stephen T. Wolford, DVM, has been named Chief of Meat and Poultry Inspection, Wayne A. Cawley Jr., secretary of the Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA), announced.

Wolford, who graduated from the College of Veterinary Medicine at Ohio State University, has owned a private practice, and is qualified to practice veterinary medicine in Ohio, Texas, Arkansas, and Virginia. He has been with the U.S. Department of Agriculture Meat and Poultry Inspection Section since July 1968.

As USDA's area supervisor, Dr. Wolford has been responsible for all slaughtering operations and processing plants in Maryland, Delaware, Washington, D.C., and most of Virginia. "His qualifications for this job are outstanding," said Secretary Cawley, "and the Department is very fortunate to get Dr. Wolford to fill this important position."

Dr. Wolford will oversee the statewide inspection program carried out by MDA field personnel which assures that only safe, wholesome meat products are offered for sale to Maryland's consumers.

Dr. Wolford succeeds Dr. Gordon Vacura, who retired in May after 13 years with MDA. According to Cawley, Dr. Wolford's appointment will enhance MDA's capabilities and expertise in this vitally important consumer protection program.

Thanksgiving Meal Is A Real Bargain Again This Year

A traditional Thanksgiving Day meal for 10 will cost $24.51, according to a survey conducted by the American Farm Bureau Federation. Led by sharply lower turkey prices, the nationwide survey reveals the holiday feast will cost 18 percent less than last year.

Among the items included on the menu were: turkey and dressing, sweet potatoes, peas, rolls, cranberries, pumpkin pie with whipped cream, a relish dish and beverages. The price for a comparable meal in 1986 was $29.75.

The cost of the Thanksgiving

Day meal was based on a Farm Bureau survey of nine markets in California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Minnesota, New York, Texas and Washington, D.C.

"A 16 percent jump in turkey production combined with aggressive retail promotions makes this year's meal an exceptionally good buy," said Marsha Purcell, AFBF director of women's programs. "Best of all, our sample menu provides ample leftovers for later enjoyment."

In the markets surveyed, the average price for a 16-pound self-basting turkey was 68 cents per pound, compared to last year's 89 cents per pound.

During the key marketing period this year, wholesale turkey prices had fallen to as low as 45 cents per pound, down from an average price of 85 cents per pound last year. Many stores are featuring turkeys at below wholesale costs, with the lowest prices reported in the Midwest and California.

Other items showing significantly cheaper prices were cranberries, sweet potatoes, pumpkin pie mix and rolls. Stuffing mix and milk increased in price.

"We have a lot to give thanks for," Purcell said. "We live in a land of plenty, with the safest and best food supply in the world."

The Hebrew word for "big bird" is Tukki.

Turkey Not The National Bird, But True Symbol Of Thanksgiving Day

by Bernice Kepple

Turkeys have always been a symbol of Thanksgiving, although it is doubtful that turkey was served as part of the first Thanksgiving menu which featured venison, duck, goose and eels. And had Benjamin Franklin, a member of the original committee assigned to choose the seal of the United States, had his way, the turkey, not the eagle, would be our national bird. "The turkey is a much more respectable bird, and withal a true original native of America," Franklin wrote.

Turkeys do have a certain dignity. With their pompous strut and their feathers displayed, they march around the farm keeping all the cats and the family dog in line. Although no one on our farm has ever been chased by a turkey, the big birds like to meet visitors and many people have been afraid to get out of their car because it was surrounded by a welcoming committee of curious turkeys.

Several years ago, a hired man parked his truck near the barn and left the door open, with a large, opened bag of potato chips on the seat. You guessed it! When he went back to the truck, several turkeys were up in the cab just finishing off the bag of chips. "How long is it till Thanksgiving?" he wanted to know.

Our first turkeys were a family unit: a Tom, a hen and five poults. These turkeys were domestic bronze, and looked very much like wild turkeys. "Tom," who was quite tame, led his little family around the farm, calling with his distinctive gobble each time he found some grain or insects to his liking.

That fall (during turkey hunting season), three wild turkey hens came to live with Tom's family and stayed all winter. The wild turkeys were wonderful to watch. Very wary of us humans, they kept a distrustful eye on everything and could fly into the tree tops at a second's notice. In that way, they were quite different from the domestic turkeys, which were too heavy to fly higher than the lowest tree branches or the racks on the farm truck. Other differences were the wild turkey's longer, greenish legs and the brownish shade of their wing and tail feathers.

That spring, all of the hens hatched a brood of their own, and when the poults took their own little ones off to the woods. As the years went by, more and more wild turkeys came in the fall and more and more tame turkeys left with them in the spring. The cross breeding put more weight on the wild ones and gave the tame ones more flying ability. After a few years, old Tom was the only one we could recognize as one of our "tame" turkeys.

At about seven years of age, Tom weighed around 25 pounds. He always followed his combined flock through the woods near our barn and when they took to the tree tops at night to roost, Tom found a low branch and joined them. He was still so tame that we could walk up to him in the woods. And that's apparently what the hunter did who shot him, without permission to hunt, or even be on our property. The shot was heard right behind the barn, near our children and our other animals, and Tom never came back again. I have always hoped that Tom was so tough that the "hunter" couldn't eat him.

After Tom was gone, we never had the heart to raise any more domestic turkeys, but we can still hear Tom's family calling in the woods and occasionally, several "wild" turkeys will come in near the barns to hunt for oats and corn. We've seen them several times this fall, and we're glad that they're still near.

I'm also glad that Ben Franklin's suggestion for the national bird was turned down, because as much as I like to eat turkey, it would be hard to enjoy eating our national symbol. Happy "Turkey" Day to you all.

Correction Noted

In an article titled "Supply of Turkeys Slightly Higher This Thanksgiving," which appeared on page C-9 in last week's issue of The Republican, one Garrett County turkey producer registered with the Maryland Department of Agriculture was listed as Harold Smith. The correct name should have been Harold Schmidt, Frog Pond Acres, Rt. 2, Accident, 826-8167.

The turkey got its name from the country of the same. Known as a guinea fowl, it was imported to England by way of Turkey. The name stuck.

Atlantic Co-Op Speaks Of Dairy's Challenges At Annual Meeting

Marketing, milk prices, financial stability, and legislation were among the key challenges addressed by cooperative officials at Atlantic Dairy Cooperative's 70th annual meeting held November 19-20 in Lancaster, Pa.

Centered on the theme "Answering Dairy's Challenges," the two-day meeting re-capped the progress made by this "new" cooperative. It was a year ago at this annual meeting that Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative and Lehigh Valley Farmers announced a decision to merge.

The two cooperatives merged on February 1. Since then, "it has been an exciting and busy experience" for Atlantic, according to General Manager Dr. Paul E. Hand.

Addressing the cooperative's 600 members and guests, Hand outlined the changes brought on by the merger. Most evident is Atlantic's increased size and market presence, he told the group.

In its first six months of operation, Atlantic members produced 1.77 billion pounds of milk. According to Hand, yearly production is projected at 3.5 billion pounds, placing Atlantic among the nation's top 10 milk producing cooperatives. Atlantic members produce more than half of the milk sold in the Federal Order Four market, which covers the Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, D.C., area. The cooperative is also the main supplier of milk to dealers in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Citing financial benefits, Hand reported on the success of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency and the Middle Atlantic Cooperative Milk Marketing Agency in securing over-order premiums for Class I milk, which is used for fluid milk production.

Under legislative matters, Hand commended the members for their part in supporting legislation vital to the cooperative. During the past year, Atlantic dealt with various legislative issues, including farm credit, the Tax Reform Bill and the pending federal budget cuts.

Rounding out Atlantic's challenge areas, or opportunities, Hand talked on member services, milk quality, communications and technology. All of these areas, Hand said, are important facets of the cooperative's overall success.

President Robert B. McSparran told those present that "There have been few years in our history that have been as memorable as this one." The union of Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative and Lehigh Valley Farmers created one, stronger organization, McSparran said.

The resulting Atlantic Dairy Cooperative promised better member services and greater rewards, according to McSparran.

"Atlantic is living up to its promises," the president said. "Programs, such as marketing and transportation, have expanded and overall operations are more efficient. Members have been rewarded with additional income, too."

Another area of cooperation is the major contribution dairy farmers are making to advertising and promotion programs, McSparran said. Atlantic supports the National Dairy Board, as well as regional, state and local promotion programs. "It is a challenging business," McSparran said of dairy farming, "and Atlantic stands ready to answer the challenges set before us."

Dairymen — Pay Big Money

According to USDA, dairymen have paid $706,645,904.80 through September 15 to the Commodity Credit Corp. The collection was authorized under the provisions of the "Food Security Act of 1985" and the "Food Security Improvements Act of 1986."

Highlights of the 1986 Tax Reform Act

Soil Conservation: Expenditures are deductible if projects are in compliance with USDA — or State — certified plans. A transition rule apparently allows these expenditures without prior approval by SCS or a State agency.

Land Clearing Expenses: These expenses can no longer be deducted after December 31, 1985. They are capitalized, then deducted when the property is sold.

What is the Future for Microcomputers in Agriculture?

Many farmers lack understanding and have a mistrust for this new technology. This is one of the first technologies introduced to agriculture that doesn't make money for the operation directly. It doesn't visibly grow, blaze a path or a furrow, or physically move a commodity. Its benefits must be taught, demonstrated and substantiated before the technology will generally be accepted as an essential part of Agriculture. Bookkeeping and management requirements and more sophisticated farm equipment will sooner or later demand that the farmer understand and adapt this technology to the farming operation. Computers are not toys and to get usable benefits, it takes work. But that work is getting easier. The newest computer systems are easier to use and infinitely more powerful than machines introduced just five years ago. Today, a farmer doesn't need to know much more than how to power up the system to make it work for him.

State's Precipitation Fell Mostly As Snow

During the week ended November 15 virtually all of Maryland received rain and/or snow. There were an average of 3.5 days suitable for fieldwork, according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Topsoil moisture increased to adequate in all areas. Subsoil moisture averaged short to adequate.

The condition of soybeans averaged fair. Soybeans were 75 percent harvested, 10 percent ahead of normal. The corn for grain harvest was 97 percent complete, two percent ahead of normal.

The fall planting of wheat and barley was 95 percent complete respectively, both equal to the normal pace. The fall planting of oats and rye was 98 percent and 95 percent complete respectively, both equal to the normal pace. The condition of small grains had improved to an average of good to fair, mostly good. The supply of hay was adequate overall. The condition of pasture was good to fair, mostly good.

Weather

Weather for the week ending November 13 had near normal temperature with heavy precipitation, mostly in the form of snow. Temperatures averaged 46.6 degrees, 0.2 degrees below the 46.8 degree normal for the week.

Ground Breaking Held For New 4-H Building

Thanksgiving Day comes one day early this year for the University of Maryland officials, as they join leaders of the state's more than 43,000 youngsters enrolled in 4-H Clubs to stage a ground-breaking ceremony today (November 25) at College Park.

The ceremony will mark the culmination of a longtime dream for a headquarters building to house the state 4-H professional staff and the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation. It comes approximately 75 years after educational work was first begun among Maryland youth by county agents who eventually became part of the statewide Cooperative Extension Service in 1914.

November is the anniversary month for the beginning of this work in Prince George's County, where the new building site is located.

Funded through a state bond bill and private donations, the proposed new building being celebrated will contain 6,000 square feet of floor space. It is being built at no expense to the University of Maryland. Estimated cost is $829,000. Construction is expected to start soon, with completion expected by late May or early June 1988.

The one-story structure will house the Maryland 4-H Club Foundation, plus offices and conference rooms to be used by state 4-H faculty of the University of Maryland's Cooperative Extension Service. Training meetings for groups of 40 to 50 persons also will be accommodated.

The 4-H Foundation building will be located just east of College Park Woods, near the intersection of Metzger Road and University Boulevard in Upper Prince George's County. It will be a short distance down from the university's Central Administration headquarters in the Wilson H. Elkins building at 3300 Metzger Road, Adelphi.

University Of Maryland Scientist

Develops Natural Instant Mushrooms

Most people have gotten used to the idea of instant coffee, instant soup, or instant pudding — but what about instant mushrooms?

That's instant, as in no-fuss, no-muss mushroom powder — powder that can transform pizza, spaghetti, and even omelettes with its 100 percent natural taste. The powder is guaranteed to take the chopping out of the nation's favorite fungus and, more importantly, says University of Maryland food scientist Robert Wiley, the powder contains absolutely no artificial color, additives, or preservatives.

Like most of his fellow food scientists, Wiley thinks nature welcomes a little improvement. Since 1985, he has been trying to duplicate in powder form what nature so expertly produces in the wild.

Says Wiley: "Today's consumers want food products that are convenient, cheap, and natural. They also prefer a long shelf life. In the case of the mushroom, that's precisely what we're trying to give them."

"Trying" may be the wrong word. With the exception of one small kink — the powder's pallor may be a little too dark for color-conscious consumers — Wiley already has successfully made over the mushroom.

Picture Wiley now. He's standing in front of a six-foot trough, where mushrooms are shooting uphill at the rate of 10 pounds every 10 minutes. Sliced paper thin, they'll soon come face-to-face with waves of hot water.

In just seconds, that water will take on the taste of real mushrooms. Now the water is ready for purification — a critical step that will destroy any dangerous microbes.

Finally, through a process called "hyperfiltration," Wiley's "mushroom machine" will remove tiny molecules of sugar and flavor from the watery solution. The result is a mushroom concentrate that is chemically indistinguishable from the "real McCoy." Total conversion time is two hours. Despite his regard for them, mushrooms are not the only member of the plant kingdom Wiley has tinkered with.

In the past few years, he has converted cranberries, strawberries, bananas, and ginger into chemical-free powders and liquids. And he has also used bright red beets to produce a totally natural food color. In each conversion, he has combined chemistry, microbiology, and engineering to bring new foods to America's dinner tables.

The same technology that benefits consumers may also be a boon for Maryland farmers. Wiley explains: "By creating new food products, we're also creating new uses for alternative crops that can put sorely needed cash in farmers' pockets." And that, says Wiley, is a classic "win-win" scenario.

CHRISTMAS BREADS

Do you feel Christmas gifts should be more than a contest of how much money one can spend? Then you might consider bread baking kits. Print your favorite (Christmas) bread recipe, weigh/measure and package all non-perishable ingredients, put into a box. A decorated tin box would be a special touch, and wrap attractively. Or buy an assortment of flour and giftwrap, but do not include suggestions for use, especially with unusual grains.

The following information will get you started:

The Wheat Kernel: is the seed from which the plant grows, it can be separated into three distinct parts during the milling process.

Endosperm: is about 83% (by weight) of the kernel and the source of white flour. It contains the greatest share of protein, carbohydrates, iron and many B-Complex vitamins — a real storehouse of nutrition.

Bran, the outer layer of a kernel is included in whole wheat flour or can be bought separately. It contains smaller amounts of the above mentioned nutrients but is best known for its content of dietary fiber, an indigestible cellulose.

Germ is about 2½% of the kernel weight. It is the sprouting section of the wheat and usually separated because its fat content would limit keeping quality of the flour. It is included in whole wheat flour or can be purchased separately. Its value is in the share of B-complex and trace minerals it contains.

Wheat Products: are cooked, and cold, ready to eat cereals. Bulgur is soaked, cooked and dried whole wheat with 5% of the bran removed and the remaining kernel cracked into small pieces. Cracked wheat is nutritionally similar to bulgur. It is the whole, raw kernel cracked into small pieces. Wheat germ is added to baked goods, casseroles and beverages to improve nutrition and flavor. Its protein is comparable to that of milk. Wheat bran makes a non-nutritive addition of dietary fiber to baked goods. Whole wheat kernels can be used for growing sprouts, as a meat extender, breakfast cereal, side dish or salad.

Wheat Flours are the framework of baked goods and pastas. All-purpose flour is finely ground endosperm. It is enriched with iron and B-vitamins to equal or exceed that in whole wheat flour. The bleaching process with chlorine matures the flour, conditions the Gluten (see below) improves quality and reduces the risk of contamination without destroying nutrients. Unbleached flour is bleached by oxygen in the air, is off-white and nutritionally equal to bleached flour.

Bread Flour is ground from Endosperm, has greater gluten strength and is generally used for yeast breads, is interchangeable with all-purpose flour.

Self-Rising Flour is all purpose flour with salt and leavening added. It contains 1½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt per cup flour. Can be substituted for all-purpose flour by omitting any further addition of salt and baking powder. Cake flour is milled from soft wheats (soft red winter wheat, white and durum) and especially suitable for cakes, cookies and pastries. It is low in gluten and protein. Pastry flour has less starch than cake flour. Gluten flour is used in combination with other flours having low protein content to improve baking quality and result in bread with high protein content.

Semolina is coarsely ground endosperm of durum wheat. It is high in protein and used for pasta products. Durum flour is used to make commercial American noodles. Farina is coarsely ground endosperm of hard wheat (Red Spring and Red Wheat). It is the prime ingredient in American breakfast cereals and inexpensive pasta. Whole wheat flour (or graham flour) is coarse textured flour from the entire wheat kernel. Baked goods made from this flour tend to be heavier and denser than those made from white flour. Can be mixed ½ and ½ with white flour for satisfactory baking results. Whole wheat flour is rich in B-Complex vitamins, Vitamin E, Fat, protein and trace minerals.

HONEY-OATMEAL MUFFINS

¾ cup milk

MDMH Gives Safety Tips On Holiday Dinners

Roast turkey and stuffing, cranberries and giblet gravy, mashed potatoes and peas, pumpkin and mince pies — these are the ingredients of most holiday feasts. But a delicious meal like this can lose its appeal quickly if certain precautions aren't taken, warns the Division of Good Control in the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Care and caution must be taken, because foodborne bacteria can thrive on fowl that is inadequately cooked or kept at room temperature. A few simple rules will protect you and save the day:

1. Always wash hands and food preparation surfaces thoroughly before and after preparing turkey or other fowl so that harmful bacteria will not be transferred to the meat. These practices should be followed in preparing all foods.

2. Allow ample time for frozen turkeys to thaw completely in the refrigerator. Frozen turkeys and large birds thaw slowly and will require several days. Allow one to two days for an 8 to 12 pound bird; two to three days for a 12 to 16 pound bird; and three to four days for a 16 to 20 pound bird. Do not thaw the turkey at room temperature.

3. Remove all internal organs (giblets) and wash them, as well as the internal and external surfaces of the bird. Stuffing turkeys is not recommended since it may interfere with proper cooking and allow the multiplication of dangerous bacteria. Without stuffing, heat penetrates more easily and kills the unwanted bacteria. Stuffed roast turkey is frequently cited as the cause of foodborne illness.

Dressing should instead be baked in separate, shallow pans until the stuffing temperature reaches at least 165°F. This way, potentially hazardous stuffings such as those with giblets or oysters are cooked thoroughly.

4. Roast the turkey thoroughly, to an internal temperature of at least 165°F. The larger the turkey, the longer it will take to reach this temperature. A meat thermometer should always be used with the end of the stem inserted in the thickest part of the thigh muscle without touching the bone.

5. After cooking, keep the turkey hot at 140° or above, or chill in the refrigerator to 45°F, or below. Do not let the turkey sit at room temperature for longer than one to two hours. It is very important not to hold turkey at temperatures between 45°F and 140°F, because it is in this temperature range that dangerous bacteria thrive and multiply. Chill the turkey gravy and dressing rapidly, using shallow pans.

6. When reheating leftover turkey, it must be heated rapidly to a temperature of 165°F, to ensure a safe product. Be sure to use a food thermometer to measure the temperature. USDA recommends that leftover stuffing and gravy be used within 1-2 days and leftover turkey within 3-4 days. Leftovers should be reheated rapidly and eaten promptly after the holiday. Turkey and stuffing should be reheated to an internal temperature of 165°F. Gravy should be brought to a rolling boil.

1 egg beaten
¼ cup honey
1½ cups rolled oats (Quick or Old Fashioned, uncooked)
1 cup all purpose flour
½ cup raisins
½ cup chopped nuts
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt

Add milk, oil, egg and honey to combined remaining ingredients, mixing just until dry ingredients are moistened. Fill 12 greased or paper-lined medium-sized muffin cups ¾ full. Bake in preheated hot oven 400°F 15 to 18 minutes or until golden brown. Makes 1 dozen muffins.

THE ANONYMOUS BUYER!

If you decide to sell your home by yourself, one of the interesting aspects will be talking to the anonymous buyers.

Can you imagine what it would be like to have someone call and ask about your home without wanting to give their name? Then, what if they came by to inspect your home without introducing themselves? And, wouldn't it be ridiculous if they said they would buy your home and close the sale in thirty days, but want you to place the name "Anonymous Buyer" on the deed you give them?

There really are such "anonymous" callers. We in the real estate business talk to them on the phone every day. The conversation goes something like this, "Could you please tell me all about the house you have for sale on 15th street?" And we reply, "Yes, of course. What is your name?" To which they say "I'd rather not give my name!" And that's where the game stops.

You see, we recognize that serious, motivated buyers are more than willing to give their name, while those who do not intend to buy will suddenly become anonymous.

One of the most valuable services provided by a successful real estate professional is that of qualifying potential buyers, of separating those with serious buying intentions from those who prefer anonymity. The benefit to our home sellers is a steady stream of qualified buyers.

If you'd like to purchase a home, but feel out-of-touch with what's happening in real estate, give us a call today at 387-5303, or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

Westvaco Reports Fourth Quarter Sales, Earnings

Westvaco Corporation (NYSE:WV), a major manufacturer of paper, packaging and specialty chemicals, has reported fourth quarter and audited year-end sales and net income for fiscal 1987.

Sales for the fiscal year, which ended October 31, increased by 5 percent to a record level of $1.9 billion, compared to sales of $1.8 billion in 1986. Net income, also a record, totaled $146 million, or $2.25 per share, an increase of 35 percent over the company's reported fiscal 1986 net income of $108 million, or $1.67 per share.

For the fourth quarter, sales reached a record $520 million, an increase of 4.7 percent from sales of $497 million in the previous year. Net income, also a record for the fourth quarter, totaled $39.2 million, or $1.91 per share, compared with earnings of $43.3 million, or $1.87 per share, in the same period of 1986. Fourth quarter earnings included $19 per share resulting from the sale of a small portion of the company's timberlands as part of a planned program to change the geographic concentration of Westvaco landholdings on a more cost-efficient basis.

In August, company directors increased Westvaco's common stock dividend by 20 percent, the eighteenth increase in the past 24 years, and split the common stock on a 3-for-2 basis. Dividends paid in 1987 were a record, and extended to 92 consecutive years.

Westvaco's record of uninterrupted quarterly cash dividends, one of the longest continuous records of dividend payment among companies listed on the New York Stock exchange.

Office On Aging Offers Revised Medicare Guide

Rosalie S. Abrams, director of the Maryland Office on Aging, has announced that a revised edition of its booklet, A Senior Citizen Guide To Medicare and Medicaid Insurance in Maryland is now available.

"This booklet has been brought up to date with information to help senior citizens understand the complicated federal Medicare program, as well as assist them in choosing a health insurance policy to supplement their Medicare coverage," said Mrs. Abrams.

The booklet explains long-term care insurance and patient rights under Medicare. It also compares rates and benefits of supplementary Medicare health insurance policies available in Maryland to help consumers choose the coverage they need and can afford.

First released in October, 1986, as a cooperative effort of the Office on Aging and the Maryland Insurance Commissioner, the booklet was an instant "best seller." Over 70,000 copies were distributed within three months. "We know that there is a great deal of interest about health insurance coverage, and we hope that with the printing of this new, updated guide senior citizens and their families will again have a source of invaluable information to help them get the most for the substantial amounts they have to pay for health insurance expenses," she added.

Copies of the booklet, which are free, are being distributed through the Gateway Information and assistance offices located in each county and Baltimore City, as well as through senior centers, public libraries, and social security offices.

"We encourage anyone who is elderly, or who has an elderly relative living in Maryland to get this helpful revised guide," Mrs. Abrams added.

For a free copy of the guide, local persons should call 334-9431.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a public hearing on December 10, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Grand Jury Room (Third Floor, Courthouse, Oakland, MD). The Board will review applications on the following docketed cases:

1) Docket VR 178, an application made by Mr. John Peachey for a Variance from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the floor area allowed for a home occupation. Specifically, Mr. Peachey is requesting a Variance to allow the establishment of a home occupation (Pallet assembly shop) in an outbuilding which would occupy an equivalent floor area of approximately twice the area of his home. The ordinance normally allows up to 25% of the area of the home for home occupations. The property is located on Mellinger Road (Zoned LR).

2) Docket VR 179, an application made by Mr. John Mack for Variances from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the front and rear yard setback requirements of residences and the front yard setback for detached garages. Specifically, Mr. Mack is requesting Variances to allow construction of additions to his residence which would extend to within one foot of his rear (Penick) property line to within 17 feet of his front property line. Mr. Mack also proposes to construct a detached garage which would extend to within 6 feet of his front property line. The parcel is located on Deep Creek Drive (Zoned LR).

Applications For Plumbers' Exam At Local Stores

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners announced Tuesday that applications for the special plumber's examination will also be available at several local businesses for the convenience of those needing them.

According to Joseph Howe, officer of revenue permits for Garrett County, the applications are available at his office in Room 301 at the Old Courthouse in Oakland, H and H Hardware, Grantsville; Ben's Plumbing and Heating, near Mtn. Lake Park; Doerr Supply near Accident; 219 Supply near Deep Creek Lake and Naylor's Hardware in Oakland.

Howe noted that the applications, when completed, must then be mailed or brought to his office with the applicable fee, depending on the type of examination requested by the plumber.

The examination is part of the agreement with the State Board of Commissioners of Practical Plumbing and the commissioners of Garrett and Allegany counties to allow non-certified master and journeyman plumbers to continue practicing in their respective counties.

OVER $1,000 FOR HOSPICE — Hospice of Garrett County was the recipient of a check for over $1,000 last week from the Junior Woman's Civic Club. The funds were proceeds of a spaghetti dinner held recently at St. Paul's United Methodist Church. Pictured are representatives of both organizations, as well as various local businesses which made donations and helped the JWCC sponsor the dinner. Pictured left to right are: Rick DiSimone, manager of Browning's Foodland; Jerry Ferguson, representing Nationwide Insurance; Wayne Johnson, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County; Patti Battista, president of the JWCC; Ed Henn, of Master-Craft Printers; Karen Spiker, owner of A&A Realty; and Bill Riley, pharmacist, Englander's Pharmacy.

CHRISTMAS TREES HEADED FOR HOMES FAR AWAY — Truckloads of Christmas trees leave Garrett County each year to help families far away celebrate the holidays. Above, trees are being loaded at Mountain Top Tree Farm, under the direction of owner Dr. Frank Custer (left foreground), for their long trip. This time each year, excitement flows as whole families look for that "perfect tree." Next week, The Republican will tell the story of Christmas trees — from planting to the retail lot, including the special trees left standing for happy families to search out and "choose and cut" themselves.

Senator John N. Bambacus Calls For State Economic Master Plan

State Senator John N. Bambacus (R-Allegany and Garrett counties) has issued a call for new job creation programs in Maryland that is being viewed as the template for a "New Capitalism" movement in state economic policy.

In a recent letter to Governor William Donald Schaefer, the District One state senator suggested that Maryland develop a long-term economic game plan designed to increase state revenues without raising taxes. Bambacus specifically requested consideration of job creation programs including direct product development funding for Maryland firms, small business incubation centers, a non-metro infrastructure bank, and stimulation of direct private research and development funding at Mary-

Clarification Noted About Decorations

In a story in last week's edition of The Republican regarding the Christmas lighting project in Oakland it was implied that the town of Oakland was responsible for raising funds for the community tree.

While Oakland residents did indeed purchase the bulbs at $1 each, the story failed to mention that the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club spearheaded that drive and were among the first to contribute to the fund.

A spokesman for the Greater Oakland Business Association noted this week that the efforts of the BPW were greatly appreciated. "Without their enthusiasm, we just wouldn't have had enough funds to light the community tree. We can't thank them enough."

We thank them, too, and regret the oversight.

land universities designed to speed up commercial applications of breakthrough research.

Attached to the letter was a three-page draft focusing on the need for a long term policy of job creation, business climate enhancement and targeted education designed to ultimately fund infrastructure and entitlement programs expected to be downsized by federal budget cutting. Bambacus contends that increases in state revenues as a result of successful economic development could be the basis of a "new capitalism" forged by the Schaefer administration.

Bambacus pointed to the early success of Schaefer policy in Western Maryland as a mandate for a 10-year plan. According to the second-term senator, the plan should encourage business start-up and retention using aggressive recruitment as well as investments in rural infrastructure and education.

... that could possibly become the greatest Schaefer legacy of all. There is nothing to prevent Maryland from becoming a model of how state governments can foster economic growth in the global marketplace.

Bambacus thinks the job is too important to be done incrementally, one General Assembly session at a time.

Conceding the right and obligation of each elected body to set its own budget priorities, he feels the need to have long-term goals in job creation. "There are many precedents. I think clearly defining the relationship between our state government and Maryland's economic climate is equally important to multi-year national initiatives like physical fitness, landing a

Low-Interest Mortgage Money Now Available For Eligible Homebuyers

Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer announced yesterday that low-interest mortgage money is available to eligible homebuyers statewide through the Maryland Mortgage Program (MMP).

"This program is an excellent example of a public-private partnership that works," said Governor Schaefer. "It helps homebuilders, lenders, and most of all, people with limited incomes who otherwise could not afford to own a home."

To qualify for a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage loan through the Maryland Mortgage Program, individuals can earn up to $28,000 a year, and family income can be up to $33,000 a year. In most areas, borrowers cannot have owned their own home within the last three years. However, this requirement does not apply in Baltimore City, Hagerstown, and Allegany, Caroline, Dorchester, Garrett, Kent and Somerset counties.

Two interest rates have been established for the program, depending on household income. For borrowers earning $22,000 a year or less, the interest rate will be 8.45 percent. Those earning more than $22,000 a year, up to the program's maximum income limit of $33,000, will pay 9.45 percent interest.

Newly-constructed and existing homes, including detached and semi-detached homes and townhouses, can be purchased through the program. Condominiums acceptable to the mortgage insurer also are eligible. Modular homes qualify for financing if they carry the state seal of approval for code compliance.

Maximum purchase prices vary, depending on location and whether a home is newly-constructed or existing. The maximum purchase prices in Garrett County are $66,000 for existing homes and $77,000 for new homes.

To obtain an MMP mortgage, borrowers should apply directly to a participating lending institution. Borrowers must have a

Alfred "Blue" Marucci Is Named County's "Most Beautiful Person"

Alfred T. "Blue" Marucci was named Garrett County's "most beautiful person" Tuesday in the meeting room of the Garrett County Commissioners.

Marucci will now join the "most beautiful people" from the other Maryland counties at the first annual citizen recognition ceremony slated January 7 at the Governor's Mansion.

"Most beautiful people" is the first project of the "Maryland You Are Beautiful" program of which Floraine Applefeld is the chairman.

Marucci reportedly received 75 percent of the nominations for the county's "most beautiful person."

Although the selection committee did not submit a copy of its recommendations for Marucci's nomination before press time, a phone call placed to one of the committee members revealed that "Blue" had been selected "for his outstanding community service."

He is the volunteer groundskeeper for the Southern High School athletic field where he has spent many hours and personal dollars. He is also active in Habitat for Humanity, the House of Hope, the Social Services Board, the Oakland-Mtn. Lake Park Lions Club and projects at his church, St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland.

The honoree and his wife, Marge, are the parents of three grown children, Paula Redinger, Al Marucci and Mark Marucci, and four grandchildren.

Over 50 nominations were received by the selection committee, according to Paul Mullan, acting chairman. Other committee members were: Patricia Bowser, Friendsville; Linda Edwards, Grantsville; Marianna Green, Mtn. Lake Park; and Patty Wells, Accident.

Wayne Johnson, executive director of Hospice of Garrett County Inc., served as the local coordinator of the project.

Other events in the Fireside Lecture Series are being scheduled for early next year under the sponsorship of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

Saturday Blaze Destroys Spring Glade Structure

A Saturday morning fire resulted in the destruction of a wood-frame structure with tin siding, located along the Spring Glade Road about one-half mile east of U.S. Route 219 north of Oakland.

Oakland, Deer Park, and Deep Creek volunteer firefighters were called to the scene by the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management at 10:42 a.m. and found the east half of the Quonset-style building fully involved in flame. The structure was owned by James and Norman Reckart and was being leased by the Garrett County Community Action Committee. The building housed an office and a wood-working shop.

Although the building was destroyed, firefighters were successful in saving three Community Action vehicles which were parked adjacent to it, one of which was a paneled truck valued at $17,000 containing another $2,000 worth of tools. It was also reported that some of the large pieces of woodworking equipment inside the building that were damaged may be repairable.

The fire originated in the east end of the building where the office was located. According to Guy Carola, fire investigator for Garrett County, the fire was first noticed by a neighbor, Terry Savage, who told Carola that he heard a sizzling sound and then saw flames in the electrical box of the building.

Carola estimated damages to be $80,000. He said that the Reckarts and Community Action both carried insurance on the building and contents.

Reception And Lecture Set For Monday At GCC

A combined event sponsored by the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival will take place Monday evening, December 7, in the art gallery of Garrett Community College in McHenry. It is open to the public with no admission charge.

At 7:30 p.m. a reception will be held for Sally A. Schwing to celebrate the publication of her book Do You Think It Snows In Heaven? A Journal About Christopher. Schwing, who wrote the book while she was a student in the creative writing class at the college several years ago, will autograph copies at the reception.

Following the reception, the first presentation in the Fireside Lecture Series will be given by Craig Abrahamson, who will speak on dealing with traumatic death loss in a family and within a community, and the need for communication and coming together. Abrahamson counseled Christopher Schwing while he was terminally ill and will reflect on that experience.

Other events in the Fireside Lecture Series are being scheduled for early next year under the sponsorship of the Garrett Lakes Arts Festival.

Commission Suggests $20 Million To Raise Maryland Teachers' Salaries

At a press conference held Tuesday in Garrett County, Beverly Corelle, president of the Maryland State Teachers Association, announced that a recommendation of $20 million in targeted aid to help raise teachers' salaries in Maryland had been made by the Governor's Commission on Teachers' Salaries and Incentives.

The commission report, begun last January and completed in mid-October, is now in Governor Schaefer's office awaiting legislation with the approval of the National Education Association, the Maryland State Teachers Association and the Garrett County Teachers Association, according to Corelle.

In the report, commission chairman George Hess stated that this and other recommendations made by the commission would "significantly elevate the profession of teaching in Maryland and result in the long-range enhancement of the quality of elementary-secondary education for Maryland's youth."

The commission, stating that raising teachers' salaries in Maryland was an imperative, recommended salary levels comparable to those of other professions, less disparity among the 24 jurisdictions (Baltimore City and the 23 counties) in Maryland and incentives to "attract competent people into the profession and to keep them in the profession."

The commission report indicated that teachers' salaries in Maryland, on average, compared well with other professions at the entry level but, according to statistics gathered by the commission, the salaries lagged far behind those of other comparable professions at the mid-career level.

An example of that inequity is witnessed in data compiled by the U.S. Department of Labor that shows the mid-career salary for an accountant as $40,504, as opposed to $28,300 for a Maryland teacher (with a Master's Degree and ten years experience) in 1986-87.

In order to raise mid-career salary levels among Maryland teachers to $34,663, the commission estimated that it would cost an average of $190 million a year for the next four years. The commission concluded that cost to be "unaffordable" if funded by the state only.

The alternative recommended was to implement the targeted aid program that would result in a distribution of $20 million to 17 of the 24 jurisdictions on the basis of need.

However, the commission cautioned that this effort would be merely a "first step" and that it would not significantly reduce the disparity in teachers' salaries among the 24 Maryland jurisdictions.

Garrett County, for example, in 1987 ranked 22nd among the 24 jurisdictions in starting teachers salary at $16,895, while Queen Anne's County ranked first at $23,500. The average mid-career salary for teachers in Garrett County, according to the commission is $24,148 while Montgomery County teachers make $35,010 at mid-career.

Because of this disparity at mid-career, said Corelle at the press conference, "Garrett County is losing experienced teachers." But, she said, she sees "good things ahead" for Garrett County teachers and education, and noted that Garrett County has a distinct advantage in that the private and business community have traditionally worked well together with the educational community in an effort to provide quality education for its youth.

The commission is in favor of the concept of full state funding of all educational expenses, and sees it as the only way to achieve full equality from county to county. It concluded, though, that it was not within the commission's mandate to recommend such comprehensive changes to state tax policy. It was their recommendation that another study be conducted to examine the feasibility of full-state funding.

The commission also recommended additional state aid for those school systems with less wealth to enhance local staff development programs and to provide other opportunities and incentives for teachers. The funds, according to the report, would be phased in during a three-year period.

Further, the commission recommended the state development of a program to provide new tuition grants and loans for teacher candidates studying in public institutions of higher education in Maryland.

Although the commission indicated that it would be left to the local school systems to

W.Va. Man Given Eighteen-Month Sentence To DOC

A Fairmont, W.Va. man received an 18-month sentence to the Maryland Department of Corrections during Garrett County District Court proceedings held recently.

Harry A. Kees, 23, was found guilty of misdemeanor theft in a previous trial when Judge Jack R. Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. Kees was also fined $50 and ordered to pay court costs as a result of the conviction. No probation was ordered.

The charge was filed by Sgt. R.E. Friend of the Maryland State Police following a September 30 incident when Kees reportedly broke and entered The Perfect Touch, a paint store located in McHenry. While inside the building, Kees stole $277.93 in cash and damaged a window screen, according to police reports.

Charges of breaking and entering and theft and malicious destruction of property were not prosecuted because of plea agreements. Ralph M. Burnett was the defending attorney.

In other news from District Court, Robert R. Rhodes, 51, Deer Park, was found guilty of disturbing the peace and was sentenced to 30 days in the Garrett County Jail as a result. He was also fined $500 and placed on 12 months supervised probation.

The charge was filed by Laurie Winner, a probation agent, as the result of a September 29 incident in Deer Park when Rhodes reportedly disturbed the neighborhood by making loud noises and acting in a disorderly manner.

Jeffrey Cosner, McHenry, was given a 30-day suspended sentence after he was found guilty of failure to obtain a permit for a septic disposal system.

Edgar H. Harman, from the Garrett County Health Department, Oakland, filed the charge following an incident July 29 when he inspected Cosner's septic system at his residence. It was then learned that Cosner had not obtained a permit.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for William J. Maus, 22, Swanton, who was found guilty of fourth degree sexual offense. A charge of battery was merged with the first charge.

Tic R.C. Resh, Maryland State Police, filed the charges following an August 15 incident in Swanton when Maus reportedly engaged in sexual contact with a 14-year-old female against her will and without her consent. According to police reports, the victim stated that Maus had a loaded gun at the time of the attack. John R. Toston, public defender, represented Maus.

Pre-sentence investigations were ordered in five of six cases filed against Jerry Helmick, 34, Deer Park, who was found guilty of malicious destruction of property, trespassing, harassment and two counts of assault. He was found not guilty, in one case, on a charge of harassment. That charge was filed by Arbutus Lloyd, also of Mtn. Lake Park, following an incident in Mtn. Lake Park.

Lloyd also filed charges of trespassing and battery against Helmick. The trespassing charge stemmed from a July 25 incident while the battery charge resulted from incidents on June 26 and July 24 when Helmick reportedly assaulted and battered a 10-year-old male youth.

Lloyd also filed the destruction of property charge against Helmick following an August 14 incident when Helmick allegedly damaged a 1981 Datsun station wagon belonging to Lloyd.

Other charges were filed by Tex G. Lloyd and Riley Lloyd, both of Mtn. Lake Park. In two of the cases, Helmick was found not guilty on a charge of assault and a charge of harassment.

Arbutus Lloyd was also the complainant in a case filed against Johnny J. Thomas, 26, Mtn. Lake Park, who was found guilty of trespassing. A pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

The charge stemmed from a July 25 incident in Mtn. Lake Park when Thomas reportedly entered the property of Lloyd after having been notified not to do so. Thomas was found not guilty of assault after the charge was filed by Tex G. Lloyd following a July 25 incident. Toston was the defending attorney for Thomas.

Jeffrey V. Corby, 19, Deer Park, was found guilty on five counts of theft. A pre-sentence investigation was then ordered. An additional charge of theft was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement.

One count of malicious destruction of property was also not prosecuted because the judge ruled it to be an incorrect charge.

Sgt. R.E. Friend, Maryland State Police, filed the charges following a September 9 incident when Corby reportedly stole numerous radios and cassette players from boats stored at Bill's Marine Service, Inc., Swanton. The estimated total loss amounted to $2,555.95. Corby also reportedly caused $200 worth of damage to a stored 1988 Correct Craft Dominique boat. Toston represented Corby.

Kathryn M. McKenzie, 20, Grantsville, was found guilty of battery and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. The charge stemmed from a July 14 incident in Grantsville when McKenzie reportedly assaulted and battered another Grantsville woman, who suffered a fractured rib as a result. Tic R.J. Resh, Maryland State Police, filed the charge.

A pre-sentence investigation was also ordered for Steven H. Kitzmiller, 27, Swanton, who was found guilty of battery following a September 17 incident. Complainant in the case was Michelle Miller, also of Swanton, who, in turn, was charged with battery by Kitzmiller. The charge was not prosecuted because of insufficient evidence.

Kitzmiller was represented by Toston while Miller was represented by Michael R. Morrisette.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered for Shirley W. Wagner, Oakland, who was also found guilty of battery. The charge was filed by Donna J. Park, also of Oakland, following a September 22 incident in Oakland.

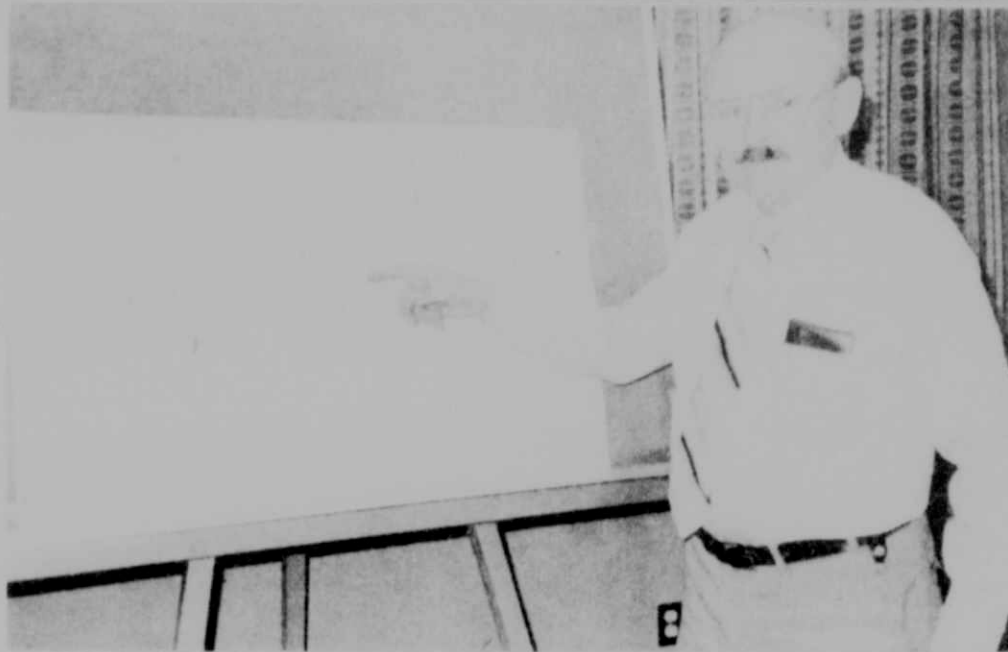

Irene V. Sanders, 32, St. George, W.Va., was found guilty of assault and received six months probation before judgment as a result. She was also ordered to pay a $25 fine and court costs.

Betty J. Brown, Oakland, filed the charge following a September 15 incident at the Short Stop parking lot in Oakland. Robert C. Hessen represented Sanders.

Betty J. Brown, 32, was charged with battery by Sanders but the case was not George McDowell, Grantsville, has been named a state music adjudicator for the Maryland Arts Council for the second year. The Arts Council is responsible for funding worthy cultural activities throughout the state. The 14 music adjudicators travel the state listening to assigned performances of everything from opera to folk groups. Panelists are chosen from among resident artist and college personnel.

He is an instructor of music at Garrett Community College and Frostburg State University. At Frostburg he is currently music director of University Theater's fall production of "Cabaret."

In the coming months he will be serving as co-chairman of the music committee to bring the Baltimore Symphony to Rocky Gap State Park.

Three In "Stable" Condition After Head-On Mishap

A head-on collision that occurred Wednesday at 10 a.m. on Savage River Road resulted in four persons sustaining injuries, three of whom are listed in "stable" condition at area hospitals.

William B. Barclay, 26, Lonaconing, and David Ack, 31, Keyser, W. Va., were each flown by State Police Medevac helicopter to Memorial Hospital, Cumberland, and admitted to the Intensive Care Unit. Gary Smith, 31, Keyser, was taken to Potomac Valley Hospital, Keyser, and was also listed in "stable" condition Wednesday night. Robert Kane Jr., 28, also of Keyser, was also transported there and treated for injuries and released.

Ack, Smith and Kane were all passengers in the vehicle driven by Barclay, who was travelling north, one mile north of Rt. 135, and, while rounding a curve, failed to keep right of the center line. His vehicle then collided head-on with a large truck operated northbound by E. Marshall Stacy Jr., 42, of Swanton, who was transporting a load of Christmas trees. Stacy was reportedly not injured.

Investigating officer, Tfc. D.G. Broadwater, Maryland State Police, charged Barclay with failure to drive right of the center, driving while intoxicated, consuming alcohol while driving and failure to wear a seatbelt.

Also responding to the scene were Tri-Towns Rescue Squad, Keyser Ambulance, and Bloomington and Potomac firemen.

An Accident youth was treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital following injuries he sustained in a pedestrian accident Tuesday night.

Michael Fazenbaker, six, reportedly ran onto North Street, 100 feet south of Friend Street, when he was struck by a car driven by Glen Alexander, 66, also of Accident.

No charges were filed by investigating officer, Tpr. Paul R. Brown, MSP.

Three persons were treated for injuries at Garrett Memorial Hospital and released Friday following a two-

The first vehicle reportedly pulled out onto Rt. 219 and the second vehicle hesitated, according to Deniker, then also pulled out in front on the Deniker's vehicle. Deniker applied her brakes and steered right in an effort to avoid a collision, causing her vehicle to skid a total of 185 feet before striking a ditch and embankment at the intersection. The other vehicles involved left the scene before identification was made, according to Tfc. C.R. Smith, MSP.

Carolyn J. Tasker, 29, Deer Park, was also treated and released at Garrett Memorial Hospital following injuries she sustained in a Saturday morning accident on Broadford Road.

According to police reports, Tasker was operating a 1978 Chevrolet Malibu southbound at 6:20 a.m. and was stopped to make a right-hand turn onto Mary Lane when an unidentified vehicle, travelling south on Broadford Road turned to the left and struck the rear of Tasker's vehicle. The unidentified vehicle then left.

The vehicle was described by Tasker as being a blue and white pick-up truck occupied by two white males, each approximately 20 years of age.

Time Of Hope . . .

When asked what their greatest fear is, American children of this day and age do not list things such as possible separation of their parents, or failing in school, or illness, or not being liked, or getting lost. While each of these fears has had its turn at the top, none is there right now. The single greatest fear in children and teenagers right now is the threat of nuclear war.

It has been just recently that the general public has been "leveled with" by scientists and elected officials about the real consequences of nuclear war. Vivid documentaries, movies, and published accounts of the gruesome reality of such an event have convinced nearly everyone that an all-out nuclear conflict will probably destroy the entire world. It is now clearly evident to each of us that climbing under our school room desks and covering our heads upon hearing the air raid siren, as was taught us in the early 1960s, was such an outrageous farce.

Perhaps now, however, with recent encouraging developments between the two world super powers, the fear of a nuclear war has already begun to diminish. The summit meeting next week between President Reagan and Soviet leader Gorbachev could well go down as one of the most significant, positive events in the history of the world. Depending upon its outcome, it could be President Reagan's greatest achievement.

There is no question that we must take what the Soviets have to say with a huge grain of salt. Because of their past record on treaties, we must always be wary of any agreement reached with them. However, we wonder just how clean our own record has been on treaties, and just how much secret missile installation and deployment has been conducted by our own government.

We are also encouraged about the fact that, this time, specific verification efforts are being included in the bargain. Both sides will be permitted to send their own representatives to the opposing side's missile sites to see that dismantling efforts are truly completed.

At this point, we just don't know what the outcome of these negotiations will be; however, we are confident that the threat of nuclear war for the time being has definitely been reduced from what it has been for two decades, just because we are talking in such an amiable manner and both sides seem willing and anxious to lessen this risk.

The Advent season is one of hope and anticipation. Christmas day signifies the arrival of "peace on earth and goodwill to all people." What better way to observe this special season than to bring together the leaders of the two most powerful nations whose mutual goal, hopefully, is world peace.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

How pretty our town is now with all the bright new Christmas lights. What a nice feeling to know that this was made possible by so many people who cared and shared.

Once again, after many years in darkness, our community Christmas tree stands shining its brightness over everyone who lives, shops or visits downtown during the holiday season.

We, the Garrett County Business and Professional Women's Club, wish to thank all who donated to our "Buy a Bulb" campaign.

Our special thanks to: Don Helbig, Linda and Don Cook, Electronic Plus (Doug and Paul), Stella Rolf, Rayma Weeks, Cindy Tasker, Darren Ream, The Republican, WXIE, Oakland Fire Department, Potomac Edison, Cable Entertainment, Value Guide, Rob Michaels, Commissioner Gregg and Mayors of Mt. Lake, Accident and Friendsville, and the Garrett Choral Society.

Drawings for prizes from the names of persons who donated were to be held at the parade, but, will be held later this week and winners' will appear in next week's paper.

Thanks again!

Sincerely,
Garrett County
BPW Club

You Remembered . . .

For many years, you, his friends, remembered. In 1970, when he suffered three near-fatal heart attacks, you responded with many get-well cards, flowers and your prayers. In the ensuing years when again he suffered other health problems that required hospitalization, you did not forget him. He appreciated more than you know all of your kindnesses.

You remembered this caring, kind man with your prayers when he entered the Washington Hospital Center for his second open-heart surgery which took place on November 3, 1987. He died on November 14, 1987. You continued to be his friend in showing kindness to his family.

Now the family of Boyd Beeson Snyder wishes to thank you for all you have done. We thank the Durst Funeral Home. Mark could not have done a more perfect job: the pallbearers, Robert Boal, Robert Kurtz, Robert Proudfoot, Lewis R. Jones, Terry Helbig and Richard L. Welling. For the lovely inspirational funeral service on November 18, 1987, we thank Rev. Dr. Allen Ridenour, Dr. David Sheets and Mrs. Gordon Earles. The women of the church who served the delicious dinner following the service, and also to those who sent food to the house and those who sent memorials, to you we give thanks.

Last, but surely not least, we thank God for giving us the life of Beeson, who was a most loving husband, father and brother.

His wife, Ethel Rae; son, Dick; daughter, Barbara; brother, Paxton; and sister, Jane attack on the blaze from the west side of the building to protect the truck that was parked just outside the building, while the Oakland VFD's newly-acquired ladder truck was used to attack the flames from above the building. It took about 20 minutes to bring the fire under control.

Also responding to the scene was the county air cascade vehicle, presently being housed at the Bittinger VFD, and the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Firemen remained on the scene for about two hours.

Teachers

choose the kinds of programs to be implemented, it recommended that a "mentoring" program for new teachers be required of each jurisdiction seeking funds. The mentoring program would consist of using trained, experienced teachers to work daily in the classroom with new teachers in a guiding capacity.

Tom Shaffer, UNISERVE representative for Garrett and Allegany Counties for MST, was also on hand at the press conference to distribute specific data concerning Garrett County's standing in the funding program.

Shaffer indicated that an 89.9 percent raise would be needed in order for Garrett County teachers to gain salary equality at the mid-career level. The $20 million targeted aid program would allow for $410,673 to be spent in Garrett County to achieve that goal.

It was also noted at the press conference that Garrett County ranks 13 out of the 24 jurisdictions in local government assessable tax base per person. Corelle explained that the total school budget requested by the Garrett County Board of Education had been approved, two years in a row, by the Garrett County Commissioners — a distinction shared by only one other Maryland county.

Corelle determined, then, that although there has been "no disagreement" between the Education Board and the county commissioners regarding the budget for salaries, there has been "no improvement." Noting the county's current and future economic growth, however, Corelle referred to the Garrett County school system as a "shining star" in regard to targeted aid monies.

According to Hess (commission chairman), "The future of our State and Nation requires as never before that we educate our children well — and that we educate ALL of them well. The pivotal force in accomplishing this is an adequate supply of well-trained teachers possessing levels of high morale."

signed sales contract on a qualifying home before applying for the loan. Borrowers are advised to apply very soon, as funds are limited and are expected to be reserved quickly. It would be advisable for borrowers to make their sales contract contingent on receiving financing through the Maryland Mortgage Program.

Homebuyers must have established credit and a good credit rating. At the time the mortgage application is made, borrowers will be expected to pay fees for a credit report and an appraisal. When the loan is settled, borrowers will pay points, closing costs, and pre-paid items, such as the first year's property taxes. In most cases, borrowers are charged one point, or one percent of the loan, on MMP loans.

Funding for the mortgages was obtained through the Community Development Administration (CDA), the state's housing finance agency, which recently sold $35 million in tax-exempt mortgage revenue bonds. CDA is a division of the Maryland Department of Housing and Community Development.

For further information about application procedures, borrowers should contact a participating lending institution. For a program brochure, persons may contact CDA's Homeownership Programs office at (toll-free) 1-800-638-7781.

Participating lending institutions for Garrett County borrowers and their respective contact persons are as follows: E.B. Mortgage Corporation, Denise Zoppo, 339-3860; First Federal Savings Bank of Western Maryland, Dick Wheeler, 359-0279; Magnet Mortgage, Inc., Pam Reininger, 759-2800; and Mercantile Mortgage Corporation, Bonnie Boswell, 689-1111.

man on the moon or deficit reduction."

At the root of the New Capitalism proposal is the concept that government's job is easier if responsible growth is encouraged as a source of government revenue. Bambacus urged that those revenues be reinvested in education designed to match the skills of Marylanders to trends now projected in the next century's job market.

He further contends that economic development policy and increased commitment to job creation issues will be one of the only major tools available to states in coming years to replace decreasing federal entitlements and infrastructure projects.

"Maryland already has the advantage of location in terms of East Coast distribution and proximity to Washington. Clearly, business climate enhancing and educational programs are ways to ensure quality of life for our constituents and the future ability of state government to operate effectively," the District One Republican commented.

Bambacus views the unusual ability of Governor Schaefer and his staff to obtain decisive action as an opportunity to create an unprecedented long-term economic agenda.

"Schaefer has pioneered the idea that timely public sector investments can be directly returned to government through the tax base. Shouldn't we carve a ten-year plan to invest in our future through economic development and education, creating sources of funding for transportation, public safety and entitlements in years to come?" added Bambacus.

"The New Capitalism is somewhat the opposite of Gramscian-Rudman in one sense. Instead of outlining what government will no longer do, I would hope Maryland could outline what it will do, in terms of economic policy. Just like a corporate business plan that projects a return from a specific expenditure, state government could develop an economic plan that outlines new policies and ways to assess our level of return through increased employment and taxes."

How will the New Capitalism fare in Annapolis? "It depends, of course, on whether there is a consensus on the importance of encouraging job creation and retention. If the administration and my colleagues in the General Assembly agree that the qualifications of our labor force and the success of Maryland's employers can fuel the budget in future years . . . the idea may play very well."

Friends Of Ruth Enlow Library

by Sull McCartney

Earlier this year in an effort to cut costs, the Board of Trustees of the library considered closing the Kitzmiller Branch Library. The Board did not want to close the Kitzmiller facility, but due to the cost of operation and the low circulation they were forced to consider doing so. Fortunately, an agreement was reached with the Garrett County Board of Education to allow the library to be transferred to the Kitzmiller School. This cooperative effort by the Board of Trustees and the Board of Education is commendable. Both parties are to be congratulated for finding a way to continue to provide a valuable service to the citizens of the Kitzmiller area.

The school library was able to accommodate the Kitzmiller Branch Library with a few modifications. Friends did their part by donating the money to pay for some new shelving units which were needed. The Board of Education installed additional fluorescent lights and outdoor flood lighting. In addition to moving furniture from their old location, the Ruth Enlow Library supported the branch by purchasing some new furniture. Finally, the move was accomplished when workers from the Town of Kitzmiller actually moved the library to its new location.

The Kitzmiller Branch Library has been open to the public at its new location since early October. The hours of operation are Monday and Wednesday from 4 to 7 p.m. and Tuesday, Thursday and Friday from 9:30 a.m. to noon. The staff, consisting of Branch Librarian Diane Kiser and volunteers, Earlene Evans, Eva Myers and Dixie Wilson, is available to assist library patrons.

The Kitzmiller Lions and the Friends of the Ruth Enlow Library are sponsoring an Open House at the new location of the Kitzmiller Branch of The Ruth Enlow Library on Saturday, December 5 from 1 to 3 p.m. Refreshments will be served and several door prizes will be given away. On behalf of the Lions and the Friends, I would like to invite everyone to attend.

I have asked several people what they are reading that they would recommend. The following are a few of the responses: Ella Jones — A Summons to Memphis by Peter Taylor. Bart Shakerian — Man of the House: The Life and Political Memoirs of Speaker Tip O'Neill.

Katherine Smith — The Autobiography of Henry VIII: with notes by his fool, Will Somers by Margaret George and The Ladies of Missalonghi by Colleen McCullough.

Our Turn

Brown Bag It!
by Pam Ashby

In an effort to save money, I have frequently been going home for lunch. This cost-saving measure, though, has proved to be detrimental to my mental well-being. Let me now impart the top 10 reasons for not going home for lunch:

1. The cat, which thinks it's a dog, wants to play "fetch" the entire hour.
2. Bill collectors who love to use the telephone have radar devices that signal them when one is home in the middle of the day.
3. Lunch by the television assures a gross and graphic program demonstrating the techniques used to remove cellulite-laden, yellow fat from a woman's thigh. This does not enhance one's appetite. The program, of course, is sprinkled with commercials about smelly, leaky garbage bags and toilet bowl cleaners. Great, if one is on a diet!
4. Church people (not of one's chosen denomination) decide to pay a visit, causing one to hide in one's closet the remainder of one's lunch hour.
5. Neglected chores nag at one and envelope one in guilt, causing severe indignation.
6. The hungry luncher opens the refrigerator only to find a scrap of shrunken cheese, a dish of chocolate pudding with a two-inch fault down the middle and the sides pulled away from the bowl, three drops of orange juice in the pitcher and a hard-boiled egg that's been there since Easter — 1981!
7. Vacuum cleaner salesman darkens one's door and drop one's half-eaten lunch on the floor to demonstrate their super, deluxe model that has more power than one's automobile.
8. Boring game shows put one to sleep causing one to be somewhat late in returning to work.
9. The electricity goes off before the soup is hot and there's not one slice of bread in the house for a sandwich.
10. It's tempting to pretend one is independently wealthy while lounging at home during lunch making it extremely difficult to go back to work when the clock strikes one.

Packed lunches seem to be the best alternative — or do they? Oh well, that's another column.

THEY DRESS DOLLS — Many Garrett County Extension Homemakers recently dressed 60 new dolls, donated by the Salvation Army in Cumberland, to help with the Oakland Rotary Club's "Operation — Santa Claus." The dressed dolls were judged at the Homemakers Christmas Workshop in November and were on display until they were donated this past week to Rotary. Lorene Dodge, Sunnyside Homemakers, won first prize. Oma Farrell and Donna Liller, both from the Loch Lynn club, won second and third place. Vella Imhoff and Arlene Booth, also of the Loch Lynn club, received honorable mention. Participants in the doll-dressing contest are shown at Heck's (where the Rotary Angel Tree is located) with the dressed dolls, left to right, Jocelyn

Wotring, Loretta Wotring, Janet Browning, Beulah Sisler, Stephanie Lang, Donna Liller, Lorene Dodge, Oma Farrell, Leona DeWitt, Vella Imhoff, Lorraine Ledden, Arlene Booth, Mrs. Major Luther Hoffman from the Salvation Army (her husband was unable to attend but helped with the doll project), Dr. David Bolinger, Christmas basket project chairman; Irmgard R. Koscielniak, extension agent; and Tom Browning, committee member. Dr. Bolinger commented, "This tri-agency effort to promote a merrier Christmas for needy families is truly commendable. More and more people and organizations are becoming involved each day of the drive."

Tree Seedlings Still Available

The Maryland Forest, Park and Wildlife Service has announced that there are still white pine seedlings available for sale to private landowners in Garrett County for planting next spring. The seedlings are available for reforestation or conservation purposes such as windbreaks, soil protection, fiber production, watershed protection, sound reduction and wildlife habitat establishment. No seedlings are available this year for Christmas tree production.

Landowners interested in purchasing seedlings should contact the Forest, Park & Wildlife Service office at Mt. Nebo, telephone 334-3296. Landowners must have a minimum area of 1/4 to 1/2 acre of land suitable for planting to accommodate a minimum of 250 seedlings on a spacing of six by seven feet or eight-by-eight feet.

All orders for seedlings will be serviced on a first-come, first-served basis, and the cost per thousand is $75.

Masons To Meet

Oakland Lodge No. 192, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, will hold a regular communication Tuesday, December 8, 7:30 p.m., at the Paul B. Naylor Masonic Temple on Wilson Street.

Worshipful Master James W. Nelson announced that the main item on the agenda will be the election of 1988 officers, who will be installed at the first meeting in January. There will be no degree work.

Nelson invites all Master Masons to attend.

Lodge 11 Plans Annual Banquet

The November meeting of Woodmen of the World Lodge 11 was held one week earlier this month so plans could be finalized for the annual Awards Banquet, slated for this Saturday, December 5, at 6:30 p.m. at the Deer Park Fire Hall.

Letters of invitation have been sent to all members of the local lodge. There is a seating capacity of 250 at the fire hall.

Fourteen members and officers were present at the meeting, which was opened with prayer by Joe Peck Sr. and the pledge to the flag, led by Lawrence Groves.

Several new members for both Lodge 11 and Ranger Unit 112 were presented for approval. It was noted that the Lodge is expanding monthly with the addition of new sales by the representatives.

The officers for the coming year were announced and will be installed at the January meeting.

Christmas Opera To Be Presented At Frostburg SU

Four young opera stars will appear in the premiere concert version of "Dialogues" at 8 p.m. this Saturday, December 5, in Pullen Auditorium on the Frostburg State University campus. "Dialogues" is a Christmas opera by Jon Bauman, professor of music at Frostburg State University.

Bonnie Kunkel, soprano, will sing the role of Mary. A native of Allegany County, she was graduated summa cum laude from Frostburg State University with a B.A. degree in music performance. She has performed in the Washington, D.C., area for the past four years. She has made appearances with the Washington Opera and the New York City Ballet, as well as the Young Artist Concert of the Maryland Handel Festival, the George Mason Library Recital Series, the Frederick Festival for the Arts, and the Washington's May Festival for Peace.

A 1985 Regional Finalist in the Metropolitan Opera Auditions, Ms. Kunkel was recently a district winner in the National Association of Teachers of Singing Young Artist Award and is currently a finalist in the National Opera Association Young Artist Competition. She will receive a master of music degree, in the spring from the University of Maryland, where she has sung leading roles with the Opera Theater, as well as being chosen an honors recitalist. She studies with Dr. James McDonald.

Sam Savage, tenor, singing the role of the Shepherd, received a bachelor of music degree from Virginia Commonwealth University. In 1981, he studied voice with John Ferrante in Sienna, Italy.

Savage won the Virginia Music Teacher's Concerto Competition in 1983 and apprenticed with the Sarasota Opera Company during the 1986-87 season. Currently, he is a graduate student at the University of Maryland, where he studies with Linda Mabbs.

Aurelius Gori, baritone, singing the role of Joseph, has appeared in the title roles of several University of Maryland Opera Theater productions, including Don Giovanni, the Gondoliers and the nationally acclaimed American premier of Handel's Tolomeo. In 1984, he won the Homer Ulrich Solo Performance Competition.

Gori was a finalist in the National Symphony Orchestra's Young Soloist Competition in 1985, as well as being a finalist in last year's National Opera Association's Student Competition in Los Angeles. He received a bachelor of music degree from the University of Maryland and is now pursuing a master of music degree there, studying with Dr. James McDonald.

John Rogel, bass-baritone, singing the role of the townsman, is currently working toward a bachelor of music degree at the University of Maryland while working full-time for the Metro Rail System in Washington, D.C. He sang in the chorus of the Wolf Trap Opera Company in 1981 and the Washington Opera from 1982 through 1984.

Rogel has appeared in the leading roles of The Tales of Hoffman and The Student Prince with the Vienna Light Opera. He is a student of Dr. James McDonald.

The performance of "Dialogues" is without admission charge and the public is welcome to attend.

Former GCC Professor Honored

Dr. Alan J. Reinhardt, former assistant professor of English at Garrett County Community College, was recently honored with the 1986-87 Award for Outstanding Teaching at Nichols College, Dudley, Mass., where he currently teaches.

Dr. Reinhardt joined the staff at Nichols College in 1985 after having been employed at GCC for approximately 10 years. Prior to that, he was an instructor of English at Genesee Community College, Batavia, N.Y.

A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Reinhardt received an M.A. from Indiana University (Ind.) and a Ph.D. from Indiana University (Pa.). He resides in South Woodstock, Conn., with his wife, Stephanie, and their daughter, Sonya.

"The college is pleased to honor Dr. Reinhardt," stated Dean of Academic Affairs, Edward Warren. "He is an outstanding educator who contributes greatly to our academic excellence."

In addition to his teaching duties at Nichols, Reinhardt is the director of the college's writing program.

Garrett County Book Release

To Be Delayed

Publishers of the new book Garrett County Today announced this week that the anticipated release of the book has been delayed until after the Christmas holidays.

Catherine M. Teets, chief executive officer of C.R. Publications, Inc., said that "a few production snags" with the printer have caused the delay and that the new delivery date is late January.

Mrs. Teets said that the printer of the book is one of the largest "and best" printing companies in the country and that she and the compilers of the book, Bob Teets and Shelby Young, did not want to rush the printing of the book which might cause it to "fall short of our expectations."

Order forms for Garrett County Today have appeared exclusively in The Republican Newspaper for several weeks and, according to Bob Teets, the response has been "very good."

In a letter sent this week to all purchasers of the book, the publishers said that in those cases where the book has been purchased for a Christmas gift, C.R. Publications will notify the recipient with a gift card. They also said that they will make refunds to anyone wishing to cancel his or her order.

Garrett County Today is a compilation of photographs and stories about life and people in Garrett County. Some 20 area writers and journalists have supplied photos and articles.

Bender Returns To Husky Program; Plans To "Overcome Obstacles"

After a disappointing 5-17 season last year, the only way to go is up for new Northern High School boys varsity basketball coach, Dave Bender, whose Huskies will open their 1987-88 campaign Tuesday night at home against Beall.

Though Bender has been the junior varsity coach at Southern High School for the past four years, he is certainly no stranger to Northern High athletics, having earned 11 varsity letters there during his high school career. After graduating from Northern in 1976, Bender played for Bob Kirk and the nationally-ranked Allegany Community College basketball squad and also started in right field for Steve Bazarnie's Region XX Championship baseball team at ACC.

While at ACC, Bender twice received the Student Athlete of the Year Award. After earning his A.A. degree there, he moved onto Juniata College in Huntingdon, Pa., where he played on the MAC Championship baseball team and was awarded the Jack E. Oller MVP Award for basketball his senior year.

At Northern Bender replaces Harv Speicher, who stepped down as the boys' coach to become Northern athletic director and head girls' basketball coach. Speicher averaged 10 wins per season during his 10 years at the Husky mentor.

The Huskies return six lettermen from last season's team, with senior Aaron Zumpano (6-1, 160) leading the way. Zumpano led last year's squad in rebounding, free throw percentage, and was second in scoring with 261 points.

"Aaron has improved in all phases of the game because of a commitment he made to a strenuous summer workout program," Bender said. "However, his greatest asset to the team will be his ability to provide leadership."

Other returnees include three-year letterman Kevin Selby, a 6-1, 198-pound junior, who played in 20 of 22 games last year and will be called upon by Bender this year to provide inside strength and rebounding.

Junior Todd Wagner (5-10, 157), who played in 19 games last year, has steadily improved his shooting and defensive skills, Bender said, and will be competing for a two-guard spot.

Gary Iden, a senior, returns hoping to use his quickness and hustle to overcome his lack of size (5-8, 125).

1987-88 VARSITY HUSKIES — Set to open their campaign on Tuesday against Beall are the Northern Huskies, who are under the leadership of a new coach, Dave Bender, himself a former athletic standout at Northern. Though young in experience, the Huskies are confident they can improve on the 5-17 record of last

tor and head girls' basketball coach. Speicher averaged 10 wins per season during his 10 years at the Husky mentor.

The Huskies return six lettermen from last season's team, with senior Aaron Zumpano (6-1, 160) leading the way. Zumpano led last year's squad in rebounding, free throw percentage, and was second in scoring with 261 points.

"Aaron has improved in all phases of the game because of a commitment he made to a strenuous summer workout program," Bender said. "However, his greatest asset to the team will be his ability to provide leadership."

Other returnees include three-year letterman Kevin Selby, a 6-1, 198-pound junior, who played in 20 of 22 games last year and will be called upon by Bender this year to provide inside strength and rebounding.

Junior Todd Wagner (5-10, 157), who played in 19 games last year, has steadily improved his shooting and defensive skills, Bender said, and will be competing for a two-guard spot.

Gary Iden, a senior, returns hoping to use his quickness and hustle to overcome his lack of size (5-8, 125).

Senior Jerry Orner (6-0, 152) will be fighting to make a contribution to the Huskies at the weak forward position, while Kevin Wassell, a 5-9, 155-pound senior, is expected to make an impact as a defensive specialist.

Two seniors who did not play last year and will be competing for playing time are guard Glen Seaman (5-1, 145) and center/forward John Harmke (6-4, 195).

"John has more athletic potential than any other member of our team," Bender said. "When he matures as an athlete, he will be a force to reckon with."

Moving to varsity from last season's jayvee squad are junior guard John Sherbin (5-9, 152), sophomore point guard Dave Yoder (5-9, 157), and junior forward Craig Umbel (5-11, 155).

"Sherbin and Yoder have improved by leaps and bounds because of their dedication to the off-season program," Bender said. "They will both be pushing hard for starting positions."

Junior Jason Rush (5-11, 182) is out for organized basketball for the first time and is competing for a weak forward position.

"Overall, we are a very inexperienced team," Bender said. "We have only two returning players who were depended upon last year. However, we have made our theme for this year 'Overcoming obstacles, not building barriers,' and our kids are just beginning to understand what that means. By the end of the season, we should be able to provide real problems for our opponents."

Bender is assisted this year by second-year jayvee coach, Merv Yoder, Allan Skidmore, and manager Andre Yelovich. The trainer is Terry Stough.

Blue/Gold Games Slated Saturday At Northern High

The first Blue/Gold Games, including a Northern High School alumni contest, will be held this Saturday, December 5, at the Northern gym.

Tip-off for the first of three games will be at 5:30 p.m. and will feature the 1987-88 freshman team against the junior varsity.

The second contest, set for 7 p.m., will be an intra-squad game by the Northern varsity. The feature game, slated for 8:30, will showcase former Husky standouts, with odd-year graduates, the Blue team, challenging the even-year grads, the Gold team.

The Blue will be led by Northern's all-time leading scorer, Tony Doerr, class of 1979, plus two players from the 1967-68 Region I championship team, Garrett County Commissioner John Braskey and Wayne Georg, both members of the class of 1969.

The Blue team will be coached by the star of the winningest team in Northern history (19-1), Gary Reichenbecher, also class of '69. Reichenbecher's 1967-68 team made it to the semi-finals of the Maryland State Championship Tournament at College Park before being eliminated.

Reichenbecher was recruited by former Maryland Coach Lefty Dreisell and Bucky Waters of West Virginia University, and elected to accept a full athletic scholarship to WVU.

The Blue team's roster will also include the current Northern freshman coach, Allan Skidmore (1977), Mark Russell ('75), Steve Zumpano ('85), Mike Robeson ('87), Rick Breneman ('71), Rodney Youmans ('77), Rich Humberson ('83), Weldon Yoder ('81), Phil Workman ('79), Steve Fratz ('81), and John Brobst ('87).

The Gold team standouts include half of the present Northern High coaching staff, such as head coach Dave Bender ('76), jayvee coach, Merv Yoder ('76), and seventh and eighth grade coach, Bill Torrez ('86).

Harv Speicher, himself a former Southern High School standout as a player and also the winningest varsity coach at Northern, will coach the Gold squad. Speicher, who just stepped down this year as the Huskies head coach, recorded over 100 victories in his 10-year career.

The Gold team roster will also include "Moose" Robeson (1958), whose 55 points in one game ranks second in the Husky record book for points in a single game; Mark Holtschneider ('82), Mike O'Brien ('76), Dan Holtschneider ('84), Phil Carr ('84), George Dailey ('82), Lowell Yoder ('82), Jimmy Spear ('78), Larry Breneman ('70), and Kevin Sines ('86).

The public is invited to attend the games and meet future, current, and past "Husky hoopers." The Northern Garrett Athletic Association will sponsor an open hospitality room in the cafeteria during the games. There will be a $1 admission fee at the door, with all proceeds going to the Northern basketball program.

Southern Golfers Win PVC, Play In State Tourney

The Southern High School golf team, under Coach Ed Wildesen, recently completed its season by capturing the Potomac Valley Conference title at Canaan Valley.

The Rams, who finished their season with a 14-8 record, also placed second in regional competition which qualified them to compete as a team in the Maryland State Championships at College Park.

Scott Finch finished with the low score in the PVC for the third straight year, while Jeff King had the low mark for the season. Fred Gloffetty recorded the best mark for the Rams in the regional tournament, in which the Rams were second only to North Hagerstown.

At the state tournament, which includes all sizes of high schools in the state — class AA, A, B, and C — the Rams finished 12th out of 17 teams. Jeff King led the team by placing 22nd out of 160 golfers.

Churchill, a double-A school, won the title.

This was the second straight year that the Rams qualified for Four Southern Hurlers Named PVC All-Stars

Four members of the 1987 Southern High School baseball team were among those named this past week to the Potomac Valley Conference All-Star Team.

Selected from Southern were Rich Goad and Tim Chapman, who were seniors last spring, and J.R. Bosley and Bo Butler, who were juniors and will return to the Ram lineup next spring.

Goad led the Rams in hitting last season with a sizzling .438 batting average.

Chapman was the co-MVP of last season and earned his second Golden Glove Award. He was second among the Rams in hitting with a .435 average, led in number of hits with 30, and recorded 18 RBIs, second best on the Southern squad.

Bosley, who had the fourth best batting average on the team with a .358, led the Rams in home runs with four, RBIs with 21, runs scored with 23, and stolen bases with nine.

Butler was a co-MVP with Chapman and also received the Best Pitching Award, finishing 3-2 on the mound with an ERA of 2.17. Butler recorded 65 strike-outs in just 44 innings and also held the third best batting average of .395. He was also third in RBIs with 15.

These four Rams led Coach Jim Bosley's team to a 16-3 season and a first place ranking in the Cumberland Times-News

Brown Trout Eggs Placed In Streams

The placement of 25,000 brown trout eggs in gravel beds in two Garrett County streams was completed Saturday, November 21, by Ken Pavol, fisheries biologist for the Department of Natural Resources. Pavol was assisted by members of the Youghiogheny Chapter of Trout Unlimited.

The eggs were placed in Muddy Creek and Trout Run. Pavol said this technique of stocking streams has been used successfully in other areas in Maryland. He said the project should result in the production of brown trout just as if a reproducing brown trout population existed in the streams. He also noted that the cost of stocking trout in this manner is quite low when compared to stocking fingerlings or adult fish. He said the fish will have all the characteristics of wild stream-bred trout.

The two streams will be checked at a later date to determine whether or not the project was successful.

Rams Lose Three Starters, But Hope To Lead Area In Defense

Although three starters from last season's 16-8 squad were lost to graduation, Southern High varsity basketball coach Oren Yoder is optimistic about the Rams' chances this year, as they begin their season this Friday night at Allegany.

Gone are last season's leading scorer, 6-2 Jimmy Liller, who led the team in scoring, shot an outstanding 64 percent from the floor, and was second in the area in free throw shooting. Also lost were guard Max Hill and forward Eric Rice, who gave the Rams their outside scoring ability.

However, nine of the Rams this season are seniors and Yoder believes that his current team will have more overall speed, which he hopes to utilize both offensively and defensively. A tough, man-to-man defense is the name of the game to Yoder, who believes his team has the potential to field one of the best defenses in the area.

Expected to anchor the squad are returning starters J.R. Bosley, a senior, and junior Zack Gibson, who are quite used to being team leader after pacing the Southern football team to the state playoffs and a 12-1 record this fall.

Both of them are among the most outstanding athletes in the area and each averaged about nine points per game last season. Three other seniors are expected to start Friday night, including 6-6 Mike Ruff at center, 6-3 Bobby Bernard at forward, and 5-11 guard Jeff King.

Ruff, who was hampered by injuries last season, will provide the necessary height in the center. Bernard saw considerable action last season by splitting time with Rice, and King also lettered last year.

Junior Richard Evick, 6-3, who led the jayvee team in scoring last season, is expected to contribute heavily to the Rams' effort and make a strong run for a starting position.

Southern stretched its record to 11-3 last year before splitting the last 10 games. Two of their five losses in that span were to the area champion Bishop Walsh, one in overtime to East Preston and one by two points to Maryland Class C runner-up Valley.

Frostburg's New Coach To Speak At HFC Banquet

Dennis Riccio, the new head football coach at Frostburg State University, will be the featured speaker at the annual Highland Football Conference Banquet, slated for this Sunday, Dec. 6, at Southern High School, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Riccio came to Frostburg State after eight years as an assistant coach at Augustana College, the last four years as defensive coordinator.

During his stay at Augustana, the Vikings' record was 81-8-1. Augustana went 49-0-1 and won four consecutive NCAA Division III National Championships during his term as defensive coordinator.

Riccio has coached in 18 playoff games, compiling a record of 16-2. In 1986, Augustana defeated Salisbury State College, 31-3, in the Amos Alonzo Stagg Bowl for the Division III title.

During 1986, Riccio's Augustana defense finished first in Division III in total defense, giving up only 136.2 yards per game. His team also finished first in scoring defense (5.1 points per game), and second in rushing defense (18.1 yards per game).

Producing a nationally-ranked defense was nothing new for Riccio. In 1985, his squad was first in total defense, scoring defense, and rushing defense. His 1984 unit finished third in total defense, fourth in rushing defense, and seventh in scoring defense.

Riccio, 41, is a 1968 graduate of Illinois State University with a B.S. degree in education. He earned a master's degree at the University of Utah in 1969. While at Illinois State, he played as a running back for two years and a defensive back his senior year.

Riccio began his coaching career as assistant football coach at Wheeling (Ill.) High School in 1969. After three years at Wheeling, he moved to Buffalo Grove (Ill.) High School, where he was an assistant coach from 1973-79. In 1978 the Buffalo Grove team was the Class 5A state runner-up. He made the jump to college ball in 1979 when he accepted the job as linebacker and defensive end coach at Augustana.

Football was not the only sport in which Riccio brought Augustana national attention. He was also the head wrestling

Lakers Split In N.Y. Tournament Before Edging Cats In Overtime, 91-89

The Garrett Community College Lakers upped their record to 4-1 this past week after splitting two games in the Fashion Institute of Technology tournament at Manhattan, N.Y., over the weekend and then traveling to Keyser Wednesday night and recording a one-point overtime win over Potomac State College.

The Lakers advanced to the title game of the Fashion tourney by crushing the Junior College of Albany on Friday, 76-43. They were edged the following evening in the finals by Bergen Community College, 88-85.

A shot at the buzzer in overtime last night at Keyser by former East Preston standout Tony Haskiell gave Coach Dennis Gibson his fourth win of the campaign, 91-89.

The Lakers are slated to travel to Reading Community College this Friday night, move on to the Fayette Campus of Penn State on Saturday, and on to Westmoreland CC on Monday. There first home game is slated for December 16.

Duane Tabor paced the Lakers in their easy win over Albany, as he finished with 21 points. Sophomore Joe Schmide led 14 points.

Garrett held a 41-27 halftime advantage and then held the Albany squad scoreless through the first six minutes of the second half to increase the lead to 55-27.

Aaron Davis, a 6-0 freshman guard, and Haskiell set up much of the Lakers' scoring, recording nine and seven assists, respectively. Leading the GCC defense were Eric Downs, who had eight rebounds, Davis and Eric Jordan. James Taylor paced Albany with 21 points.

A player by the name of Joe Morejon proved to be unstoppable by the Lakers in Saturday's championship game, as he led Bergen CC with 28 points, including four three-pointers.

Despite the loss, Gibson was pleased with his team's efforts, as the Lakers came back from a 10-point halftime deficit to lead several times in the second half.

Garrett jumped out to an 11-5 advantage during the first five minutes of the game, but Morejon led the Bulldogs back to take a 46-36 halftime advantage.

A bucket by GCC's Aaron Downs at the 9:33 mark of the second half gave the Lakers the lead once again, which was stretched to four points on a goal by William Scates with 6:24 remaining.

But Morejon went to work in the final five minutes, hitting three consecutive three-point

AUTO DEALERS HELP LAKERS — The Garrett Community College basketball program received a financial boost recently from the Oakland New Car Dealers Association. buckets to give the Bulldogs an 80-77 advantage.

A three-pointer by Tabor gave the Lakers their last lead of the game at 82-81.

After an 82-81 tie, Morejon and Tabor traded three-pointers to make it 85-85. Alonzo Salter hit the winning three-point bucket with three seconds remaining. The Laker inbound pass went through Tabor's hands.

Tabor again led the Lakers with 20 points and was named to the All-Tournament team, along with Schmide, who netted 18 points. Also hitting double figures for Garrett was Scates with 12.

Although Haskiell finished with only six points last night against the Catamounts, two of them were at the buzzer in the overtime period, plus he and Davis paved the way to victory for the Lakers with their steals and assists.

With 38 seconds remaining in regulation time, the Catamounts held a 79-75 lead and PSC's Curtis Malone was at the foul line with an opportunity to increase the advantage. However, he fouled both attempts and then fouled Haskiell who went to the line and hit both of his free shots to make it 79-77.

The Lakers then stole the inbound pass and Tabor knotted the score at 79 with a layup at the 28-second mark. A missed shot by Potomac State with three seconds remaining sent the game into overtime.

The teams traded baskets throughout the overtime period, with neither team taking more than a two-point lead. With 22 seconds remaining, PSC's Kevin White hit a bucket to tie the score at 89-89.

After a timeout with 14 seconds left, Downs inbounded the ball to Davis and Davis passed to Tabor who was to take the last shot. Tabor could not get the shot off, however, and fired to Haskiell with just two seconds remaining. Haskiell put up a fall-away, 12-foot jumper from the left side of the lane as the buzzer sounded.

Tabor again led Garrett with 23 points, while Downs hit 19, Davis, 14, and Scates, 12. Downs also pulled down 18 of the Lakers' 37 rebounds.

Leading the Catamounts, who came into the game with a 5-1 mark, was White, who finished with a game-high 26 points. Kevin Bradley added 15 points, 17 rebounds, and seven blocked shots, while Malone and Leslie Carroll added 14 and 11 points, respectively.

The Catamounts out-gunned the Lakers from the floor with a 40-34 edge in field goals. But Garrett connected on 22 of 25 free throw attempts (88 percent), compared to a five-of-10 effort by PSC. The Lakers hit a sizzling 68 percent from the floor, connecting on 44 of 65 shots.

Basketball League Results Are Noted

Old Mill Restaurant won its first Mt. Top Basketball League game of the year in the same fashion that it lost its opener, on a last second basket. Brian Selders tipped in the follow-up of his own shot at the buzzer to beat the National Guard team, 52-51.

The game was close throughout, with the widest margin being only six points. Old Mill led 26-23 at the half and the same margin at the end of the third period, 38-35. The Guard battled to tie the game in the last minute and took the lead with 20 seconds left on the clock when Jonathan Cramer hit the front end of a one-and-one. Cramer missed his bonus shot and old Mill rebounded and worked the ball down for Selders' 15-foot jumper from the side. The shot missed, but Selders fought the crowd under the hoop to tap the ball in just before time expired.

Selders led all scorers with 19 points and Lawrence Dawson had 14 points for the losers.

In other action around the league, A&A Realty, behind Steve Liller's 23 points, upended Ferrell's Mart, 89-56 and Martin's Auto Glass trounced the 76'ers, 90-58.

Pete Brosnihan led all scorers with 25 points for Martin's.

Durst Exxon won its second game of the year, 56-39, over Deep Creek Pharmacy. Tom Hinkle of Durst's and Jerry Herpel of the Pharmacy were high scorers with 17 points each.

Video Connection defeated Bausch & Lomb, 68-57, as Lawrence Nesselrodt pumped in 16 points for Video.

GCHD Home Health Staff Among Leaders In Delivery Of Quality Care

NATIONAL HOME HEALTH WEEK, NOV. 30 - DEC. 5

"Garrett County Health Department's Home Health staff leads the state in its delivery of high quality care to local residents regardless of age in need of acute and chronic care at home," announced Norma Bolding, B.S.N., director of Garrett County Health Department's Home Care Services. That is their rank order by number of visits per 1,000 population who are 65 years or older according to statistics recently released by the Maryland Department of Health & Mental Hygiene.

GCHD's home health agency ranked third in the state for total number of home health visits delivered in the past fiscal year - Baltimore County Health Department's home health agency had 16,427 visits; Allegany County Health Department's home health agency had 11,955 visits; and Garrett County Health Department's home health agency had 10,774 visits to people in need of care at home.

GCHD's home health staff is part of a coordinated network within the health department to help provide care to people who need medical treatment at home. GCHD's network is part of the even greater network in Garrett County. This is noted in the adjacent chart of programs and services available to local residents who need acute or chronic care and supporting help, like housekeeping, in their homes, according to Bolding. The chart below indicates the organization of the GCHD network.

Because it is National Home Health week, the Home Health Agency of GCHD is highlighted here. GCHD nurses have made home visits to deliver medical care and teach self-care skills since the health department was established in the 1930's. It was not until the Medicare system of reimbursement for home health visits was established around 1965 that the health department started receiving payment for more of these services.

When Bolding became director of GCHD's home care services in 1980, there were only 30 patients being visited, and almost all of them had been referred by out-of-county sources. In the past year, hundreds of patients have been served by the home health staff and

"What Garrett County programs and services are meeting these needs of residents who require care, but want to live at home?"

Your Garrett County Inter-Agency Council wants to help you meet your needs. Please check this chart for services you may need. Each agency will be highlighted in future issues of this newspaper.

Today's feature is the home health agency at Garrett County Health Department.

they've been referred by local physicians, Garrett County Memorial Hospital, and other members of Garrett County's Inter-Agency Council.

Why have so many more people been served in recent years? Medicare has changed its policy for reimbursement of hospital care so that more people are being discharged earlier from the hospital and still requiring medical treatment at home, Bolding said.

The 15 nurses and eight nurses aides on the GCHD home health staff are continually updating their knowledge of high-technology devices and their proper uses for in-home care. Home health nurses who will be visiting patients upon their discharge from the hospital are invited to witness procedures used for their care in the hospital so that there will be good continuity of care for that patient.

Cathy Chapman, RN, nursing director for Hospice of Garrett County, Inc., and a home health nurse at GCHD, recently traveled with a patient to West Virginia University Hospital to witness the placement of an "Infuse-a-Port" that is internally attached to the aorta, the major artery leading to the heart. Cathy now administers drugs to this patient through the Infuse-a-Port, the opening to the outside of the patient's body.

"Along with the development of more complex therapeutic treatment - procedures that are normally found in a hospital's intensive care unit - we've had to develop new standards and procedures for our home health staff to follow in patients' homes," noted Bolding. Home health nurses are now administering "total parental nutrition," which means the patient receives all his/her nutrition intravenously, and administering central venous catheters, like the "Infuse-a-Port," which means the patient received drugs intravenously as well. "We also used a ventilator with one patient at home," she added. The nursing staff takes turns being on call 24 hours per day.

The tremendous increase in need for home health services has presented a challenge to the staff. "Whereas each nurse should only have to do about 64 visits per month, we have several who do over 100 visits to home health patients every month," revealed Bolding. With the increase in demand for services comes an increase in the volume of paperwork that accompanies each visit. "Computerized billing has really saved us a lot of time," said Bolding.

To qualify for home health services, a person (of any age) must be referred by a doctor, be homebound and require intermittent (periodic) skilled care.

"Our nurses get to places in this county in weather that keeps even the mailman away," said Bolding.

"We don't turn anyone away because they have no way to pay us. If someone needs our help, we'll be there," added Assistant Director of Home Care Services, Jackie Snelson, M.S.N.

New Horizons "Taking Charge" Workshop Held

The New Horizons Program of Garrett County recently sponsored a three-part workshop entitled "Taking Charge." Many single parents and displaced homemakers took part in the workshop and enjoyed a free luncheon.

Part one of the workshop was on self-esteem and was presented by Dr. Lillian Mitchell. The presentation included: 1) the meaning of self-esteem, 2) the personal need for self-esteem, 3) factors in the development of self-esteem and 4) problems in gaining a feeling of self-esteem.

The second phase of the workshop dealt with stress and was presented by Charlotte Bock, R.N. That program helped participants recognize stress and explored stress management techniques.

Social skills were discussed in the third part of the workshop by Cindy Downton. That segment outlined the five skills vital to good communication and the ability to form and maintain professional relationships.

Sue Sines, a spokesman for New Horizons, said the workshop "was very successful" and noted that many positive comments were received from those attending.

Hunters' Delight... Venison

The leaves are brown and the early morning air is crisp. Clusters of men dressed in camouflage hats and jackets pile into pickup trucks and campers to celebrate an age-old ritual. It's hunting season again.

Later in the day, the guns are cleaned and put away, the game is dressed, and the hunters change into warm, dry clothes. But the best part is still to come, when friends sit down to a feast of wild game.

Tips For Game Cookery

Keep all game cold until cooked. Remove all visible fat, since this is where the "gamey" flavor is concentrated.

Age and diet of game animals greatly affect cooking and eating qualities. Older game is usually tougher and drier. Bacon or other fat should be added when cooking it; and it should be braised or stewed. When in doubt about the age of game, it is best to braise or stew it. While cooking times are suggested in the recipes, the best rule of thumb is to cook until tender.

KABOBS OF VENISON

- 2 large green peppers, quartered
- 1 pound fresh mushroom caps
- ½ cup butter or margarine
- 2 pounds venison loin, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 to 3 large tomatoes, sliced
- 2 to 3 medium onions, sliced
- Garlic salt to taste
- Pepper to taste

Saute green pepper and mushrooms in butter until crisp-tender; drain, reserving the butter. Alternate meat and vegetables on skewers. Sprinkle with garlic salt and pepper. Grill kabobs about 6 inches over medium-hot coals 10 to 12 minutes or until done, basting with the reserved butter. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

GRILLED STEAKS

- 1 (12 to 14-pound) venison hindquarter
- 1 (16-ounce) bottle commercial Italian dressing
- 1 (2.75-ounce) package dry onion soup mix
- ¾ cup butter or margarine, melted
- 2 teaspoons pepper

Separate each muscle of the hindquarter, and cut away from bone. Slice each muscle across the grain into 1-inch thick slices (reserve remaining meat for use in another recipe). Remove and discard the white membrane surrounding each steak. Combine salad dressing and soup mix in a large shallow dish, stirring well; add steaks. Cover and marinate steaks in refrigerator for 1 hour, turning once. Combine butter and pepper, stirring well; set aside. Remove steaks from marinade. Grill about 5 inches from hot coals 8 to 10 minutes on each side or until done, basting occasionally with butter mixture. Yield 10 to 12 servings.

COUNTRY-STYLE STEAKS

- 1 (12 to 14-pound) venison hindquarter
- 1½ cups all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- ¼ cup vegetable oil
- ¾ teaspoon rubbed sage, divided
- ¾ teaspoon dried whole thyme, divided
- 3 medium onions, sliced and divided
- 4½ cups water

Separate each muscle of the hindquarter and cut away from bone. Slice each muscle across the grain into 1-inch thick slices (reserve remaining meat for use in another recipe). Remove and discard the white membrane surrounding each steak; set steaks aside. Combine flour, salt and pepper, stir well. Dredge venison in flour mixture and reserve remaining flour mixture. Brown meat on both sides in hot oil in a large Dutch oven and discard drippings. Layer one-third of steaks in Dutch oven, sprinkle with ¼ teaspoon sage and ¼ teaspoon thyme. Top with one-third of onion slices. Repeat layers twice, using remaining steaks, spices and onion. Gradually add water to reserved flour mixture, stirring until smooth, pour over steaks. Cover and simmer 1 to 1½ hours or until tender. Yield: 10 to 12 servings.

VENISON PAPRIKA

- 1 2½ to 3-pound venison rump roast
- 1½ cups apple cider, Chablis or other dry white wine
- All purpose flour
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon paprika
- ½ cup sour cream
- Chopped parsley for garnish
- 1 12-ounce package egg noodles, cooked and drained

Day Before Serving:

Trim any excess fat from meat. In large bowl, for marinade, pour cider over meat. Cover and refrigerate, turning meat occasionally.

About 3 Hours Before Serving:

Drain meat well, reserving cider. On waxed paper, coat meat on all sides with about ¼ cup flour. In Dutch oven over medium heat, in hot butter or margarine, cook meat until browned on all sides. Add reserved cider, stir in paprika, heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low, cover and cook about 2 hours or until meat is fork-tender. Remove meat to warm platter. Measure liquid in Dutch oven, if necessary, add enough water to make 1½ cups.

In cup, blend 1 tablespoon flour and ¼ cup water until smooth, gradually stir into liquid in Dutch oven and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened. Stir in sour cream and heat through. (Do not boil). Spoon over meat, garnish with parsley. Serve with noodles. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

VENISON RAGOUT

- 2 pounds venison stew meat, cut in 2-inch chunks and trimmed of fat
- 1 medium onion, coarsely chopped
- 1½ cups dry red wine
- 2 teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon rosemary
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- ½ cup all purpose flour
- ¼ cup salad oil
- 3 celery stalks, cut up
- 1 12-ounce package egg noodles, cooked

Day Before Serving:

In shallow dish, place first 6 ingredients. Cover and refrigerate, stirring mixture occasionally.

About 2½ Hours Before Serving:

Drain meat well, reserving wine mixture. On waxed paper, coat meat with flour. In Dutch oven over medium heat, in hot salad oil, cook meat until browned on all sides, a few chunks at a time, removing chunks to platter as they are browned. When all chunks are browned return to Dutch oven. Add reserved wine mixture, heat to boiling. Reduce heat to low, cover Dutch oven and simmer 1½ to 2 hours until meat is fork-tender, stirring occasionally. About 30 minutes before meat is done, add celery. Cook until meat and celery are tender. Serve over noodles. Makes 8 servings.

VENISON STEW

- 1 pound venison, cut into bite-size pieces
- 1 (46-ounce) can vegetable cocktail juice
- 1 (28-ounce) can whole tomatoes, undrained and chopped
- 2 medium-size red onions, chopped
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon hot sauce
- 4 large potatoes, peeled and cubed
- 3 medium carrots, sliced
- 4 small yellow squash, sliced
- 3 to 4 stalks celery, thinly sliced 2 medium-size green peppers, cut into 1-inch pieces

Combine first 6 ingredients in an 8-quart Dutch oven, bring to a boil. Reduce to medium heat; cover and cook 30 minutes, stirring occasionally. Stir in potatoes and carrots, cover and cook for 20 minutes. Add remaining vegetables to soup, cook, uncovered, 10 additional minutes or until vegetables are crisp-tender. Yield: 4 quarts.

TASTY VENISON CHILI

- 2 pounds venison, cut into ½-inch cubes
- 1 pound ground beef
- 2 large red onions, chopped
- 2 (15½-ounce) cans kidney beans, undrained
- 3 (8-ounce) cans tomato sauce
- 1 (6-ounce) can tomato paste
- 1 cup water
- 3 to 4 tablespoons chili powder

Combine venison, ground beef, and onion in a Dutch oven, cook until meat is browned, stirring to crumble beef. Drain off pan drippings. Stir in remaining ingredients, cover and simmer 1½ hours or until venison is tender, adding more water as needed. Yield: About 7 cups.

ROAST VENISON

- 1 cup water
- 1 cup vinegar
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/8 teaspoon pepper
- 1 cup dry red wine, divided
- 2 cloves garlic
- 1 (3 to 5-pound) venison roast
- 10 to 12 slices bacon
- 2 tablespoons all purpose flour
- 2 cups water

Combine 1 cup water, vinegar, salt, pepper, ¾ cup wine and garlic, pour over roast and marinate overnight in refrigerator. Drain roast and place in a shallow roasting pan. Cover top of roast with bacon slices. Place aluminum foil over pan, and fold under to seal edges. Bake at 550° for 7 minutes. Reduce heat to 350°, bake for 1½ hours, basting every 10 minutes with pan drippings. Place flour in a skillet over medium heat, cook, stirring constantly, until lightly browned. Let cool. Combine ½ cup pan drippings, 2 cups water, and remaining ¼ cup wine, stir well. Slowly add drippings mixture to flour, cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until smooth. Serve gravy with roast. Yield: 8 to 10 servings.

Seedlings From Wye Oak On Sale Until January 31

White oak seedlings, grown from acorns of Maryland's state tree, will be offered for sale to the public on a first-come, first-served basis from Tuesday, December 1, until Sunday, January 31. The Forest, Park and Wildlife Service of Maryland's Department of Natural Resources has raised the two-year old seedlings from Wye Oak acorns and is selling them for seven dollars each. The seedlings may be ordered from Buckingham Forest Tree Nursery for spring 1988 delivery.

Individual orders may be for up to ten seedlings and will be delivered by United Parcel Service (UPS). Maryland residents need to add five percent sales tax to their orders. Because of quarantine restrictions, white oak seedlings may not be shipped to Arizona, California, Florida, Louisiana or Oregon.

To order seedlings, persons should send a check for the total order, payable to the Department of Natural Resources, to Nursery Manager John Ayton, Buckingham Forest Tree Nursery, Harmons, Maryland 21077. A separate sheet of paper with a typed or printed name and address for delivery, as well as specific delivery instructions for those with post office box numbers, will facilitate delivery by UPS.

The Wye Oak is 450 years old and reigns on the Eastern Shore in its own 29-acre state park in Talbot County. The tree stands 95 feet tall, has a crown spread of 145 feet and measures 50 feet around its base.

Health Systems Agency Governing Body Convenes

The Governing Body of the Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland met November 18 at the Memorial Hospital and Medical Center of Cumberland. Dr. Leslie R. Miles, chairman, presided.

Two new consumer members from Washington County were welcomed: Mrs. Nancy Russell, assistant director of the Washington County Human Development Council, and George Allen, retired, former executive director of the Regional Education Service Agency.

Charley B. Miller, Friendsville, was honored for his service on various standing committees since the agency's inception in September, 1976.

Guest speaker for the meeting was Ms. Susan Panek, who is the coordinator of local planning for the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene. Ms. Panek stated that local health planning is in jeopardy and that the Western Maryland agency will "play a tremendous role" in defining local health care planning because it has worked here. She urged volunteer members of the Western Maryland HSA to testify before legislative budget committees to explain why it is important to have local input into the state health planning process.

Mrs. Nancy Russell, Washington County, was nominated for the office of vice chairman. Her nomination was approved by the Governing Body.

Delegate Peter Callas from Washington County, who is also a member of the Governing Body, requested the group to endorse the development of a dementia clinic for victims of Alzheimer's Disease. This clinic will be developed in Hagerstown in conjunction with the Washington County Hospital Association. He also asked the Governing Body to endorse the concept of changing the definition of developmental disabilities to include Respite Care for an individual with a developmental or functional disability. The change in definition will occur through legislation that will be introduced to the 1988 Maryland General Assembly. Both of these requests were approved by the Governing Body.

The next meeting of the Governing Body will be held on January 20, 1988, at 1 p.m., at the Washington County Hospital Association in Hagerstown. Garrett County members attending were John S. Parker and Mrs. Virginia Rosenbaum.

Balloon Discovery Leads To Making Of New Pen Pal

Jamie Lynn Lewis, a 10-year old, fourth grade student at Broad Ford Elementary School, discovered a new way to make a pen pal last weekend when he found a balloon with a note attached asking the finder to write to the sender. Jamie found the balloon in the yard of his home on Pysell Crosscut Road near Deer Park. It was sent by Joy Shinsky of New Salem, Pa. Jamie, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis, intends to write to his new "pen pal" in the near future.

Improvement Group Busy At NHS

The Student Council School Improvements Committee of Northern High School has been working on a variety of projects, according to a school spokesman. The main project they are striving to complete is obtaining a new Husky mascot to attend school activities to promote school spirit.

Connie McKenzie, a senior, is the daughter of Harold and Delores McKenzie and resides in Frostburg. Along with being the chairman of this committee, she is the senior class treasurer, secretary of Cross-Country Skiing and Hiking Club, a Guidance Office assistant, and a physical education assistant. She was the Bonfire King escort. She attends the Trinity Assembly of God Church and is a member of the Oak Grove Mennonite Youth Group. Her hobbies include 3-wheeling, playing the piano, bowling, and dancing. She plans to attend Allegany Community College and major in computer science.

Rachel Frantz, a sophomore, is the daughter of Darrell and Betty Frantz, Friendsville. She is a member of the Blooming Rose Church and the Woodman of the World, Lodge 135. Her plans include going to a school of cosmetology.

Karen Wilhelm, a freshman, is the daughter of Alice Wilhelm, Grantsville. Her school activities include being a Student Council representative and a member of the Silk Club. She is also on Silks/Drill team. She is a member of 4-H and her hobbies include rollerskating and skiing.

Kevin Orner, son of Bill and Madeline Orner, Grantsville, is a sophomore. He plays football and his future plans include working for his father.

FSU Seniors To Exhibit Works In Roper Gallery

A collection of exhibits by two Frostburg State University graduating seniors, one from Garrett County, will be featured at the Stephanie Ann Roper Gallery this Friday, December 4, at 7:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Building.

Prints of David Athey, a native of Allegany County and William Clegg, Friendsville, showcasing their artistic development in printmaking within the department of visual arts, will be displayed.

Both men are Vietnam veterans. Athey was assigned to the military airlift command and the "Medevac" operations repair and reclamation of disabled aircraft in Vietnam. Clegg was assigned to the first marine division tank unit as a crewman and served as leader, a gunner and tank commander.

Athey's work is primarily in colorful monotypes and woodcuts, while Clegg depicts vivid black, white and gray scenes recollecting the memories he has about Vietnam. Their works are different both technically and in terms of subjects and compositions.

Athey, who is a recipient of a Maryland State Senatorial Scholarship and a President's Scholarship from FSU, was graduated summa cum laude from the Allegany Community College with an associate in arts degree in media technology. He is a former winner of the Hazen Gallery "best of show" and currently has photographs displayed in many of the local banks.

Clegg's awards include a cover design award for "Murphy's Horses," a literary magazine at Garrett County Community College, and a third prize for graphics at Lamore Community Museum, in Lamore, Calif.

The works of the two men will be on display at FSU from December 4 through December 19. For further information, persons may contact Dustin Davis, Department of Visual Arts, at the University, 689-4351.

Free Booklet On Breast Cancer Now Available

It's a disease that will strike one out of every ten women in this country and that will kill an estimated 41,000 women this year, yet breast cancer is still a frightening mystery to many women. It is also a disease which has raised many questions recently as the result of First Lady Nancy Reagan's breast cancer surgery.

To help answer those questions, the American Institute for Cancer Research is distributing a free information booklet, "Questions and Answers About Breast Lumps and Breast Cancer."

"We want to help women understand this tragic disease," noted Marilyn Gentry, executive director of the American Institute for Cancer Research. This booklet provides understandable information on breast cancer, benign breast lumps, breast self-examination and resources for more detailed information.

Ms. Gentry noted that more than 75 percent of breast cancers are still first discovered by women themselves. "That's why it's so important for women to understand breast lumps and breast cancer, and to know how to examine themselves for possible problems," she added.

Breast cancer has been a strong focus for the American Institute for Cancer Research, a national, non-profit cancer agency, because of the links between diet and breast cancer. "The American Institute for Cancer Research's dietary guidelines for lower cancer risk recommend lowering dietary fat from the current average of 40 percent of daily calories, to 30 percent or lower," Ms. Gentry pointed out. She noted that researchers believe such changes could lead to much lower incidence rates for many cancers, including breast cancer.

A free copy of the Institute's booklet, "Questions and Answers About Breast Lumps and Breast Cancer," is available by sending a stamped (29 cents postage), self-addressed, business-size envelope to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. QA11, Washington, D.C. 20009.

Tourism Stats Reflect Impact Of $6.3 Billion

An estimated 25 million tourists spent more than $2 million in Maryland in 1986, according to figures released recently by J. Randall Evans, Secretary of the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development.

"This figure represents direct tourist spending, but calculation of the 'ripple effect' shows that the actual economic and employment impact on the state was substantially greater," said Evans.

The comprehensive multi-regional analysis, used to demonstrate the importance of tourism to the state as a whole, showed that direct tourist spending generated $6.3 billion in total economic impact and provided 83,000 tourist-related jobs statewide. The multi-regional model includes estimates of the economic impact of tourism originating in one part of the state on the economies of every other region in Maryland.

To accurately evaluate the impact of tourism on Maryland's economy, the Department of Economic and Employment Development's Office of Research used an integrated multi-regional economic impact model that can track regional variations in tourism industry developments. The state was divided into eight regions, with information tabulated to illustrate how tourist spending in one area has a "ripple effect" on other regions of the state.

The complete report is available from the Office of Research, Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development, 45 Calvert Street, Annapolis, MD 21401, (301) 974-3521.

During this rush of Christmas-coming someone said to me, half-serious, half-not: "I wish Christmas came some other time; it's too busy in December!"

When is a good time for Christmas? Put another way, when are people prepared for Christmas?

One mark of a people prepared is that they are CREATIVELY PERCEPTIVE. That is, they are opened to new understanding based on new teaching and revelation of old truth.

This was the job of John-the-Baptist. He was, as the angel told his father Zechariah, "to make ready for the Lord A PEOPLE PREPARED." (Matt. 1:17) He was sent to remind the people that a "messiah is coming," and he readied them to receive new truth being poured into the context of old hopes, dreams, and prayers.

CREATIVELY PERCEPTIVE people take old values and see new truth in them; and, they also see old truth in new values.

ADVENT is old; 2000-years-old. But each Christmas new EVENTS make ADVENT more real, more special, more ADVENT.

ADVENT. Make it an EVENT by spelling ADVENT as ADVANCE.

COMING, READY OR NOT!

December 6, 1987

Background Scripture: Matthew 3:1-12.
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 40:3-11.

This has not been a good year for American Christianity—at least, not in terms of public image. This was the year of fallen idols in religious television and rampant scandal in local churches and denominational bodies alike. Christian groups have made the headlines, not with their good works, but their internal conflicts and external entanglements.

A number of groups are torn between support for and condemnation of their fallen leaders. Lots of people have been trying to determine if these various personalities are innocent "good guys" or guilty "bad guys." It would appear that the ranks of the "good guys" have been substantially thinned since January 1, 1987.

COMEBACK!

It is appropriate, then, that we bring this year to a close with the invitation for renewal that Advent always brings us: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand!" (Matthew 3:2). Literally, "repent" means to return, to come back to the covenant way of life to which we originally committed ourselves. Although some of us as Christians may have consigned these "fallen" Christian leaders to the trash heap, we need to remember that the invitation to "come back" is open to all who have sinned and fallen short of God's plan and purpose. In other words, whether we are "fallen" or "still standing" in the Christian faith, the call to repentance comes to all of us.

John the Baptist is pretty hard on the Pharisees and Sadducees who came out into the wilderness to receive baptism from him: "You brood of vipers! Who warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" (Matt. 3:7). But note that John does not tell them they came for baptism in vain. If they are truly repentant, they can be baptized. The key, of course, is repentance. And, if they are repentant, they shall show it: "Bear fruit that befits repentance" (3:8).

Perhaps you've noticed that, of all the headlines who have gotten into trouble this year—religious and secular figures alike—almost none, if any, have said publicly that they were wrong and are sorry for it. For the most part, they have claimed to be misunderstood, the victims of lies and distortions, or at worst "mistaken." Nobody has said "I was wrong and I am sorry for it" or "Yes, I lied and I regret it!"

UNFRUITFUL TREES

Yet, if we are to respond to the challenge of Advent, God's annual "Coming, ready or not!", we must all take seriously the call to repent, to come back to what all of us have in some way forsaken—even we "good guys" who have not made the headlines and the nightly TV news. With the coming of Advent, this challenge comes to each of us anew to "bear good fruit." "Even now the axe is laid to the root of the trees: every tree therefore that does not bear good fruit is cut down and thrown into the fire" (3:10).

This is the time of the year when we will hear over and over again that haunting question: "Are you ready for Christmas?" More to the point, we should be asking ourselves whether we're ready for the coming of Christ. The first step in getting "ready" is to hear the call to "repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand!"

'Different World' co-star also wrote the theme song

By Frank Lovece

Dawn Lewis, a co-star of NBC's "A Different World," America's No. 2-rated TV series, and a spinoff from "The Cosby Show," isn't used to all the attention.

Dawn Lewis

"People have been coming up to me the last couple of months asking, 'Don't I know you?' From a party or something," says Lewis, who plays Jaleesa Vinson, the older roommate of Denise Huxtable (Lisa Bonet). "And the first few times it happened, I actually stood there trying to figure out where I knew this person from. Finally it dawned on me that maybe these people had seen me on television!"

In addition to playing Jaleesa, Lewis is also co-composer of "A Different World's" theme song.

"The people who cast for Bill Cosby also cast the national tour of 'The Tap Dance Kid,'" explains the 26-year-old Lewis. She spent a year on that tour, after graduating from the University of Miami and singing in off-Broadway musicals and nightclubs. "In July '86, after the tour, I heard about their casting for Lisa Bonet's show," explains Lewis. "I sent pictures and a resume, but they were only interested in 18-year-old girls. I spent two or three months with no job, no agent."

Then one day she got a call from "Different World" music director Stu Gardner, to whom she'd sent a demo tape. "He asked if I'd like to work on the music for the show," she recalls, "and an hour later, I got a call to audition for the casting agency. And neither one had talked to the other!" Within a week and a half, she says, "I got to co-write the theme song."

The final step was to meet Cosby himself. "He started teasing me, saying (to the casting people), 'Where's that girl you want me to meet?'" Lewis recalls. "Now, this can't be her; I heard she was big and fat and ugly!" We talked about a bunch of things. Then it was time to read my 'sides' (script excerpts). During the interview, I was so nervous that I'd rolled them all up, and whenever I tried to open them, they'd snap shut! But he said, 'No, we don't have to hear her read. She's fine.'"

Husband and wife team have many varied credits

By Toni D'Amato

Whatever happened to Marge and Gower Champion, the husband and wife dance team? — T.M., Chardon, Ohio.

Gower Champion

Marge and Gower Champion married in 1947 and divorced in 1972. Marge Champion, an actress and dancer, appeared in such films as "Lovely to Look At" (1952), "The Party" (1968) and "The Cockeyed Cowboys of Calico Country" (1970).

The late Gower Champion, a dancer, actor and director, died in 1980. He starred in such films as "Till the Clouds Roll By" (1946) and "Show Boat" (1951). Gower Champion was also known for his wonderful choreography, which helped bring about the recent revival of Broadway's "42nd Street."

I seem to recall seeing Dick Tracy in a regular TV show, but I can't remember the name of it or who played Tracy. Can you help? — D.V., Binghamton, N.Y.

The famous comic-strip detective was the star of the TV show "Dick Tracy," which aired from September 1950 to the following February. Ralph Byrd, who portrayed Tracy in the series, started filling the role in the 1930s in films and serials.

Even after the short-lived TV series left the air, Byrd continued to play the famous gumshoe in new Tracy films that were made for television syndication. He died in 1952.

Actor Byrd, who was considered "the definitive screen Tracy," starred in such films as "Dick Tracy Meets Gruesome" (1947). In the early 1960s, there was also an animated "Dick Tracy" series.

I'd like addresses for "General Hospital," "All My Children" and "Loving." — C.G., James town, N.Y.

Actor Robert Walden tends to stay with his characters

By Connie Passalacqua

Robert Walden may be best known for the five seasons (1977-82) he spent playing investigative reporter Joe Rossi on the CBS series "Lou Grant." But for nearly the same length of time, Walden has been playing another Joe — Joe Waters, on Showtime's acclaimed sitcom "Brothers." The series, which focuses on three brothers, one of whom is gay, recently marked its fourth anniversary. (It airs Wednesday, Dec. 9 and Friday, Dec. 11.)

Robert Walden

"I'm proud of 'Brothers'; it's a cult hit in the industry," Walden says. "When I was on 'Lou Grant,' we handled a ton of issues, but if our show ('Brothers') broke any ground, it's to show that a gay character could be truly happy about life. Donald (a gay character played by Philip Charles MacKenzie) is probably the most adjusted character on the show."

And Walden says he's still happy to be doing a cable show, out of the spotlight prime-time television publicity business. "I think anybody who goes into this industry — any real actor — sees that as a consequence rather than a goal," says Walden. "I've had more than my share of publicity. I've been written about in the Enquirer and that whole trip. I don't miss it at all."

But Walden does keep up with the current prime-time scene; he is that rare star who wants to talk about shows other than his own. "I love 'Frank's Place,'" confides Walden. "I'm impressed with the tone, the production and the originality. I also like 'Hooperman.' These shows are originals and are going to do well. I mean, they don't do Vanna White jokes, which seven other sitcoms are doing at the same time."

On "Lou Grant," Walden played a reporter who was passionate in his concern for social justice. Off stage, he's involved with liberal politics and counts himself as a good friend of 1984 Democratic vice-presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro.

"I made four campus appearances for her," says Walden. "For two months that woman could do no wrong. As soon as she got to the top of the mountain, everyone fired. Everyone was so scared of the Prez, a man who was condoning greed and avarice on the international level for so long."

Joanna (Mary Frann) is recruited to give an historical presentation to a tour group on CBS's "Newhart." It airs Monday, Dec. 7.

SOAP OPERA WEEK

This 'Y&R' actress returns to the role her fans like

By Kimberly Redmond

I've been upset ever since "The Young and the Restless" wrote Traci Carlton, played by Beth Maitland, out of the story. When will she be back? — A.M., No. Battleford Sask., Canada.

Beth Maitland

Beth Maitland returned to "Y&R" to resurrect Traci the week before Thanksgiving, so she will be back on the air by the time you read this. Maitland left "Y&R" when contract negotiations with the soap broke down earlier this summer.

"Days of Our Lives" has gotten rid of all of the good actors who were my favorites and has turned the show into a mystery theater. Can you give me an address where I can send my complaint? — M.B., Penn Valley, Calif.

You can write to "DOOL" and the show's writers to register your complaint to "DOOL," NBC-TV, 3000 Alameda Avenue, Burbank, CA 91523. "DOOL" has lost several fan favorites, such as Debra Hall (Marlena Brady) and Gloria Loring (Liz Curtis), because the actors elected to leave the show.

Why has "General Hospital's" Dr. Steve Hardy, portrayed by John Berardino, been in a wheelchair for the past several months? — H.D., Lexington Park, Md.

John Berardino

In real life, Berardino has just returned to "GH" after undergoing back surgery. Since he was in a wheelchair previous to his surgery, Dr. Hardy had to appear in a wheelchair. There was a scene in which Hardy mentioned that he was suffering from back problems.

(Have a question about soap operas? Write Kimberly Redmond at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

PBS

Olympic skater Toller Cranston stars in PBS's "The True Gift of Christmas," a holiday fantasy about a magical journey performed on ice. It airs Monday, Dec. 7. (Check local listings.)

CINDY SAYS

Costner bats a thousand with his new movie role

By Cindy Adams

Kevin Costner, while on location in North Carolina, has been taking batting practice. The result is, the guy's become a fair ballplayer. Kevin and Susan Sarandon were in the final innings of Orion's "Bull Durham," where he plays a minor-league catcher. Ballclub manager Pete Bok, the film's technical adviser, says Kevin's equipped to be a great ballplayer. The scenes you'll see onscreen are legit. This Most Valuable Actor could be an MVP yet.

Joan Collins

she happened to have her own samples. Quicker'n you can say, "I'm no amateur," Joan shimmered in her own two-piece lacy nightgown and peignoir, and that's what you'll see on the tube. Me, I'm into Dr. Dentons.

Placido Domingo's working the new Wortham Center complex in Houston. It houses grand opera in two back-to-back theaters. One night the smaller house was into "The Abduction from the Seraglio" when on to the stage trundled Placido in the full costume of Radames from "Aida." Nice, except that "Aida" was doing its thing in the larger place. Placido asked the stunned singers: "Is this the way to 'Aida'?" After being instructed to take a left, then a right, etc., placid Placido pranced off singing the Triumphal March from the opera he was supposed to be doing next door.

Kevin Costner

Speaking of pro players brings up Joan Collins. Well, kiddies, on one "Dynasty," Joan crawls around the mattress with her new young stud, James Healey. Naturally, she's in lingerie. By some odd coincidence, Joan didn't like the studio's unmentionables, or even mentionables. By some odd coincidence,

Smith To Chair New Committee Of Health Agency

Former Cumberland Mayor F. Perry Smith has been named chairman of the newly-formed executive committee for the Maryland Health Resources Planning Commission.

The committee will have a variety of tasks, including helping local health planning groups to continue to operate without federal funds.

Among other things, the MHRPC executive committee will develop commission positions on General Assembly legislation and review program policy - such as policy for certificate of need - and develop recommendations.

Certificates of need are required before hospitals or medical groups can construct major facilities or make major renovations to existing services.

The committee will work with MHRPC Executive Director James S. Stanton, former executive director of Health Systems Agency of Western Maryland, based at Cumberland.

"We will try to streamline the whole (planning) process," and provide an oversight role for the commission, Smith said Monday.

Currently three health systems agencies, one each for Eastern and Western Maryland and Montgomery County, operate in Maryland.

HSAM is considered a model for the other agencies and the commission hopes similar groups can be re-established to serve central Maryland and Baltimore.

Those agencies died primarily because they did not have good contacts with local government and people, said Smith.

"We need grass root input" for health planning, he added.

"The Baltimore HSA didn't have community support and it fell of its own weight," Smith said.

Stanton said the commission is developing new agreements with the surviving HSAs and he expects the contracts to be signed within the next two to three weeks.

The local HSA has remained in contact with the public and local government as it develops recommendations about certificate of need applications and suggested changes to state health regulations, he said.

In spite of local acceptance, the MHRPC has experienced some legislative resistance and

A THANKSGIVING FEAST, complete with all the trimmings, was held last week by the first grade students at Broad Ford Elementary School. The dinner was a culminating activity to a unit on Pilgrims, Indians and Thanksgiving. All of the students were asked to wear costumes and to contribute to the feast, just as the Indians and Pilgrims did at the first Thanksgiving meal. The menu consisted of wild game stew, prepared by A.R. Lewis Sr.; baked corn, homemade jelly, cranberry muffins, baked squash, corn bread, apple crisp, and beverages, all provided by the students' parents. Paying a visit to one of the tepees and partaking of the meal was Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, pictured below. Following the meal, the children played Pilgrim and Indian games, which were supervised by the parents. Classes involved in the project were those of Azelma McGoldrick, Jayne Nestor, Jenny Neville, and Carole Giotteley.

Counties, City Share Cigarette, Alcohol Taxes

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says the distilled spirits, beer and cigarettes taxes his office collected during the first quarter of fiscal year 1988 (July, August and September) will provide Baltimore City and the 23 counties with $6,371,056 in shared revenue, slightly less than the amount they received for the same period last year.

The beer tax yielded $1,312,597 to the subdivisions, almost identical to the amount shared in the same quarter of fiscal year 1987. One-half of the nine cents per gallon beer tax is returned to the subdivisions, based on deliveries to local retailers.

The distilled spirits tax provided $1,220,707 to the localities, up 3.3% compared with the corresponding quarter of last year. The local subdivisions receive one-third of the $1.50 per gallon distilled spirits tax for each gallon of liquor delivered to retail licensees within their jurisdiction.

Maryland's subdivisions realized $3,837,752 from the cigarette tax or 1.1% less than the amount distributed for the same quarter of fiscal year 1987. Distribution of the cigarette tax is based on a formula returning approximately 3 cents of the 13 cents per pack tax to local jurisdictions in proportion to their population. Garrett County received $20,774.80 in tobacco tax revenue, $8,884.98 in beer tax revenue and $7,118.23 in distilled spirits tax revenue.

He said that concern generally comes from areas where HSAs have failed.

The MHRPC needs to grow but not into an entity requiring many millions of dollars, Stanton added.

State, County Population To Rise Steadily

Maryland's population is projected to reach nearly 5,000,000 by the year 2000, according to the Population Projection Reports for Maryland Subdivisions issued by the Department of State Planning's Office of Planning Data, (OPD). That figure is 7.3% greater than the 4,666,200 projected for 1990 and 18.7% higher than the actual population for the State in 1980, 4,216,975.

Garrett County's population is projected to reach 29,500 by the year 2000, compared to a 1985 figure of 26,450. It is expected to reach 27,300 by 1990, 28,400 by 1995, 30,400 by 2005, and 31,200 by 2010.

Allegany County's population is projected to drop, from 75,700 in 1985 to 72,800 by 2000, and to 72,000 by 2010.

OPD has produced three Summary Projection Reports: Population Projections for Maryland Subdivisions, Household Population Projections for Maryland Subdivisions, and Estimated and Projected Birth for Maryland Subdivisions. OPD has also released detailed projection reports covering 18 areas, including Population Projections by Age, Sex and Race and Population Projections for Selected Age Groupings.

Maryland's population is projected to grow by 10.65% during the 1980s. Maryland's accelerated growth during the 1980s is due in large measure to the strong growth, (14.22%), experienced in the counties of the Washington Suburban Region, (Montgomery and Prince George's). This region accounts for approximately 30% of the State's total population.

Other jurisdictions have contributed to this projected increase. Several counties continue the strong growth they experienced during the 1970s. Included are Howard, (48.5%); Calvert, (41.5%); Charles, (37.7%); Queen Anne's (30.5%); Carroll, (25.4%); and Frederick, (24.8%) counties.

Baltimore City is projected to experience a slower percentage decline in population for this decade compared to the previous ten year period, -5.3% vs. -13.1%.

Michel Lettre, assistant secretary of the Department of State Planning, said: "For the two year period ending in April, 1987, the State experienced a more rapid growth in population than it did for the first part of the 1980s."

From April 1985 to April 1987 the State's population increased annually by 69,000. This compares to an annual increase of 33,000 for the period 1980 to 1985. Over half the increase for the later two-year period can be attributed to migration from other states and abroad. Only 14% of the increase for the "Cabaret" To Open This Evening At Frostburg State University

by LaVerne Dixon
"Cabaret," a musical drama production that received eight Tony Awards on Broadway and eight Academy Awards as a movie, will be staged beginning this evening at Frostburg's University Theatre. Performances are set for December 3, 4 and 5 at 8:15 p.m. and December 6 at 2 p.m. in Compton auditorium.

"Cabaret" generates a "This production is an imporbalance between its music, comedy and the extremely serious aspects of drama. The plot, which takes place in Germany around the 1930's and during the rise of Nazism, is related to the life of an American novelist named Clifford Bradshaw who meets and falls in love with Sally Bowles, a nightclub singer.

tant musical in the fact that it makes a strong political statement and depicts a period of our history in which the decadence of humanity was demonstrated," says Linda McCulloch, director.

At the heart of the show is 1930's jazz, which resembles "ragtime" or "blues," elevating from an eleven piece ballroom band. Members of the jazz band will play supporting scores as if they are part of a disco-type nightclub, under the direction of music instructor George McDowell. The music is bold he says, "For the purpose of showing what cheap music sounded like, but not for the glorification of it."

There is the Kit Kat Club where everybody has a roommate . . . and some have two, and sharp color that visually overloads the eye, along with plenty of music, dancing, energy and volume. As part of the play, a master of ceremonies using outstanding gestures and voice control, will transport the audience "out of their seats and onto the stage," so to speak, to witness the schizophrenic attitudes that were present during that time in Berlin.

Ed Intemann, lighting, costume and set designer, said: "Decadence is the key word to describe what will go on behind the doors of the Cabaret. It's a sort of night life that allows one to escape the reality into a life of the fast lane. It deals with boarding houses, partying for fourteen hours straight, and then, back to partying."

This "overwhelming" play is trashy, but only to the degree of being a vehicle to explain much more important aspects, like showing the evil of decadence. "The 1930's in Berlin were similar to the 1980's in America," says Intemann, "You will see recreational drug and sex in the boarding house scenes."

"Cabaret," known as the Kit

Kat Club, reflects an environment of people who think they are of their own responsibility. It takes a look at the persecution of people and the whole idea of what happens to a person who cannot take charge of his life or anything around him, as with the character of Sally Bowles, according to McDowell.

"It's a show worth seeing because 'Cabaret' was the first musical ever to take on a serious name. Every musical preceding had sort of been a pie in the sky where everything turned out right, and the music limited only to nice songs. In 'Cabaret,' though the musical score holds its own weight, the story line is absolutely as important, that is, it marks a historical period in Germany," said McDowell. The underlying message of "Cabaret" is that the horrors of Nazism and the people who were caught in that world in 1930 cannot be forgotten. It also views how America was perceived by the Germans at that time and pictures the different perceptions on the value of humanity.

"This show is unlike most performances held at FSU," says Peter Joyce, stage manager. "It's a heavy musical production with a lot of action and movement to complement what has been done to formulate the play. The FSU Theatre will look like a million bucks."

According to McCulloch, "Cabaret" is a complicated production because of all the various aspects and ingredients that make a profound performance. "It takes tremendous skills and talent to execute the characters — and we have worked extra hard and long to train and construct those characters within the student cast," she said.

As the lyrics of the title song say, "Life is a Cabaret My Friend, Come to the Cabaret." for more information and ticket reservations, call FSU, 689-4145.

We're Hear To Help

by Pamela A. Martin, CCCA

HEAVY INTERFERENCE

One way that the hearing impaired person can help himself is to situate himself away from interfering noises. This is a simple yet effective way to assure better hearing. Because how well a person hears depends largely on his distance from a sound, he should position himself as closely as possible to a sound source. This also means sitting as far as possible from kitchen and bathroom noises. Water is one of the worst interference noises. It makes a "white" noise which blocks out or masks nearly all speech sounds. Wind noise has much the same effect. Other troublesome interference noises include those from fans, microwave ovens, radios, TV's, and heavy traffic. These noises should be avoided whenever possible.

Another way for hearing impaired individuals to help themselves is to come to ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES. We invite you to come in today and learn more about the technology of modern day hearing assist devices. Depending upon your problem and needs, such devices offer a means of enjoying the day-to-day sounds that are so important to your enjoyment of life.

To minimize interfering noises, sit in a corner or along walls in noisy rooms.

The Way Of Acupuncture

by Sherry Frantz

"Medical theory has no dogma, no truth in and of itself. It is merely used to describe observed phenomena. If new clinical data proves that a certain disease is caused by a hormonal imbalance rather than a virus, the theory changes accordingly. The Chinese have always had this pragmatic attitude toward healing..."

So stated Kenneth Cohen in his article, "Channeling the Breath of Life," published in an issue of Yoga Journal. Cohen was referring to the 5,000-year-old practice of traditional acupuncture, whose principles are based on a holistic form of healing and whose purpose is to restore and maintain the balance of the physical body.

The traditional acupuncturist adheres to the Taoist view that man is a microcosm within a macrocosm (the universe) and that all things in man and nature are related. One part is inexorably intertwined with another. Therefore, when one part is out of balance, the whole system is affected.

Acupuncture treatment, then, is based on the contention that illness or other physical problems result in an imbalance in these parts. According to the theory of acupuncture, a flow of energy, life-force or "Chi" travels through the body via 12 meridians or pathways. Acupuncture attempts to assist nature when that flow of energy is out of balance or dysfunctional. When brought into balance, the body (an energy system) is then free to return to good health.

Pain is one symptom of an imbalance, and, although acupuncture has received acclaim in its ability to control pain, there has been much documented success in the treatment of many diseases and maladies. Most acupuncturists, however, believe that the most valuable claim of this common-sense system is that of energizing the body so that it can cure itself.

Acupuncture, then, treats the whole body, the whole person. It is a "person-centered" rather than a "disease-centered" system of healing.

William Wadsworth, a registered traditional acupuncturist, has recently begun a practice in Garrett County, and explains that, in acupuncture, it is an underlying weakness that is treated, not the symptoms. The symptom is viewed as merely a message from the mind and body that there is an imbalance in the pathways or meridians.

Wadsworth stresses that the benefits of acupuncture reach beyond the healing of the physical body into the emotional and mental self, establishing a feeling of well-being, a "joie de vivre."

The diagnostic process is a crucial first step in the system wherein the practitioner gathers such significant data as the patient's feelings, personal and family history and physical condition. He also takes clues from such factors as skin color, odors emitted from the body and pulses which correlate with each of the 12 meridians. In short, the acupuncturist's task in diagnosis of a patient is to see, to hear, to ask and to feel.

Diagnostic procedures indicate the degree and kind of energy imbalances in any given case, which meridians are carrying excess energy and which have a shortage. It is believed that an excess or deficiency of energy in one meridian will influence the functions of every other meridian.

During the course of a traditional acupuncture treatment, very fine, hair-like needles are inserted at specific points along the meridians. The needle is used to stimulate or to disperse the energy of the meridian. Rarely, is there ever any more than a slight sensation associated with this procedure.

Wadsworth uses the finest needles available. In addition, he uses only disposable needles — to allay the fears of anyone who might be wary of the transmission of diseases through the needles.

Generally, the longer a physical ailment has been present before a patient begins acupuncture treatments, the longer the treatment required and the more difficult and problematic it is.

While it has not specifically and/or satisfactorily been scientifically explained as to why acupuncture works, there is much that is inherently logical — and biological — that supports its use. For example, an imbalance in the liver is sometimes manifested in the symptom of depression. This makes sense, biologically, given that the liver releases glycogen into the bloodstream, and a symptom of low-blood sugar is depression.

And in the case of angina pectoris, a typical acute pain shoots down the inside of the arm to the little finger. This follows the path of the heart meridian.

If the human organism is viewed as a microcosm within the macrocosm of nature, then it makes sense that there is a set of correlations between man and nature. For instance, a storm in nature is the equivalent of anger or a tantrum in a human being.

Thus we have a system that is humanistic in orientation, and has long confounded the scientific community. The life energy (Chi) that circulates through the meridians of the body is an unseen force, just as the force behind a fallen apple is not seen. But, because the effect is seen, scientists know, through the law of physics, that a force is also present.

earth

The Western practice of treating diseases is, in part, "quantitative" while Eastern medicine treats in a more "qualitative" manner, concerning itself with the qualities of an organism. The Western world tends to think in terms of parts whereas Eastern philosophy is based on the concept of an organism as an entity.

According to Fritjof Capra, in The Tao of Physics, "In ordinary life, we are not aware of this unity of all things, but divide the world into separate objects and events. This decision is, of course, useful and necessary to cope with our everyday environment, but it is not a fundamental feature of reality. It is an abstraction devised by our discriminating and categorizing intellect."

This unity is further described in the Yin and Yang, two aspects of Chi's energy, that are opposites in nature yet dependent on one another for either to function fully and healthily.

wood

We tend to think either one or the other of the opposites exists, rather than of both being present with one aspect manifesting more than the other at a given moment.

The duality of Yin-Yang, for example, is witnessed in the concepts of inside and outside and day and night. While they are opposites, one cannot exist without the other.

water — are, according to Eastern medical thought, re-created in man, and each organ in the body is assigned to one of the elements. Just as nature outside ourselves is going through its natural process of fire

change, so the nature within ourselves follows the same patterns. Humans intuitively go through the cycle of the seasons within themselves.

Everything in life is concordant with these elements, according to the traditional acupuncturist. It should be noted that philosophical as well as agricultural thought has also been based on the cycles of the five elements.

Each element is ever-present and ever-basic to life, and the interaction of the five elements brings harmony and order — in nature as in man.

Acupuncture is currently practiced most effectively in China where there is an advantage of knowledge accumulated over thousands of years. The present government there has taken the attitude that if it works, it should be studied and applied, even at the risk of shaking up established scientific theory.

More and more, acupuncture is being accepted by Western practitioners, not only as an adjunct to Western medicine, but as a distinct and valid alternative method of healing.

Kenneth Cohen, again, provides an apt expression of the healer's role in the life and health of every human being when he says, "True healers, whatever their belief system or culture of origin, must be open-minded and compassionate. They must be willing to adapt their theory and treatment to the patient, for their goal is not to defend their culture or beliefs, but to relieve human suffering."

Seven area physicians are currently referring patients to William Wadsworth for treatment. Dr. George M. Stoltzfus and Dr. Margaret Kaiser are his supervising physicians.

State Launches Project Against Teen Pregnancy

"You Can Go Further When You Don't Go All The Way," is the title of a new campaign against teenage pregnancy launched this week by Adele Wilzack, R.N., M.S., secretary of the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene.

The statewide media campaign, a cooperative effort between the public and private sectors, is designed to encourage young people to delay premature sexual activity. The campaign is part of a comprehensive program aimed at tackling the serious problem of teen pregnancy in Maryland, Wilzack said.

"This campaign illustrates a creative approach to a difficult and controversial problem," said Wilzack. "Sexuality is an issue that many of us would prefer to sweep under the carpet," she said. "The fact is that our teenagers are engaging in sexual activity."

Over 8,000 teenagers had babies in Maryland in 1986 and many more are sexually active, she said. Teenagers are more likely to give birth to premature and low birth weight babies, to give birth out of wedlock and to receive inadequate prenatal care.

The media campaign is a multi-faceted, multi-year program designed to motivate young people to delay having sex until they are socially and emotionally mature. The campaign will encourage young people to finish school and have steady jobs before assuming the responsibilities of parenting.

Components of the campaign will include:

- *Posters carrying these messages: "Make Sex a Game and It'll Make You a Loser," "Sometimes Scoring is Nothing to Cheer About," "An Unwanted Pregnancy is a Crying Shame"
- *A song based on the theme: "Teen Alert" — a 24-hour counseling referral and information telephone line;
- *Brochures detailing the program designed to involve the community;
- *A television commercial and music video;
- *T-shirts and buttons with the slogan, "I Don't Mess Around."

The Baltimore-based national advertising agency of Richardson, Myers and Donofrio, Inc. created and produced the advertising campaign which is the first phase of the program to be funded cooperatively by the state and the Maryland business community.

The campaign hopes to raise $1 million annually for the next five years to continue the effort.

First United Honors Students For Top Scores On Citizenship Test

A number of students from Northern and Southern high schools were honored last week at assemblies sponsored by the First United National Bank & Trust.

The students were so honored for having made a perfect score on the Maryland Functional Citizenship Test. Each received a hard-back thesaurus on behalf of First United.

Awardees from Northern High School were: Sherri Beachy, Michael Bishoff, Stacy Bray, Clay Carleton, Julie Durst, Tracy Fazenbaker, Rajia Fisher, Amy Foley, Mary Georg, Carla Graham, Jerry Harris, Jodi Hershberger, Scott Kahl, Phillip Kisner, Wesley Loar, Melody Martin, Sheldon Maust, Anthony McGee, Michael Menges, Robert Merkel, Lori Minick, David Sisler, Jessica Towers, Eugene VanSickle, Pamela Wilburn, David Worley, David Yoder, and Brock Yommer.

Those honored at Southern High School were: Gina Alexander, Frances Bachtel, Ethan Bever, Deborah Blamble, Angela Carney, Stacy Clary, Chad Fike, Michael Friend, John Hetrick, Michael Hornyak, Christopher Lambert, Sanjeev Magoon, Kimberly Marley, Donald Mason, Allen Reams, and Tara Wildesen.

Of the 132 sophomores at Northern who took the test, 124, or 93 percent, passed, which was a nine percent improvement over Northern's scores the previous year.

At Southern, 247 sophomores took the test, with 202, or 82 percent, of them passing, which was 10 percent higher than the state average pass rate.

The Citizenship test is one of four functional tests required of Maryland students in order to qualify for a high school diploma. The other three are reading, writing, and math.

The Citizenship Test is divided into three areas: Constitutional Government; Principles, Rights and Responsibilities; and Politics and Political Behavior.

The Constitutional Government portion includes the federal system of national, state and local government; qualifications and duties of government officials; the law-making process; and the three branches of the federal government. The Principles, Rights and Responsibilities segment includes rights of citizenship guaranteed by the Bill of Rights, plus the benefits of a system of written laws and responsibilities of citizens. Politics and Political Behavior concentrates on the two-party system and the process by which persons are elected to office.

MOVING DAY!

Once you decide to purchase a home, what else must be done before moving day? Perhaps, you've thought there were two steps - 1) apply for a loan, and 2) wait!

Not so. Purchasing a home is a complex process which begins with signing an agreement to purchase the home and ends with moving day. During the intervening time, however, attention to many details is essential.

Before making application for a mortgage loan, it is necessary to gather detailed credit information such as names, addresses and account numbers of creditors, along with amounts owed.

After loan application, an appraisal will be ordered on the home. Your real estate agent will coordinate the appraisal, as well as ordering a termite inspection when required.

There will be numerous other contacts which are monitored by your agent between the lender, the closing attorneys, inspection companies, insurance agents, the local tax office, the title insurance company and others.

Then, as the closing date approaches, a survey must be ordered, a final walk-through inspection performed, and minor repairs made.

Your agent will be in constant touch with all parties to assure a smooth closing of your purchase. Then comes moving day!

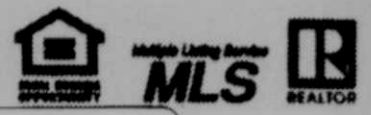

If you need information to help you solve a real estate puzzle, call us at 387-5303. We'll be happy to share our knowledge with you at no cost or obligation.

MDA Dedicates Demeter Statue, Ag's Symbol

A formal dedication ceremony of the sculpture of Demeter, the mythical goddess of agriculture gracing the front entrance drive of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, is being held today at 3 p.m. at the Department.

Three original sculptures, symbolizing agriculture, have been created specifically for Maryland's Department of Agriculture complex, and are now in place along the crescent driveway at the front of the main building.

Demeter, a reclining, pregnant figure holding the traditional staff of life and mystic basket, symbolizes agriculture. Her basket overflows with the grains, fruits, and flowers of Maryland.

Companion sculptures of two cows recline at the entrance and exit of the main drive. Symbolizing productivity, the cow is one of Demeter's favorite animals.

Funded in the amount of $75,000 by the Maryland State Arts Council, the sculptures were created by Raymond S. Kasey who was selected from five finalists chosen after a regional search in Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C. Final selection of the artist was made by a five member jury representing MDA, the architect who designed the building, and the agricultural community.

Demeter, or Ceres, was beloved by man in Greek and Roman mythology for her love of the earth and its living things, both animals and plants.

Legend has it that when Demeter's daughter Persephone, was abducted by Hades, lord of the underworld, Demeter turned her attention from the earth, roaming the world in disguise in a desperate search for Persephone. While she grieved, the grain rotted in the fields, the ground froze, and all things growing died. Zeus (Jupiter) recognized the gravity of the situation and arranged a compromise: Persephone's time would be shared between her mother, Demeter, and the underworld. And thus was created winter, a time of darkness and cold, while Demeter mourned, and spring, a time of rebirth when Persephone rejoined her mother.

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Rep. Byron Hosts Congressional Subcommittee Dairy Field Hearing

That the Dairy Termination Program had been somewhat effective in controlling surplus milk production, but had not been regionally balanced, seemed to be a consensus of the state's dairymen and representatives from all sectors of the dairy industry — from farm organizations and ag education institutions to government administrators — at a recent Congressional field hearing held in Westminster. The November 2 hearing, held by the House Subcommittee on Livestock, Dairy and Poultry, was chaired by U.S. Representative Charles Stenholm and sponsored by Maryland Congresswoman Beverly Byron.

On hand to testify was Henry A. Schmidt, director of Marketing and Agricultural Development for the Maryland Department of Agriculture. "The dairy herd program has, by our observation, generally achieved what it was designed to do," Schmidt said. "That is, it has reduced short-term milk production and taken cows out of the production cycle that might otherwise have contributed to herd expansion."

Schmidt told the group that 115, or about five percent, of Maryland's dairymen submitted bids which were accepted into the program, and consequent to this, there has been approximately a seven percent reduction in cow numbers and milk production. "We have been informed that more milk is now being shipped from this area towards the south, thereby improving the local supply/demand situation," he added.

Although the Dairy Termination Program appears to have been successful in the short term, Schmidt said he remains concerned about the long-range outlook for dairy farmers. "Minimizing federal involvement in agricultural commodity markets is a goal worth pursuing, but only with the understanding that it cannot be done overnight," he said. "We would caution against making rapid and severe changes that would cause hardship for farmers who have made business decisions which were based on current government programs," he told the subcommittee.

Speaking on behalf of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Secretary and General Manager Paul E. Hand told the subcommittee that "surplus" Middle Atlantic milk production is non-existent, unlike mid-west and far-west markets.

Stating that, nationally, favorable production and sales trends have rendered the USDA estimate of 1988 Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC) purchases of surplus dairy products a "close call" with respect to the five billion pound "trigger level" contained in the 1985 Farm Bill, he added, however, that there is now more general agreement among dairy economists that the current $11.10 per hundredweight U.S. milk support price will be reduced further on January 1, 1988, to balance longer-run dairy supplies and sales.

"For the foregoing reasons, ADC urgently requests that this subcommittee recommend to the Secretary of Agriculture that he resolve these economic uncertainties in favor of the milk producer and not reduce the support price by an additional $.50 per hundredweight on January 1," he testified.

In explanation, Hand said that since December 1, 1983, the effective U.S. support price for milk has been reduced by $2 per hundredweight, or by 15 percent. Since 1983, milk producers have also financed a substantial part of the cost of two major "self-help" programs designed to reduce milk supplies. In addition, all milk producers are paying $15 per hundredweight to finance national, regional and local dairy promotion programs.

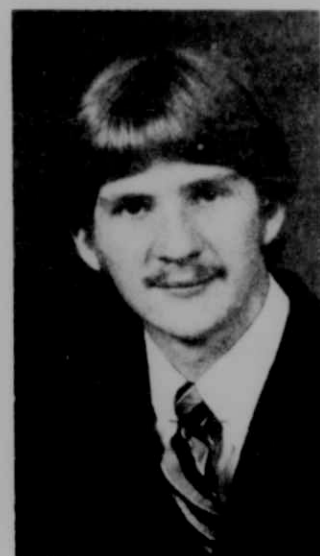

The combined result of these factors has been to dramatically increase dairy sales and to reduce surplus milk production. Accordingly, large reductions in CCC surplus purchases and associated taxpayer expenses have been achieved.

Gary Brauning, a Carroll County dairyman and representative of Dairyman, Inc., told the subcommittee that dairy farming has many pluses in his county. "Dairy farming avails itself to persons of both sexes and almost any age to productively participate," he said.

His second point was that a reasonably well managed dairy farm, whether large or small, with a five or six-year alfalfa, corn, wheat, crop rotation; with severe slopes, hills, swamps and hard to drain or cultivate lands in permanent pasture; with the proper number of animal units and intelligent usage of all waste materials, can provide veal, dairy, beef, and the full gamut of milk products for a growing population.

At the same time, he says, the dairy farm keeps to the barest minimum possible, air pollution, chemical contamination of both soil and ground water reserves, while it simultaneously prevents excessive sediment run off to contaminate either

Hauser Is Member Of Nat. Winning Debate Team

Terry Hauser, of Eglon, W.Va., was a member of the four-person team of West Virginia University agriculture education students who took first place in a national debate contest in Kansas City, Mo., in early November.

Hauser, the son of Jerry and Barbara Hauser, is a senior at WVU, majoring in agriculture education. He will begin as a student teacher of ag mechanics at Keyser, W.Va., Vo-Tech on February 1. He is a graduate of East Preston High School and holds a two-year degree from Potomac State College.

The subject of the debate was "The Disadvantages of the Supervised Occupational Experience Program (SOEP)." Other members of the first-place national team were: Mary Harvey, Morgantown, W.Va.; Darrel Frazier, Elizabeth, W.Va.; and Tom Hart, Grafton, W.Va. The four represented WVU at the national convocation of Alpha Tau Alpha, an agricultural education honorary, November 9 through 13. They were accompanied to Kansas City by assistant professor Kerry S. Odell of the WVU College of Agriculture and Forestry.

Corn, Soybean Yield Forecasts Released

The November 1 forecast of Maryland's 1987 corn yield is 78 bushels per acre, five bushels above last year's yield. Corn production at 36.3 million bushels is 14 percent below the 1986 production of 42.3 million bushels.

Soybean yield, at 24 bushels per acre, is three bushels below 1986's 27 bushel average yield. Soybean production is forecast at 9.84 million bushels, seven percent below the 1986 production of 10.53 million bushels.

The ice cream industry employs 18,000 people, with an annual payroll of $313.5 million.

Field Hearing

prices. We must look at legislation on a regional basis to be equitable to dairy farmers. It is a must to have products produced as near the market place as possible in order to assure the consumer fresh, wholesome products at a fair and equitable price."

Also testifying was Walter Martz, a dairy farmer from Frederick and assistant secretary/treasurer of the National Milk Producers Federation, and president of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Association.

Martz said he is pleased with the tremendous accomplishments evident in the dairy program. "No commodity program in the entire farm bill can show the progress in terms of both surplus reduction and government cost savings that we have seen in the dairy program. It is an enviable record and one which deserves greater attention, both as a tribute to Congress and to the hard work and sacrifice of the nation's dairy farmers in making the program a success."

In review, Martz said that since the inception of the DTP, milk production has dropped below year-earlier levels every month. "During fiscal year 1987, milk production dropped 2.5 percent below fiscal year 1986. Milk cow numbers are six percent below a year earlier and are at the lowest levels on record.

DAIRY FIELD HEARING — A crowd of dairy farmers, farm organization representatives, government administrators, and educators testified at a Congressional subcommittee field hearing November 2 sponsored by Representative Beverly Byron

"With milk production declining and the dairy farmer-funded milk promotion efforts helping to boost consumption, dairy program purchases by the CCC, on a milk equivalent basis, have dropped dramatically. After reaching 13.2 billion pounds — or about nine percent of total production — in calendar year 1985, government purchases dropped to 10.6 billion pounds in calendar year 1986, during the initial stages of the DTP. That reflects a 19 percent drop in purchases in one year.

"Now that the DTP has run its course, the results are even more dramatic. During FY 1987, USDA purchased just 5.4 billion pounds, more than a 50 percent reduction from the 12.3 billion pounds purchased during FY 1986.

"While we are pleased with the positive results of the Dairy Termination Program, there is nonetheless great concern among many dairy farmers over the possibility of further erosion in milk support prices as a result of the CCC trigger levels established in the 1985 farm bill. Despite the excellent results to date, we are concerned that there may be a reduction in the support price of $50 per hundredweight on January 1, 1988, which would lower the support price to $10.60, is USDA projects CCC purchases in 1988 in excess of five billion pounds milk equivalent.

"Our projections indicate that surplus removals will be near the five billion pound mark for 1988, but unfortunately there is no objective mechanism to deal with the trigger. If USDA reduces the support price and removals turn out to be less than five billion pounds for the calendar year, the department will simply claim that removals were lower because of the price cut."

Agreeing with the general consensus, Baltimore County dairyman Wayne L. Armacost said that by looking strictly at numbers, "It is obvious the Dairy Termination Program has been successful. Fourteen thousand less dairy farms and one and one-half million animals that will never generate milk for the U.S. market are hard clad figures that speak for themselves. This is equated to approximately 1.5 billion pounds of milk today and its genetic potential for the future. "It must be remembered, when we are evaluating the Dairy Termination Program, that dairy farmers themselves have paid for approximately 40 percent of the two billion dollar program. Quite often the public is given the idea, by the media especially, that the tax payers are footing the entire bill."

Armacost continued by saying that the bright spot in the dairy industry today certainly is the increase of sales of fluid milk and other dairy products. "I'm convinced that the dairyman's commitment to advertising is paying off and they are to be commended for that. Other segments of agriculture have watched this program closely and are judging its strengths and weaknesses to see if it could be beneficial to them," he testified.

Also speaking on the benefits of the promotion provision was Monrovia dairy farmer Jesse Burall, representing the Pennmarva Dairyman's Federation. In review, he said that a new era in milk advertising, promotion and education was initiated with Congressional passage of the 1983 Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act.

"This legislation has had a major, positive impact on the entire dairy industry as it provided funding for an effective sales and consumption building program for milk and milk products. "The legislation was needed to unify America's dairy industry and its many promotion efforts," he said. "Under the provisions of the legislation, all dairy farmers across the United States are now investing in an effort that will benefit everyone. One strength of the program is that we are all investing the same rate — $15 per hundredweight. The split of the assessment, with 10 cents going to qualified state or regional promotion organizations, and five cents going to the National Dairy Promotion and Research Board (NDB), has been an effective means of serving the local market needs as well as national priorities of the U.S. dairy industry."

Two negative aspects of the Dairy Termination Program were pointed out by Samuel Foard, a Harford County farmer who participated in the whole herd buyout. Foard is also a member of the Maryland Agriculture Commission. The most negative aspect, he said, was that participation was heaviest in areas of shortest supply. He also noted that not only did it (DTP) remove animals that produce milk, it removed the producers of more animals, making, in effect, a double impact.

This was followed up by comments by Millard E. Crum Jr., a dairy farmer from Walkersville, who agreed that "slaughtering good cows is not the same as idling acres. Their production and potential is gone forever, the acre — you just plant again."

Crum also told the subcommittee, "When you run a farmer out of business you still haven't eliminated his production because in the vast majority of cases, his cows and acres are absorbed by neighbors and thus the production is still there to haunt you. It's different than any other business. So I would urge that cutting the price not be used for supply management. We need a profitable price. We need supply management and the cost of supply management should be part of the cost of doing business."

Maryland farm organizations were represented at the hearing by written testimony from Jack Matthews, national affairs director for the Maryland Farm Bureau, and the presence of Alan L. Brauer, master of the Maryland State Grange.

Matthews told the subcommittee that Farm Bureau policy favors "a system where the price support level would be automatically adjusted according to the amount of net dairy products purchased by the federal government. This policy of tying prices to the market-place would render a more permanent solution."

Brauer, who is also a Frederick County dairyman and a member of the Maryland Agriculture Commission, said that as a result of the 1983 Dairy Diversion Program, the Maryland State Grange adopted the policy which stated that any program to curtail or reduce milk production would have to be done on a regional basis.

The State Grange, he said, believes that the Dairy Termination Program, just ended, was of limited success in reducing milk production and herd numbers. "We strongly believe that further reductions in the milk price support will cripple the dairy industry on the east coast. We firmly believe that some additional provisions or another supply management program needs to be adopted in advance of any national increase in milk production which incorporates regional considerations based on production costs and market availability," he concluded.

Added testimony, complete with study results, was presented by University of Maryland professors, Dr. Earl Brown, Agricultural and Resource Economics, assisted by Mary Donaldson; Dr. John Wyssong, Agricultural and Resource Economics; Dr. Scott Barao, Livestock Extension Specialist; and Dr. E. Kim Cassel, Dairy Extension Specialist.

Representative Byron's aide, Bobbi Kienast, said that the hearing was very helpful in helping Congress evaluate how the Dairy Termination Program went, and said that the information will all be taken into consideration in the future. There is no particular pending legislation at this time, she said, and added that Congress will not consider another major farm bill until 1989. "We sense," Kienast said, "that it won't be necessary to repeat the Dairy Termination Program."

States Urged To Go With Pesticide Labeling Program

Although it delayed the federal program to restrict pesticide use in some areas to protect endangered species, the Environmental Protection Agency is urging states to go ahead with their own programs next year, reports the American Farm Bureau Federation.

The AFBF opposes that approach and has urged state Farm Bureaus to contact their state pesticide agencies and register their opposition to state implementation of the program. AFBF says the reasons for the federal delay, including the inaccuracy of the habitat maps for the rare plants and animals, are just as valid for the states.

"We have serious reservations about any program that is based on severely flawed information, which does not follow appropriate statutory procedures and which is contrary to AFBF policy," said John Rademacher, AFBF general counsel.

Rademacher said state implementation would be an apparent violation of the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act, which says that states cannot impose labeling or packaging requirements that are in addition to or different from federal standards.

Late last month, EPA announced that it would postpone the planned February start of the endangered species pesticide labeling program under pressure from Farm Bureau and members of Congress. At that time it appeared that the program had been shelved indefinitely, although it was clear some version of the program would someday take effect.

However, according to a letter sent by EPA Assistant Administrator John Moore to state pesticide agencies, the program could take effect in some states next year and in most states, "Implementation can occur in 1989."

Moore said that for some states with only a few endangered species in a limited number of counties, "field implementation in 1988 may be a realistic goal." He said that Pennsylvania, "with but one endangered species in two counties," had informed him that it would go ahead with the program in 1988. "For others this may not be a realistic option," Moore said.

Moore said that EPA has reviewed draft county maps identifying areas where pesticide use restrictions would apply. The EPA review and comments received by the agency from states "clearly indicate that major work is still required," Moore said. "There simply is not enough time to address and resolve each issue in the next two months."

Moore told the state agencies that "the need to review and correct draft maps so they are accurate is obvious." He said when the states complete reviewing the maps, and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service concurs with changes, EPA will revise and print new maps.

Moore urged the states to solicit public comment on their programs and he said EPA would do the same for the revised federal program.

Meanwhile, the Maryland Natural Heritage Program's latest report, after a year's review of hundreds of species for designation as threatened, endangered, or in need of conservation, designates 101 endangered and 28 threatened plant species; 33 endangered and five threatened animal species; as well as 20 species of wildlife in need of conservation in the state of Maryland.

BRUSH KILLER APPROVED FOR DORMANT SPRAY

Labeled earlier this year for foliar application to control brush and weeds in permanent pastures, Crossbow is now approved for dormant stem, basal, and cut stump treatments. Crossbow is produced by Dow Chemical. It controls a wide range of problem weeds and brush species, including multiflora rose, without harming most grasses. The prime advantage of the label addition is that dormant control enables a farmer to treat when he has the time to do it. Major precaution is that a dormant application not be done when a snow cover is present.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE 1986 TAX REFORM ACT

Income Shifting: Shifting income to children to reduce the tax rate paid has been curtailed. After this year, if a child uses his personal exemption, it is not available to the parent. Only one exemption per person will be allowed.

Retirement: Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) are still deductible for most farmers up to $2,250 (including non-working wife). But, IRA deductions are eliminated or restricted for persons covered by employer retirement programs.

Insurance: 25% of the cost of health insurance will be deductible by self-employed persons, which includes most farmers.

Social Security Numbers: All children listed as dependents on 1987 tax returns who are five years of age or older must have a Social Security number.

Income Averaging: This is no longer available for any taxpayer after the 1986 tax year.

BEE TIPS

Protect the hive from mice or other intruders by covering the entrance with wire mesh that allows free movement for the bees. Any break in routine or environment can stress the bees to the point where normal activity is impossible. Bees thrive only in a rigidly structured environment.

Allow rain water to drain by tilting the colonies slightly forward. Excess water during the winter will create too much humidity and stress the bees.

Secure the hive lid so it won't blow off in winter winds. Don't worry about snow covering the hives. Snow can be a good insulator for the bees inside.

Leave a tiny space at the top for air and moisture to escape. Placing a thumbtack under one corner of the lid will be enough.

Dry Winds Mark End Of Season

During the week ended November 22, cool, dry winds blew across Maryland. There was an average of 3.8 days suitable for fieldwork according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Topsoil moisture was adequate overall. Subsoil moisture averaged short to adequate.

The condition of soybeans was fair to poor, mostly fair. Soybeans were 85 percent harvested, 10 percent ahead of normal. The corn for grain harvest was 98 percent complete, one percent ahead of normal.

The fall planting of wheat and rye was 97 percent and 98 percent complete, respectively, both equal to the normal pace. The fall planting of barley and oats was 100 percent complete, the same as average. The condition of small grains remains good to fair, mostly good.

During the week ended November 29, all of Maryland received some precipitation. There were an average of 4.6 days suitable for fieldwork according to the Maryland Agricultural Statistics Service. Topsoil moisture supplies ranged from adequate to surplus, mostly adequate overall. Subsoil moisture was adequate to short, mostly adequate.

The condition of soybeans in the field remained fair to poor, mostly fair. Soybeans were 90 percent harvested, equal to the normal pace. The corn for grain harvest was 99 percent completed, the same as average.

The fall planting of wheat and rye was 99 percent completed, equal to the normal pace for both crops. The condition of small grains remained fair to good, mostly good. Some small grains had turned yellow from lack of moisture and herbicide carryover.

This is the final Maryland Crop-Weather Report for 1987. The next Maryland Crop-Weather Report will be in April 1988.

Weather

Weather for the week ending November 27 had slightly above normal temperatures with very light precipitation. However, weekend precipitation was quite heavy. Temperatures for the week averaged 43.6 degrees, 0.7 degree below the normal 44.3 degree average for this week. Low temperatures ranged from the mid teens to mid 20s west of the Bay to the mid 20s on the shore. Precipitation averaged a light 0.07 inch ranging from zero to 0.22 inch. Precipitation for the weekend was heavy.

Turkey Breeding Operation Comes To West Virginia

West Virginia Governor Arch Moore announced last week that British United Turkeys of America will locate a $7 million breeding farm in Greenbrier County, W.Va.

British United officials presented Moore and W.Va. Agriculture Commissioner Gus Douglass with two live turkeys, which were taken to the state's wildlife farm in Upshur County.

British United, which has been in the turkey breeding business for 25 years, selected West Virginia for its new operation because the state offers the isolation to keep the birds free from disease, said John Gascoyne, the company's division manager.

According to Gov. Moore, the move was made possible with a $164,720 Appalachian Regional Commission grant, and the state's pledge to spend $41,180 to build two roads to the farm.

The operation, which will be located near Lewisburg, W.Va., will start with 70 employees, and expand to 100 within the next year, according to Gascoyne.

To maintain the integrity of the company's breeding stock, Gascoyne said British United will import turkey eggs from its farms in England to Greenbrier County.

British United currently has five percent of the $30 million

North America turkey breeding market, and the firm is interested in expanding that percentage share, Gascoyne said. The company also provides two-thirds of the breeding turkeys outside of North America.

"Turkey is the fastest growing sector in the food market," Gascoyne said. "It has seen a 15 percent growth per year in the past couple of years because turkey meat is low in fat and high in protein."

Oakland Agway Elects Local Member Committee

Members of the Oakland Unit of Agway held their local annual meeting at the West Salisbury, Pa., Fire Hall and elected three farmers to the store's member committee.

Elected to three-year terms were: Dorsey Guard, Cecil Bittinger and Arlen W. Maust.

Member committees are responsible for guiding local management, evaluating the store's service to members and other customers, and nominating candidates to the 18-member Agway board of directors.

A report covering the Oakland store's operations for the past fiscal year was given by William Bowman, manager/representative.

Agway Inc., a farm supply and food marketing cooperative, is owned by 101,000 member-stockholders and serves agriculture in 12 northeastern states with headquarters in Syracuse, N.Y.

Deere & Company Presents Series On Tillage Practices

Tillage systems, their cost, their performance, fertilizers needed, and the results of new research, are some of the topics in this series of articles on tillage printed by Deere & Company of Moline, Ill. Gordon D. Tjelmeland, agricultural product information specialist with Deere & Company, says that misconceptions persist about tillage and agricultural chemical practices, and that the most current data has shed new light on the matter. In printing the series of articles, Tjelmeland says, Deere & Company hopes to provide sensible, balanced, straightforward information that people can put to good use.

The following is the fifth in a series of six articles from Deere & Company scientists and technicians.

"IF YOU WANT SOIL COMPACTION, WORK FIELDS WET," SAYS DEERE EXPERT

Soil compaction has been a concern among agriculturalists, and there are misconceptions about it, says Dr. Lyle Stephens, a Deere & Company engineer specializing in soil mechanics.

The concern has grown as problems have appeared where they didn't exist before, as equipment has gotten larger and farming practices have changed. Today, soil scientists like Stephens are shedding new light on the matter.

"Some farmers think that tillage causes most of the compaction in their fields, but this is usually not true, for a number of reasons," Stephens says. "Soils tend to be fairly dry at the time they are being tilled, so they aren't easily compacted. Also, the tillage itself breaks up compaction in the upper soil levels where it often occurs."

"Fall chisel plowing, ideally in dry conditions, can do much to break up compacted soils. Deep moldboard plowing can also be an ideal way to break up compaction in the top 12 inches of soil."

"The main thing is to know your own fields, their compaction status and requirements for proper care."

Ideally, soil is about 50 percent pore space. Under perfectly balanced conditions, the pore space would be about 50-50 air and water. Soil compaction upsets this balance. Compaction usually starts at the surface and extends down through the soil. An outside pressure such as a combine tire forces soil particles closer together. That compaction reaches down to depths determined by pressure, total load, and soil moisture.

When soil is wet it compacts more easily because the water between soil particles acts as a lubricant, allowing them to move against each other more easily. Less outside pressure is required to squeeze the particles together.

Although almost any soil can be compacted tightly with enough pressure, compaction occurs most easily in soil having high clay content or a mixture of clay, silt and sand.

Compaction can be a serious problem because heavy wheel traffic can reduce or eliminate root growth in 60 percent of the upper 12 inches of a clay loam soil. Forcing soil particles tightly together eliminates the pore space needed by plant roots if they are to penetrate the soil effectively so they can draw forth moisture and nutrients.

By contrast, a balanced soil structure allows air, water and roots to move freely through the soil, creating a healthy environment for micro-organisms and plant life.

PROBLEM: WORKING FIELDS TOO WET TOO EARLY

"The time pressures of large-scale farming often force farmers to work soils during less than ideal conditions," Stephens says. "One part of a large field may be in excellent condition, while another part is still too wet. With today's more powerful equipment, a farmer can go ahead and work those wet areas. And in order to keep on schedule, he does."

"If you want soil compaction, work your fields wet," Stephens says. "Part of the soil compaction problem has developed as farmers have moved to earlier and earlier planting dates."

"The problem can be serious even with no-till. The no-till farmer is forced to go out in the early spring and pull a heavy planter loaded down with seed, fertilizers and chemicals through fields that are often too wet to work, particularly with heavy equipment. To make it even worse, the soil dries more slowly because of the heavy surface residue present with no-till."

Research studies back up what Stephens says. An Illinois study has shown that both no-till and reduced tillage systems exhibit more soil compaction than conventional tillage. A 10-year Minnesota comparison of tillage systems on clay loam has also shown greater soil density (compaction) with no-till.

Harvesting during wet weather can also lead to severe soil compaction problems. "Farmers use bigger, heavier harvesting equipment than in the past," Stephens says. "Axle loadings can reach 20 tons or more."

The main determinant of compaction is axle load — how much weight is pushing the tires down into the soil. Less weight per axle will lessen compaction problems, but mounting dual tires won't help. Duals simply distribute the same weight over a larger area. This does decrease the depth of compaction, but it does not reduce the total amount of soil affected.

"Four-wheel-drive tractors, or those with front-wheel assist, can help overcome compaction by not having to be ballasted as heavily to reduce wheel slippage to pull a given load," Stephens says.

"Large field sprayers carrying full loads of water, fertilizer applicators loaded to capacity, heavy trucks or grain trailers, ballasted tractors — all of these machines can cause problems."

"One solution is to use additional axles on such equipment whenever possible. If axle loads are restricted to the range of five to eight tons per axle, most of the soil compaction will be confined to the top 12 inches of soil, where tillage can help overcome it."

"At any time of year, one of the most important anti-compaction steps is matching tractor size and weight to draft load. Don't overload your tractor by over-ballasting to pull an implement too big for it."

Good tillage management can help prevent soil compaction, Stephens says, adding that flexibility is the key. Tillage methods depend on the type of soil being worked — even a single farm may have several different soil types. Local field and weather conditions also play an important role.

"In glaciated areas of the Midwest, soils are highly variable," Stephens says. "I think every farmer there has seen soils that look like they don't belong, that are completely different from the rest of the soils on the farm. You have to have a flexible tillage system to meet those different situations."

"Other farmers may not have such a wide variety of soil types, but weather may fluctuate widely from year to year. It's a mistake for a farmer to lock himself into a single, rigid way of tillage. A flexible tillage system can deal with changing conditions."

Milk Production Above Last Year

Milk production in the 21 selected states totaled 10.0 billion pounds. This is three percent above production for October 1986 in these same states. During the July-September period, the 21 selected states produced 85.4 percent of the U.S. production. If the producers in the 29 states not surveyed for November 1, followed the trend shown by the reporting states, the U.S. production would total about 11.8 billion pounds for October.

Production per cow in the 21 selected states averaged 1,144 pounds during October, 54 pounds above October 1986. Only three of the 21 states showed a decline in average milk production and six of the 21 states showed a decline in total milk production.

PUBLIC NOTICES

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Deep Creek Watershed Board of Zoning Appeals will conduct a public hearing on December 10, 1987 at 7:30 p.m. in the Old Grand Jury Room (Third Floor, Courthouse, Oakland). The Board will review applications on the following docketed cases:

1) Docket VR 178, an application made by Mr. John Peachey for a Variance from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the floor area allowed for a home occupation. Specifically, Mr. Peachey is requesting a Variance to allow the establishment of a home occupation (Pallet assembly shop) in an outbuilding which would occupy an equivalent floor area of approximately twice the area of his home. The ordinance normally allows up to 25% of the area of the home for home occupations. The property is located on Mellinger Road (Zoned LR).

2) Docket VR 179, an application made by Mr. John Mack for Variances from the terms of the Zoning Ordinance as it affects the front and rear yard setback requirements of residences and the front yard setback for detached garages. Specifically, Mr. Mack is requesting Variances to allow construction of additions to his residence which would extend to within one foot of his rear (Penelac) property line to within 17 feet of his front property line. Mr. Mack also proposes to construct a detached garage which would extend to within 6 feet of his front property line. The parcel is located on Deep Creek Drive (Zoned LR).

Mettiki Permit Amendment Is Granted Approval

The Maryland Bureau of Mines gave notice this week that they have approved an application by Mettiki Coal Corporation for an amendment to their underground coal mining permit. The amendment includes approximately 5,743 acres of the Freeport coal seam. The amended area extends from Mettiki's present operations (south of the North Fork Sand Run) northeast to Gorman, and from the Potomac River to the outcrop of the Freeport coal seam along Backbone Mountain. The exact area to be mined is identified in the permit application. No new surface facilities are contained in the permit area.

A copy of the approved permit (consisting of the permit application and the permit document which includes general and special conditions) is available for public inspection at the Maryland Bureau of Mines office, 69 Hill Street, Frostburg, Maryland and the Garrett Soil Conservation District office, Garrett County Courthouse, Oakland, during normal office hours.

Public hearings regarding the application were held on August 6 and November 23. Copies of the transcripts of these hearings are available for review at the Bureau of Mines office. Copies of the transcript of the August 6 hearing may be purchased for $13.50. Copies of the transcript of the November 23 hearing may be purchased for $26.50.

Persons who believe their interests are adversely affected by this decision may request an adjudicatory hearing on the approval by notifying the Bureau, in writing, within 30 days of the date of this notice (December 10).

Requests for an adjudicatory hearing or requests for copies of the August 6 hearing or the November 23 hearing should be submitted to: Maryland Bureau of Mines, 69 Hill Street, Frostburg, MD 21532.

Police Agencies Announce Special Holiday Patrol

Members of the Maryland State Police, McHenry detachment, along with the Garrett County Sheriff's Department, will be conducting a special holiday patrol during the Christmas holiday season.

According to Cpl. Richard Graham, MSP, the objective will be to patrol the area around local businesses and shopping centers to reduce the number of crimes, especially thefts from parked cars and shoplifting crimes.

Crime prevention materials will also be distributed to residents in an effort to help identify criminal activity.

Sarah Teets, Miriam Sincell, Lisa Helmick, Jeremy Lear, and Alison Ulino. Standing, same order, are Linda Ritchey, manager of Kiddie Korner, and assistant Sandy DeWitt, holding her little elf, Brandon.

Catch-A-Poacher Reward Given In Garrett County

The Maryland Natural Resources Police Catch-a-Poacher Program awarded $300 for information which led to the arrest and conviction of an Oakland man who shot and killed a black bear with a bow and arrow at Keyzers Ridge.

There is no season for black bear in Maryland and penalties up to $1,500 and three months in jail could be given for taking a black bear out of season.

The black bear was found dead at Keyzers Ridge on October 1 with an arrow in its chest. Because of the information from the informant, Natural Resources Police were able to conclude an intensive investigation.

The program also made awards of $100 to an individual whose information on an out of season deer kill led to the conviction of a Trappe man and $200 was awarded to an individual whose information led to the arrest and conviction of two Anne Arundel County men who were caught keeping rockfish off Thomas Point Lighthouse in the Chesapeake Bay. There is a moratorium on catching and possessing rockfish in Maryland since 1985.

"In each case, the violation would have gone undetected, except for a concerned citizen," a DNR spokesman said.

The program is designed to assure the caller anonymity. Awards are decided upon by a Review Board composed of interested citizens.

Anyone wishing to report poachers under the Catch-a-Poacher Program should report the violation on the 24-hour toll free (Catch-a-Poacher only) number: 1-800-435-6124.

Official Deer Kill Is 1,404 In Garrett Co.

The official count of antlered deer killed during this year's buck season in Garrett County was 1,404, according to Al Bourgeois of the Department of Natural Resources. This total was "very good compared to last year's all-time record of 1,455," Bourgeois said.

Only unofficial totals are available from the other Western Maryland counties at this time. Those unofficial totals are: Allegany, 1,404; Washington, 1,107; and Frederick, 1,084.

The biggest deer killed in Garrett County are listed below, however, Bourgeois stated that because all check stations are not equipped with scales, some heavy deer may have been checked in without weights recorded. The biggest deer (by weight) recorded were: a 190-pound, eight-point buck killed in the Elbow area of Mt. Savage by Gary Llewellyn; a 180½-pound, eight-point buck killed near Route 560 by Randy Tichnell; a 175-pound, 16-point buck killed on Backbone Mountain by William Duckworth Sr.; a 175-pound, 10-point buck killed near Twin Churches by Richard. Yough River Regulations Studied At Scenic And Wild Rivers Meeting

Local government officials and property owners in the Youghiogheny River area may soon see regulations that protect the property owners as plans progress on the state level, according to Garrett County Commissioner Elwood Groves II.

Groves serves as a member of the State Scenic and Wild Rivers Review Board when issues of the Youghiogheny River arise.

A Non-Tidal Wetlands Task Force was recently appointed by Governor William Donald Schaefer as a result of legislation that gives the Department of Natural Resources the responsibility to protect and control wetlands.

Groves said he felt the Task Force, to which he has been appointed, is a positive step for Garrett County because in the past "the state had trouble discerning state property from private property."

He said there is a sizeable acreage in the county of non-tidal wetlands and that previously "the state was controlling what fit the general definition of wetlands to the total neglect of the private property owners' rights."

"This is the first time the local government will have a voice before a program is actually implemented — or before the state infringes its implementation on property. Continued on Page A-13

Signs Posted To Advise Public Of Winter Hazards On Deep Creek Lake

Winter hazards specific hazards on Deep Creek Lake, according to Eric C. Schwaab, manager, Deep Creek Lake Natural Resources Management Area. In order to inform and warn the public of these hazards, the Deep Creek Lake management staff has posted signs around the lake area and at various snowmobile trailheads warning of the potential hazards of travel over the frozen lake surface.

The signs carry a cautionary statement that the frozen surface is not recommended for pedestrian or vehicle use. These signs are intended to warn property owners and visitors to Garrett County of the potential hazards involved in any travel over an ice-covered deep water impoundment. "The lake management staff wishes to ensure that people are cognizant of the hazards involved," Schwaab said.

The physical effects of freezing, thawing and thermal upwelling of the lake waters can create instability in many areas, explains Schwaab. The insulating effect and weight of

Burnt Wire Causes Power Outage

Potomac Edison customers in Oakland and the surrounding areas were affected Wednesday evening by a power outage. The outage, which left several hundred families without electricity in the Oakland, Route 39, Crellin, and Red House areas, was reported at 5:55 p.m.

"We had a wire burn off in the old Oakland sub-station," said Richard Roschli, district PE manager. "This interrupted service to the area described."

Potomac Edison crews interrupted power to everyone served by the sub-station at 6:30 p.m. to make repairs and power was returned at 6:44 p.m.

Garrett County Censured By Appeals Court

Garrett County District Court Judge, Jack R. Turney, this week was censured by the Maryland Court of Appeals, Annapolis, for ruling in a case that indirectly involved his son.

The court unanimously ruled that Turney should have turned the case over to another judge, and that he violated a section of the rules of judicial ethics requiring a judge to avoid impropriety or the appearance of impropriety.

The September 17 case involved Frederick Leary, stepson of Judge Turney's former wife. He was charged with possession of a fictitious drivers license. The license was in a lost wallet found by a park ranger. When the wallet was returned to Leary, the ranger asked where Leary got the fake license. Leary responded by saying it was given to him by Kirk Turney, Judge Turney's son.

Turney reportedly told the Judicial Disabilities Commission that he chose to preside over the case because Leary had pled guilty to the charge. State's Attorney, James Sherbin, then asked Leary where he got the license but Turney reportedly cut him off because he thought Sherbin was attempting to embarrass him in court.

Turney added that he was unaware that Leary's case was on the docket that day until he entered the courtroom.

The Court of Appeals concluded that Turney's actions were of a serious enough nature to warrant a finding by the court that Turney's administration of justice was prejudicial. The court, however, chose the less serious penalty recommended by the Judicial Disabilities Commission.

Braskey Elected V.P. Of MACo, Legislative Head

As expected, Garrett County Commissioner John G. Braskey was elected last week to the position of first vice president of the Maryland Association of Counties (MACo).

Braskey will also serve as legislative chairman for MACo. Commissioner Elwood Groves II was also elected to serve on the legislative committee and Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr. was named alternate.

Braskey explained that the legislative committee of MACo determines which legislation the body will endorse during the Maryland General Assembly.

The commissioners were elected that the county will now have more of a voice in state lawmaking since last week's elections.

"I am very honored," said Commissioner Braskey. "This isn't just important to me or for me, it's a voice for the state, Western Maryland and Garrett County as well."

The legislative committee meets once a week during the session of the General Assembly which begins in January.

Young men Receive Fifty Years On Assault And Robbery Charges

An 18-year-old Maryland man and a 19-year-old Delaware man have each received 50-year sentences in the Maryland Department of Corrections after they pleaded guilty to charges of assault with intent to murder and robbery with a dangerous and deadly weapon.

Bernie J. Emery, Lutherville, and Chad A. Hansen, Herrington (Del.) each received 30 years for the assault charge and 20 years for the robbery charge. The sentences, handed down Wednesday by Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer, are to be served consecutively, with a recommendation that they be served at the Patuxent Institution, near Baltimore.

The charges were filed in Circuit Court July 24 following a May 25 incident at about 2:30 a.m. near Keyser's Ridge along Rt. 48 when a Salisbury, Pa. man had stopped there in an attempt to see if Hansen and Emery (whose vehicle was disabled along the highway) needed assistance.

Robert J. Beal Jr., was then confronted by the men at knife-point, led down an embankment and beaten on the head with a tire iron. The men, along with a young female, then fled the scene, according to police reports, in Beal's vehicle, leaving their vehicle behind.

A short time later, Beal climbed up the embankment onto the roadway and observed a vehicle approaching. Thinking it might be the police, he flagged down the vehicle. As it happened, the suspects were returning to their vehicle and, again, led Beal over the embankment and beat him a second time with the tire iron.

Beal was later transported to Garrett County Memorial Hospital.

Judge Thayer Grants Motion For Removal Of Child Abuse Case

Garrett County Circuit Court Judge Fred A. Thayer ordered Monday that the trial of David O. Mosser, 29, formerly of Mtn. Lake Park and Corriganville, be moved to Carroll County. Mosser is charged with child abuse and assault and battery as the result of a September 13 incident when he allegedly abused a two-year-old child.

The motion was granted after Mosser, at a hearing held last Thursday morning, requested removal of the case from Garrett County because of pre-trial publicity.

Judge Thayer's decision for removal of the case was based, in part, on what he termed "prejudicial" publicity in the form of certain articles that appeared in the Cumberland Times-News newspaper following the incident. In particular, Thayer cited the reprinting of "selective portions of the pre-trial testimony, statements of emergency room personnel and of an assistant prosecutor" as being prejudicial in nature.

Articles concerning the case which appeared in The Republican newspaper, however, were not cited by Judge Thayer as being prejudicial.

Thayer, in his order, went on to say "The critical element, however, is the pervasive sentiment in Garrett County created by the death of Brandy White as the result of extensive child abuse and the subsequent convictions of her mother and mother's paramour of first-degree murder recently in connection with Brandy's death."

Baltimore Woman "Fair" After Shooting Mishap

A Baltimore woman is listed in "fair" condition at the University of Maryland's Shock Trauma Center, Baltimore, after she was accidentally wounded in an incident involving a loaded hunting rifle Saturday west of Accident.

Carol Brockmeyer, 24, was accidentally shot in both lower legs when she and her husband entered their vehicle on Hickory Ridge Road.

According to Department of Natural Resources police, Thomas Brockmeyer had been hunting earlier in the day and had left his 30.06 rifle leaning on the driver's seat of his vehicle. As Mrs. Brockmeyer entered the passenger side of the vehicle, Mr. Brockmeyer moved the gun, causing it to discharge.

Brockmeyer was originally taken to Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, by Northern Rescue Squad and was later transferred to the trauma center in Baltimore where she was admitted to the Intensive Care Unit.

Thomas Brockmeyer was charged with having a loaded weapon in a motor vehicle by DNR police officer, Walter May. May was assisted by Officer John Melbourne.

COUNT 'EM...21 POINTS — The buck with the largest rack taken last week in Garrett County during Maryland's season was this one by Kenneth Harding of Friendsville. The animal was bagged December 1 on public hunting grounds in the Buffalo Run area near Friendsville. Because the Humberson's Maxco checking station did not have a set of scales, Harding did not know how heavy the deer was, but estimated its weight to be at least 150 pounds. According to the Department of Natural Resources, 1,404 bucks were harvested during the week, down just slightly from 1986's record high of 1,455.

NOW, THAT'S A SWITCH! — While children are normally the recipients of Santa's bags full of toys and goodies, the fourth grade students of Mrs. Marge Hamill turned things around this week. They were found giving Santa (Lou Stouffer) over a dozen bags of new and good, used toys for children less fortunate than they. Several weeks ago, Mrs. Hamill realized that a toy drive was being held for Santa. She asked her reading class if they wanted to help. Soon, the word was out and nearly all of the fourth grade at Dennett Road Elementary School were participating as Santa's elves. Mrs. Hamill commented, "I think the children learned a valuable lesson from this experience and I think they feel good about themselves. That's important." Santa Claus was elated with the students' efforts and noted that Garrett Countians are "some of the most giving folks I've ever encountered." Santa has also received toys and monetary donations this year from the Sunday school at St. Mark's Lutheran Church, the Pine Grove Church of the Brethren, Durs! Funeral Home and Proudfoot's Pharmacy. Toy drives are also underway at Southern Middle School and Midlake Mall. "There are no words to express my gratitude for these wonderful people," said Santa. "Just when things look the blackest and my toy shop is nearly empty, someone calls and says they have some toys for me. It just recharges me." Individuals wishing to donate toys or money may call Santa at 1-304-789-6743 or Pam Ashby at 334-9133 evenings.

From Brazil To Grantsville

by R. Craig Speicher

Christmas will be most unusual this year for one young lady presently residing in Grantsville this year.

Northern Middle School student Elianne Fife, 14, hails from Goiania, Brazil, which is approximately 6,300 miles from Grantsville. Her mother, Elizabeth Ann Warnick Fife, is a South American missionary who returned to her hometown of Grantsville last February to care for her parents, retired Grantsville postmaster Emmons Warnick and his wife, Grace Warnick. She decided to bring Elianne (rhymes with "Nelly Ann") with her.

Not surprisingly, Elianne greatly misses her remaining family and friends in Brazil, which includes her missionary father, four older brothers and an older sister; and, because she came to America with no English language skills, she faces academic, social and cultural struggles every day that would overwhelm most of us. Although she returned to Brazil temporarily in August, September found the instantly-likeable eighth grader back at Northern Middle for the start of school, with no likelihood of seeing "home" soon again. Still, friends like Nancy Jones, whom Elianne met through the Grantsville Methodist Church, and Northern High student Lori Sines, have made her adjustment easier.

Her stay in Garrett County has not been without highlights. From a tropical region where snow never flies, Elianne had never used skis before venturing to the Wisp with her class last winter. "But," she said, "I saw how to use them on TV." So, with the courage of an Olympic athlete, she pushed off with her ski poles and immediately collided with three other skiers, who then explained that "skiing isn't so easy." Undaunted, she looks forward to having another crack at the slopes this winter.

Although Elianne, an

SHE HAILS FROM BRAZIL — A long way from home — about 6,300 miles — is Elianne Fife, 14, who is currently residing in Grantsville and attending Northern Middle School. Multiple Charges Filed Against Grantsville Man

A Grantsville man, charged by Maryland State Police with possession of marijuana and drug paraphernalia Saturday, was subsequently charged by Department of Natural Resources police with possession of an antlerless deer.

According to police reports, Terry A. Spiker, 26, was incarcerated in the Garrett County Jail and released later that day on his own recognizance. The drug-related charges were filed by Tpr. R.T. Wilson who responded to a call at Pig's Ear Road and Rt. 48 in reference to an illegal deer kill. Officer John Melbourne was the charging officer from DNR police.

In other State Police news, Timothy Welch, 22, and Russell L. Welch, both of Mtn. Lake Park, were charged with assault and battery following an incident Tuesday in Oakland.

Complainant Sincle Brown, Swanton, reported that the two men assaulted him and threatened him with a knife and a gun. Tfc. C.R. Smith served the warrants.

Robert W. Rounds, 44, Grantsville, was charged with battery by William C. Hemmis, Lonaconing, following a Friday incident at the Wild Water Inn, New Germany Road, Frostburg. The summons was served by Cpl. G.D. Broadwater.

Local Man Given Year In Jail On Sex Offense

During Garrett County District Court proceedings held last week, an Oakland man was sentenced to one year in the Garrett County Jail on a charge of fourth degree sexual offense.

Oliver L. Guthrie, 36, was found guilty of the charge in a previous trial at which time Judge Jack R. Turney ordered a pre-sentence investigation. The sentence was then suspended and Guthrie was placed on 24 months supervised probation and fined $100 and court costs.

Charges of third degree sexual offense and battery were not prosecuted because of plea agreements.

The charges were filed by Detective L.E. Gnegy of the Garrett County Sheriff's Department following a July 18 incident in Oakland when Guthrie reportedly engaged in sexual contact with an eight-year-old female.

A McHenry woman was also given a one-year suspended sentence after she was found guilty of battery. A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered.

Diane M. Ringer, 27, was then placed on 12 months supervised probation and fined $50 and court costs. A charge of child abuse was not prosecuted because of a plea agreement.

Detective-Sgt. D.W. Tucker, Garrett County Sheriff's Department, filed the charges following an August 10 incident when Ringer allegedly struck a 10-year-old youth with a belt. Robert C. Hesson was the defending attorney.

Gary L. Hardesty, 21, Mtn. Lake Park, also received a one-year suspended sentence after he was found guilty of felony theft. A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered.

The charge was filed by Oakland City Police Chief, John K. Sines, following an incident last January when Hardesty reportedly stole a 1980 Arctic Cat Pantera 500 snowmobile from the residence of Playford Ryan in Oakland.

Hardesty was placed on 12 months supervised probation and ordered to pay a $100 fine and court costs. John R. Toston, public defender, represented Hardesty.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in the following cases.

Kurt Kleiner, Allison Park, Pa., was found guilty of fourth degree sexual offense following a July 12 incident in a motel room at Point View Inn, McHenry. Tfc. R.C. Resh, Maryland State Police, filed the charge after Kleiner reportedly engaged in sexual contact with another man against his will and without his consent. Stanton D. Levenson was the defending attorney.

Mark D. Wilt, 24, Westport, Jeffrey L. Snyder, Rawlings, and Andrew J. Whetzel, Barton, were found guilty, in separate cases, of battery after charges were filed by Perry W. Thomas, Barton.

The charges were filed following a June 21 incident on Savage River Road when Thomas alleged that the three men assaulted and battered him.

Michael C. Guthrie, Oakland, was found guilty of battery following a September 30 incident in Oakland. Linda S. Guthrie, also of Oakland, filed the charge.

Donald J. Ringer, 32, Mtn. Lake Park, was also found guilty of battery. He was charged by Theresa A. Ringer, also of Mtn. Lake Park, following an October 2 incident.

A charge of misdemeanor theft, filed against Roy J. Reed, 58, Elizabethtown, Ky., was placed on the Stet Docket. The charge was filed by Brenda S. Leishman, assistant manager at Heck's Inc., Oakland, following a September 28 incident when Reed reportedly stole merchandise, in the amount of $2.49, from Heck's. Reed was represented by Robert C. Hesson.

Local Library Submits Early Budget Request

Officials from the Ruth Enlow Library may have set a record this week for being the earliest agency to submit a budget request.

The new fiscal year in Garrett County begins in July of 1988. Normally, county agencies begin submitting requests in April or May.

The Board of Garrett County Commissioners released the library's proposed budget at a press conference Tuesday.

While the library operated on a $244,535 budget last fiscal year, it is requesting over $19,000 in additional county appropriations for the next fiscal year.

The county appropriation for the library this past fiscal year was $90,000. The most substantial increase in the requested budget is for salaries.

Library officials have also requested $19,245 in capital funds for new carpet and floor tile in the main branch in Oakland.

It will be over six months before county officials arrive at a final decision on the 1988-89 budget.

MLP Woman "Satisfactory" After Mishap

A Mtn. Lake Park woman was seriously injured Friday afternoon when her car struck a tractor-trailer on Rt. 135 in Mtn. Lake Park.

Corrine B. Boyce, 64, is currently listed in "satisfactory" condition at Garrett County Memorial Hospital after she reportedly underwent surgery there Friday evening.

A passenger in her car, Larry E. Boyce, 22, Deer Park, also sustained injuries in the 3:10 p.m. accident. He was admitted to Garrett County Memorial Hospital in "satisfactory" condition and has since been discharged.

According to Maryland State Police reports, the accident occurred on the icy roadway when Boyce was operating a 1980 Chevrolet Citation eastbound near I Street. Boyce lost control of the vehicle.

spinning completely around three times.

The vehicle then crossed the center line and collided with the 1983 Ford 9000 tractor-trailer, operated westbound by Paul J. Cheramie, 56, Lake Charles, La. Cheramie was reportedly not injured.

Charges are pending, according to Tpr. Paul R. Brown, investigating officer. Also on the scene were Southern Rescue Squad and the Oakland Volunteer Fire Department.

Another Mtn. Lake Park woman, Mabel Brown, 87, sustained injuries in a two-car accident late Thursday afternoon and was transported to Garrett Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

Brown was the passenger in a 1979 Buick Regal, operated by Shirley A. Brown, 47, Oakland, when it collided with a 1986 Ford Escort, driven by Mary B. Landon, 62, Mtn. Lake Park.

The accident occurred at 5 p.m. when Brown was northbound on Weber Road and Landon was pulling out onto Weber Road from Rt. 135 to enter the parking lot at Browning's Foodland. Landon pulled into the path of Brown, according to police, and the vehicles collided.

Investigating officer, Cpl. G.D. Broadwater of the Maryland State Police, stated that the roads were snow-covered and it was snowing heavily at the time of the accident.

Kern A. Kymn, 65, Morgantown, W.Va., was admitted to Frostburg Community Hospital after sustaining injuries in a one-car accident Saturday afternoon. He has since been discharged.

The accident occurred on Rt. 48, three miles west of Grantsville, when Kymn lost control of his 1984 Mercury Marquis on the snow-covered roadway and slid off the right roadside. According to police reports, his vehicle then struck a ditch and an embankment, causing it to overturn.

Local MCEA Chapter To Meet December 16

Chapter 76 of the Maryland Classified Employees Association will hold a chapter meeting Wednesday, December 16, at 7 p.m., at The Board Room, Oakland.

Brent Chippendale, member of the MCEA Board of Directors, will be present to answer questions and discuss changes affecting state employees, according to Cathy Chapman, chapter president.

The Garrett County Branch of the American Association of University Women (AAUW) has named Louise Sutermeister "December Woman Of The Month." Sutermeister is the executive director of Maryland Salem Children's Trust, located on the Lower New Germany Road near Grantsville, Md., which means peace, provides care, housing, therapy, occupational training and (when needed) a permanent home for abused, neglected, troubled or abandoned children.

Sutermeister was recognized for "pioneering in the area of child care." The club stated that "she is a unique person, doing something never done before in Garrett County."

The "Woman Of The Month" is the daughter of Oscar and Betty Sutermeister, of Washington, D.C. "My childhood was a very happy one, full of love and learning," Sutermeister said. "My parents gave me the security of knowing that they would always be there to support me, and that's exactly what they have done. Both Mom and Dad have inspired me in the way they have been willing to give so much of themselves to others and in the way they have striven for excellence in all that they do."

With a bachelor's degree in History of Religion from Bryn Mawr College, Sutermeister spent several years traveling and working in Germany. It was during that period of time that she was "led" to a Salem Children's Village in Stadtsteinach, Germany. She spent a year there learning the Salem concept, discipline, and experience, each month. Garrett County women in the areas of business, education, home-maker, government, entrepreneur, administration, agriculture, the arts, technician, and labor.

August of 1977 and accepted children in January 1978. The Garrett County farm was purchased in August 1979 and the Calvert County property sold.

When purchased the 380-acre Meadow Mountain Farm consisted of a large 150-year-old farmhouse and an ancient fallen-down barn. Over the years, many changes and improvements have taken place. In 1983 a new home was built to house an additional eight children. The following year a stable for six to nine horses was built to make it easier to care for the horses that have been donated to Salem's horse program. And in 1986 another new house was built to become home for the children living in the old farmhouse.

After attending the University of Maryland's Baltimore Campus part-time for three years, Sutermeister received a master's degree in Social Work this year.

"Days at Salem are both difficult and fulfilling," she says. "There are many struggles and many rich moments as I see Christ work in the lives of both staff and children. I am ever thankful for God's leading and calling in my life, and I give Him the honor for all that is accomplished at, and through, Salem."

Clear, Distinct Message

Our court systems receive considerable flak from the general public for allowing criminals out of prison and back onto the streets long before they deserve to be released. Convicted murderers and rapists are returned to the mainstream of society after serving only small portions of their sentences.

Sometimes the blame for this can be placed at the feet of judges, whose sentencing is too light to fit the crime. Most of the time, though, it is the state parole commissions that greatly reduce the amount of time served, as overcrowding in our prisons continues to be a major problem. Judges have only so much power to keep criminals behind bars. Once they sentence an individual, the matter is taken entirely out of their hands and placed with the parole commission.

Nonetheless, we wish to highly commend our own Garrett County Circuit Judge Frederick A. Thayer this week for "throwing the book" at two young men convicted of an outrageous crime. The two were found guilty of severely beating a man and leaving him for dead — not once, but twice — after the man had stopped along the highway and offered to help them. The convicted men and a juvenile who was with them were having car trouble at the time. (See story on front page).

Judge Thayer sentenced them each to a total of 50 years in the penitentiary, giving them consecutive terms of 20 and 30 years on two charges. Usually such sentences are given concurrently, not consecutively. The sentences handed down by Judge Thayer were two and one-half times as lengthy as those recommended by the State's Attorney's office, with Thayer noting in his sentencing remarks that he had "yet to divine the apparent lack of overwhelming feeling of offense on behalf of the State in this case."

We believe that this sentencing by Judge Thayer sends a clear, distinct message to all in Garrett County that he absolutely will not tolerate such behavior in his jurisdiction and would-be criminals should think long and hard before engaging in such activity. Such perpetrators who appear before Judge Thayer will be yanked from society for a long, long time.

Garrett County has one of the lowest crime rates in the state and undoubtedly there are dozens of reasons for this. We are glad that Judge Thayer is doing his part to ensure that those who decide to commit such heinous crime here will be dealt with swiftly and severely.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

Please allow me to address a problem I have had with a school bus stop on Route 219 in McHenry, and the ensuing nightmare. I have had with officials in the Garrett County Board of Education.

Since September of 1986 a school bus would stop at my driveway for my pre-school child. It continued to do so for six months.

However, in February 1987 I was informed that my bus stop was not a stop and I must walk up the roadway to the next stop several hundred feet away.

I contacted officials in the Board of Education concerning my problem. I was assured that my situation would be "thoroughly reviewed." Less than 24 hours later I received a form letter from the Board saying that they have "thoroughly reviewed" my problem, but their decision stands.

I then made the mistake of appealing their decision.

It is apparent that the Board is not used to people questioning their action. They were speedy to send me a letter telling me "NO," but their entire system got stuck in the mud when I appealed.

One official promised me action as soon as he returned from a meeting out of town. He must have been away from home for six months because he never did get back to me.

Other officials are often out of the area attending meetings, conventions and seminars. Phone calls are not returned. Letters never receive a reply. And if you are fortunate enough to track down someone to meet with you prepare to get up early in the morning. I had one such meeting with an official at 7:30 a.m. Why? Because he was on his way to work and convenient for him!

This same official told me that my concerns for my child's safety were merely "gerrymandering." Imagine that! So, after all of this, I still had to send my child up the road to wait for the bus at the neighbor's house.

However, two months ago the next door neighbor moved away, meaning no child is waiting for the bus at that stop. Logic tells you it is stupid to send a small child several hundred feet up a busy highway to wait for a bus in front of a vacant house.

But "logic" and "board of education" do not mix.

I have been informed that I must continue to send my child up to a vacant house to wait for a bus.

Where do we get such people?

Sincerely,
Robert T. Taylor

To the Editor:

As for the letter last week about developing oil substitutes, I agree one-hundred percent. The situation we are all creating in this world is obviously reaching crisis proportions not only with oil, but as the editorial pointed out, nuclear destruction.

Our attention, however, has been diverted and narrowly focused by political theatrics. The whole nuclear threat encompasses nuclear wastes, accidents, and the manufacture of the basic materials that can be used by any despot in power to wreak havoc and destruction.

Our world eco-system, that which supports life here, is being pressed in many ways. We need to re-think, no, transform, this destructive and consuming trend, else we all die in our own waste.

Sincerely,
Jaime Alvarez

Hospital where he was admitted for treatment.

The two men were apprehended in Canada by the Maryland State Police and have been lodged in the Garrett County Jail since June 16.

In his remarks from the bench, Judge Thayer explained that he would not follow the State's recommendation of a total of 20 years for each of the men because he felt the guidelines for sentencing were "inappropriate" in these two cases.

He said further, "In this case the crimes of robbery with a deadly weapon and assault with intent to murder are not only extremely serious but are especially heinous. It is difficult for me to imagine a degree of venality which would exceed that displayed by Emery and Hansen on the night of May 25...."

Thayer added, "It is necessary, I believe, for the protection of society to remove these defendants who apparently have no concept of compassion or of remorse or any of the instincts which separate human beings from animals." He explained that the two did, however, have the facilities to "conceal their unacceptable conduct."

Thayer noted that he had taken into consideration the defendants' ages and the "possibility of rehabilitation" in recommending they be placed in the Patuxent Institution for "evaluation and hopefully for treatment as defective delinquents."

First A Friend, Then A Host . . .

Editor's note: The following editorial was written by Richard H. Trainor, secretary of the Maryland Department of Transportation.

This is the theme for the sixth annual National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, recognized from December 13 through 19 this year. It comes not a week too soon. For some reason, which no one has clearly explained yet, traffic crashes, fatalities and injuries are back on the increase again after several years of steady decline. Federal, State and local authorities and public interest groups have decided to bring the war home. During the month of December they are literally trying to attack the drinking and driving problem where it too often begins — at private parties.

Nearly 46,000 people died in traffic crashes on U.S. highways in 1986. The sad fact is 23,000 of them — or more than 64 a day — died in crashes in which alcohol was a factor. In Maryland, 302 of the 790 fatalities were alcohol-related. Increased public attention over the past few years, especially during National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week, brought these alcohol-related crashes into a nearly 30 percent decline in some parts of the nation. But the fact is most of us are still too tolerant of a dangerous minority of people who leave holiday parties, bars and restaurants with attitudes like "I've only had a few," or "I'm sober enough to drive."

It is true that many of us have promised ourselves, our families and our friends that we will never drive after drinking. But too many of us are still unwilling as a holiday party host, to stick our necks out and actively prevent others from becoming potential killers on wheels.

This may be a difficult position to take. But if we don't care enough to stand up to our friends who wrongly insist that they are sober enough to drive, we take an even greater risk. We risk losing a friend; we risk the lives of others and we risk living with the knowledge that we might have prevented a tragedy. The alternatives are simple. Call a cab. Ask guests to spend the night or wait a few hours before driving. Or drive them home yourself. Be a real friend.

Offer non-alcoholic drinks. Use a bartender who knows when to say "no." Close the bar early in the evening. And always serve plenty of food along with drinks.

The solution to the problem of drinking and driving is self-discipline. But it is also clear that we need to care enough to look out for our friends during this season. You can stop drinking and driving by making an early resolution. Resolve to stop your impaired friends from driving themselves home. Remember, first be a friend, then a host.

Abuse Case

"In this small, rural community" he added, "it presently continues to be difficult to excise the knowledge and emotion relative to child abuse necessary to ensure the defendant of a fair jury trial, particularly when there has been published linkage between the White case and this one."

Mosser was arrested by the Garrett County Sheriff's Department following the incident in which he allegedly killed the mother of two-year-old Blake Hetrick, Christine L. Hetrick, 29, from their residence in Mtn. Lake Park to say that Blake had fallen from his crib and was not breathing.

Christine Hetrick then reportedly started home from Sheetz Convenience Store in Oakland (where she was employed), operating her vehicle at a high rate of speed, ac-

Saving Children's Lives
by Thomas G. Johnson

If you're looking for sports equipment for a child this Christmas, a bicycle helmet could be a life-saving choice. When parents buy a bike for their child or install a child's seat on their own bicycles, they rarely invest in the most important accessory of all — a safety helmet. And if they do buy one, they seldom insist that the child wear it.

According to recent figures published in the American Journal of Public Health, less than two percent of all school children wear helmets while biking. Yet more kids are killed in bicycle accidents each year than from accidental poisonings, and 30,000 children suffer non-fatal bicycle-related injuries. Of all injuries caused by bicycle accidents, head trauma is the most common and is most often the cause of death. An article last year in Pediatrics estimated that the use of safety helmets could prevent 75 percent of all fatal head injuries among child cyclists.

According to the Bicycle Federation of America, the best helmets have hard, smooth outer shells. The leather "hairnet" type of racing helmet offers little protection. It should be lined with polystyrene at least half an inch thick, and it must have a chin strap and fastener. (The child must use the chin strap, too, rather than letting it flop.) A comfortable fit is important and the helmet should be lightweight and cool enough for summer use. Any helmet endorsed by American National Standards Institute (ANSI) or SNELL (a helmet-testing organization) will meet these standards.

The price range for acceptable helmets is about $35 to $75. Many helmets come with adjustable features that allow for the child's growth. You can also get helmets that will fit toddlers who ride in a seat on an adult's bicycle.

To get a copy of A Consumer's Guide to Bicycle Helmets, a pamphlet that lists the safety regulations for bike helmets and a list of approved manufacturers, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: The Washington Area Bicyclists Association, 530 Seventh Street SE, Washington, D.C., 20003.

Our Turn

That's The Spirit
by Susan Alvarez

The holiday season is upon us — already! Are you in the Christmas spirit? Oh, I don't mean the traditional spirit of giving, I'm talking about the even more traditional "pulling-out-your-hair, gnashing-your-teeth" spirit. Well, here's a quick quiz to help you decide:

1. Did you look out the window on the one and only morning that you had set aside, through planning, rearranging and negotiating, to do all of your major shopping, only to see four feet of blowing snow and the thermometer at minus five?
2. Have you had at least 52 people say to you, "Are you finished with all your shopping? I did my shopping in April this year." (Add bonus points if you answered, "Oh yes, I'm finished. I'm only out now so I can look for bargains for a Fourth of July picnic.")
3. Have you spent at least one hour searching for the box of Christmas lights and at least five more hours untangling the wires and replacing the lights that are burned out?
4. Have you knocked over any store displays? (Add bonus points if the display had lots of little ornaments that went everywhere, or if the display was one of those that was stacked nearly to the ceiling.)
5. Have you made any elf, angel, wise men or shepherd costumes, or all of the above?
6. Has at least one jerky person pushed in front of you in line at the toy store?
7. Have you spent any time at all explaining to your youngest child how Santa can be on a corner one minute and inside the store taking pictures the next? (Add bonus points for creative thinking if your answer is "Yes.")
8. Does this same youngest child want only a Space Gizmo Super Village and the only thing you can find to go to any of it are the batteries?

Now give yourself five points for every "yes" answer. Use this chart to see how you scored.

- 35 points or higher — Way to go, Ebenezer!
- 25-34 points — Ho, Ho, Hum.
- Below 25 — Hey, didn't you realize Christmas is only a few weeks away?

Brethren, near Swallow Falls, will hold its annual Christmas program on Monday, December 21, at 7 p.m. with the "Scott Family" as they discover the real meaning of Christmas.

New Capitalism: Shaping Maryland's Economy For The Next Century

by
Maryland District One State Senator
John N. Bamacus (R-Allegany/Garrett)

Note: Bamacus has been a member of the Senate of Maryland since 1983. He is also a faculty member of the Department of Political Science at Frostburg State University.

In Western Maryland, we have seen the magic of the Schaefer Administration's intense attention to job creation. In a single year, Allegany County alone has achieved an estimated 5% increase in the actual number of people working. Such striking early results demand that an agenda be forged to carry Maryland's economic progress of 1987 into the next decade and beyond.

I suggest that Maryland needs to form an economic development policy group that can carve a 10-year plan to foster a "New Capitalism" within our borders and create a national model for effective state economic policy. Like a corporation, we must inventory our strengths . . . look at our location and labor force as a potential profit center . . . and invest in ourselves to insure long term job creation and State revenue generation.

Such a program could be the biggest Schaefer legacy of all, addressing the issue of American competitiveness in a worldwide marketplace and allowing Maryland to choose its own place in the global economy. The Schaefer style deserves such a major target.

Over the last 50 years, we've seen everything from the New Deal to the New Federalism come to Washington. This series of "new" ideas has now come full circle, first creating the Federal bureaucracy in the 1930's to fill a great human need and ultimately dismantling it during the 1980's to satisfy macro-economic principles. But the Federal Government will not end up in exactly the same spot from which it started. Profound change did take place and the states are left with the task of filling the shoes of the Fed in many critical areas from infrastructure to entitlements.

In that context, Maryland needs targeted economic marching orders in addition to "Do It Now." The style and substance of Maryland's new approach could be well described as a new Capitalism. Under such an initiative, Maryland could quickly assume national leadership in defining the relationship between states and their economies.

On what should a new Capitalism be based? Most basic is the idea that responsible economic growth makes government's job easier. Logically, a state government successfully creating economic activity can better afford the task of providing infrastructure, public safety and entitlements. Many current Administration philosophies would be at the root of such a movement. Planks would include job creation, new company growth, retention of existing business and expansion of tax bases through aggressive recruitment and nurturing of a progressive business climate in the State. Continued improvement to the Port of Baltimore and expansion of our overseas Department of Economic and Employment Development offices are essential to all of the State. Maryland must also continue to attract top notch employees in our development agencies, ones who are on par with the private sector executives they are recruiting.

Charismatic leadership and strong personal selling of Maryland as a place to live and do business are also basic ingredients that were put in place during the past year, and they must be continued.

Many specific new concepts not yet on the table should also be part of a comprehensive New Capitalism. New job creation programs should be promptly considered, including (1) direct product development funding for Maryland firms, (2) small business incubation centers, (3) a non-metropolitan infrastructure bank and (4) stimulation of direct private sector industry research and development funding at Maryland universities in order to speed up the commercial applications of breakthrough research within our borders.

Education at all levels must be a very high priority within this New Capitalism. Public education is a development activity because it enhances the human resources we offer the world. An educated, trainable workforce must exist in our State and it must compare favorably to other states and other countries.

Many have suggested that, by the year 2000, the demand for specific new jobs and the labor pool available to fill those jobs will be like a round peg in a square hole. Maryland public education must immediately begin preparing at-risk children and the unemployed for the jobs of the future. New entry level jobs will require human relations skills, written and oral communication and high-tech awareness . . . skills that our most needy do not currently have. Similarly, we must begin to plan for the needs of an ever increasing pool of working mothers, creating a private/public partnership that better opens the workplace for this valuable labor resource. As many as 75% of women under 65 years old may have some kind of job in the near future according to a recent study. Shouldn't Maryland be among the first states to anticipate this significant development?

If we are to remain competitive globally and invest in our future, then we better make a strong commitment to services for disadvantaged young children.

We need to improve early childhood services and preschool education programs. Not only is it the right thing to do morally, but it also makes good business sense. If we don't educate our children, where will our workers come from? If our children fail in school, then we also fail economically and ethically as a nation. It makes a great deal of sense to address these issues now rather than deal with the social carnage later.

The further one travels in our State from the affluence of the Washington area, the more important these programs become as industrial recruitment tools. Nearer the District, they would allow us to develop a higher "capture rate" of available jobs and contracts going to Marylanders.

During the early 1980's Maryland trailed the national average in dollars per capita spent on industry research and development in universities and in total amount of venture capital funds available by state. Our improvement (according to a recent issue of Inc. Magazine) to the nation's third best business climate is a trend we must solidify and cement for future generations by making our state a permanent haven for talent, good ideas and aggressive, sustained growth.

Would state entitlement programs disappear with the coming of a New Capitalism? Of course not. The role of government as a provider for the most needy is well established and appropriate. We are a caring society that should never allow identifiable economic depots to be imposed on the underprivileged or the elderly.

We should, however, constantly strive to put parts of our entitlement programs "out of business" by creating programs that will provide greater access to the job market for the needy.

Job creation assists the task of the welfare state immeasurably. It establishes a cycle of employment opportunity, removing newly employed persons from the programs and generating new state revenue through existing income taxes, corporate taxes and sales tax. This is a win-win cycle in which an available trained labor force attracts businesses who in turn create revenue for both training and income assistance.

No excuses based purely on lack of funds should be accepted under the New Capitalism. Maryland is really no different from any well managed business; smart investment back into the firm doesn't cost, it pays. In this case, we can't afford not to invest back in our people and their current or future employers. The issue is identifying what specific investments will pay us back, not how much it might cost.

The challenge is too big to be addressed incrementally, one budget at a time. We should have a longer term objective as our target. A long-reaching agenda that emphasizes job creation, business climate, statewide infrastructure investments and progressive education, while responsibly using natural resources and historic assets, will do more than capture a phrase. Such a program can help build on our recent gains to make Maryland a place where publicly nurtured capitalism fuels the fire for many years to come. But our best and our brightest must start building it now.

This week, representatives from the Central Coca-Cola Bottling Company, Oakland; Heck's Department Store, Oakland; D&S Trucking Company and Tom's Hometown Market gathered to contribute to the cause of providing food, clothing and toys to 50 needy families in Garrett County. Pictured, left to right, are Lois Tressler, sales manager for Central Coca-Cola Bottling, presenting Coke T-shirts; John Ackerman, merchandising representative from Coca-Cola, presenting bottles of Coke; Gary DeShong, Heck's manager, presenting a Coke scooter; Dr. Bolinger; Steve Lantz, board member of Rotary; Tom Browning, member of the Rotary project committee and supplier of wholesale dry goods for the food baskets; and Smith J. Lantz, D&S Trucking, whole sale supplier for turkeys for the baskets. Not present when the photo was taken were Chester McFarland, owner of Hill Top Market, Grantsville; and Carroll Deem, manager of Farmer's Market, Oakland, wholesale suppliers for produce for the baskets. Heck's also donated decorations for the "Angel Tree" located in that store. The tree was placed to collect toys for needy children. Bolinger commented, "Through the efforts of these local businesses, our dollars will go a lot farther in purchasing toys and food."

Environment Ed. Mini-Grants To Be Given In '88

The Maryland Environmental Trust has announced that, as part of its Keep Maryland Beautiful activities, it will award two mini-grants for environmental education projects in 1988. The objectives of the mini-grants are: 1) to stimulate a better understanding of environmental issues, 2) to aid in the elimination or reduction of a local environmental problem, and 3) to encourage a sense of stewardship and personal responsibility for the environment.

The Trust invites school groups, science and ecology clubs, and other non-profit youth groups such as scouts and 4-H clubs, to apply for the grants. The Trust will consider proposals for two grants at $500 each. Projects could include, but are not limited to, the following activities:

- 1) Sponsoring recycling programs or litter clean-up days in conjunction with a study of local municipal waste disposal;
- 2) Adopting a local stream (could include learning about stream ecology and monitoring for pollution, with documentation in a photo exhibit);
- 3) Planting trees and shrubs which would discourage erosion and sedimentation and enhance wildlife habitat near waterways or on public property (this could entail working with a state forester or biologist to develop a wildlife management plan);
- 4) Designing, printing, and distributing a poster or brochure which explains a local environmental concern and including suggestions for individual or community involvement.

Mini-grant application forms may be obtained from: The Maryland Environmental Trust, Suite 700, 118 N. Howard Street, Baltimore, MD 21201; telephone (301) 333-6440.

Completed application forms should be received by the Trust by February 29, 1988.

"JIM McBEE FUND"

As many of you know, Jim McBee, 25-year-old son of Pat and Leo McBee of near Crellin, has been battling Hodgkin's disease for approximately four years.

Hodgkin's disease is cancer of the lymph glands and the treatment for this disease is chemotherapy and/or radiation. Jim has received two series of chemotherapy and radiation therapy to treat the disease. The combination of chemotherapy and radiation treatments damaged his bone marrow to the extent that his body is no longer able to manufacture blood. Therefore, he has been making weekly trips to the National Institute of Health at Bethesda for platelets and blood for approximately one year. Jim now requires a bone marrow transplant which has been arranged by N.I.H., and will be performed at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center at Seattle, Washington. Jim and his wife, Tarita, are now in Seattle and must be there for approximately four months.

After payment from Jim's hospitalization and after other funding sources have been exhausted, there will be a balance of approximately $50,000 for which Jim will be personally responsible. It was necessary for Jim to secure a loan for one-third of that amount prior to leaving Garrett County.

Because Jim and his family are members, our church will be spearheading this drive to raise money for the living expenses and medical costs while Jim must be in Seattle. A separate bank account has been established specifically for these funds.

If you would like to contribute to this family's need, you may send your tax deductible donation to the following:

MSTA Attorney To Be Speaker At Wisp Resort

James Whattam, attorney for the Maryland State Teachers Association, will be the featured speaker Wednesday, December 16, at the Wisp Resort, McHenry, according to Cheryl Henderson, president of the Garrett County Teachers Association.

All public school teachers in Garrett County are invited to hear Whattam's talk on "Teachers and the Law," noted Henderson. The session will be held in the Embers Room of the Wisp beginning at 4:30 p.m. A question and answer period will follow Whattam's remarks.

establishing a halfway house, a counseling staff and the incorporation of civic groups.

The hotline would serve Garrett County and outlying areas. Calls would be handled on a strictly confidential basis, according to a spokesman from the group. The hotline would offer referrals and resources and offer actual help to individuals in need.

Suicide, abortion, personal and domestic problem calls would be target areas.

Jerry Humberson, McHenry,

ART THERAPIST DISPLAYS WORKS — Currently on display at the Garrett Community College art gallery, are original oil paintings and prints by Jean James, a registered art therapist with the American Art Therapy Association. James is currently employed by the Garrett County Health Department as a clinical coordinator of Community Rehabilitation and Addictions Service. She received a Bachelor of Fine Arts degree with an emphasis in painting and photography from the Maryland Institute College of Art, Baltimore, and a Master's degree in Developmental Clinical Psychology from Antioch College, Columbia. James will instruct a psychology course in Death and Bereavement at Garrett Community College during the Spring 1988 semester. The exhibit, which closes this Friday, December 11, also features the works of Patricia Gould (spotlighted in last week's issue of The Republican), and is open to the public during regular college hours. A closing reception will be held for the two artists at the gallery this Friday, December 11, from 3 to 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Trust Seeking Nominations For M. Jones Award

As part of its Keep Maryland Beautiful activities, the Maryland Environmental Trust is currently accepting nominations for the Margaret Rosch Jones Award. The award, established in 1979, is given in memory of Margaret Jones who was the executive director and moving spirit of the Keep Maryland Beautiful Program for many years.

The Trust hopes to remind citizens of her devotion, energy and ingenuity by presenting an award in her name to a group whose voluntary activities in 1987 personified these attributes which Margaret Jones brought to her work.

Nominees for the award must be volunteer, non-profit groups or communities which have demonstrated a basic understanding of the environmental issues they are working on. Nominees must also meet one or both of the following criteria:

1) Groups that have been active in educating people in their community about at least one of these concerns: litter prevention, community beautification, and local or statewide environmental issues.

2) Groups that have been successful in eliminating or reducing the causes of a local environmental problem rather than just addressing the symptoms.

The winner of the award will receive a $1000 cash award in April and a proclamation signed by the Governor.

Nominations should consist of a one page description of a group's activities as they relate to the above criteria. They should be submitted to: The Maryland Environmental Trust, Suite 700, 118 N. Howard Street, Baltimore, MD 21201.

Nominations should be received by the Trust by February 29, 1988.

DNR CHRISTMAS GIFTS

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources is offering a selection of gift ideas for the Holidays.

How about giving a fishing license?

You can give an $8.00 non-tidal license to anglers for the 1988 season and consider adding $3.50 for a Regular Trout Stamp. Just provide DNR with the angler's name, address, date of birth, height, weight, sex and the license fee.

You can give a $5.00 Chesapeake Bay Sport Fishing License to an individual. To purchase this license, supply DNR with the date of birth, height, weight, sex and the license fee for the Bay angler. The Bay license for the 1988 season will cost just $2.50 if the non-tidal license is obtained. Or... you can give a boat owner who fishes in tidal waters a $25.00 Bay Sport Fishing Sticker. It allows the owner and guests on the boat to fish without an individual license. A single complimentary license will be issued along with each $25.00 sticker. This complimentary license may be used by any owner of the boat except only one owner may use this license at one time.

A number of stamps and prints are also available as gifts to collectors. Maryland Migratory Waterfowl Stamps, Trout Stamps, Bay Stamps and Wildlife Conservation Stamps and Prints make very nice gifts.

In addition, there is something for hunters. The revised edition of the "Guide to Public Hunting Lands in Maryland" is $6.00.

DNR holiday gifts may be purchased locally at the Western Regional Service Center, Rt. 8 Box 22, Naves Crossroads, Cumberland, MD 21502.

The licenses may also be purchased from any of over 700 license agents including most sporting goods stores.

For additional information on purchasing these items, call (301) 974-3211 or Toll-Free at 1-800-492-1138.

THIS ONE GOT AWAY, TIME AFTER TIME — This plywood model covered with a deer hide and complete with antlers caused many a hunter in the Pleasant Valley area to look twice. The plywood "deer" was shot at more than once, according to local sources, and it was reported that one hunter even walked up to the "deer" to see why his shot didn't bring it down. Watch for this same "deer" during doe season — the antlers are removable!

State Receives Grant To Promote Community Service By Students

State Superintendent of Schools David W. Hornbeck announced this week the receipt of a grant of $100,000 from the Abell Foundation to increase public school students' participation in community service activities.

"The United States is a nation at risk," Hornbeck said, "and the causes of our problems are not just matters of academic or economic performance, as serious as those problems are. We are also at risk from caring too little about one another and too much about ourselves."

The Abell Foundation grant to promote programs in which students serve others in their communities is a partial but important response to the need for instilling a caring attitude in the nation's youth, the Superintendent said.

Robert Embry, president of the Abell Foundation, joined Hornbeck in making the grant announcement. He said, "Public education is the cornerstone of the nation's ability to continue to develop effective citizens and, thus, maintain a strong democracy. The Abell Foundation is very pleased to participate in this project." Hornbeck also announced the appointment of Kathleen Kennedy Townsend as the project's director.

Hornbeck said, "There are many reasons for a strong community service initiative. The most important is that of character education. In addition, we know it improves school attendance and school behavior. Community service connects young people to the adult world in a positive manner. Finally, a community service placement requires the development of the most important genuine employability skills such as punctuality, following directions, team work, accepting responsibility."

The Maryland State Board of Education adopted in 1985 a requirement that school systems must provide students with community service opportunities for elective credit toward graduation. The new state initiative is aimed at expanding and strengthening local community service programs, increasing community awareness of the programs, and increasing student participation in the programs.

Yough River Advisory Board To Meet Tonight

The Youghiogheny River Local Advisory Board will meet tonight, December 10, at 7:30 p.m. in room 351 of Garrett Community College.

Southern Seniors To Hold Brunch

The senior class of Southern High School will hold its annual career brunch next Thursday, Dec. 17, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., according to a school spokesman.

Representatives of colleges, trade schools, local businesses and the armed forces will be meeting with seniors at that time to discuss their various programs and career opportunities.

The brunch, which is also open to 1987 graduates of Southern, will be served from 9 to 10:30 a.m.

Agencies To Study Mine Drainage Into North Branch

The problem of acidity in the North Branch Potomac River and its tributaries from abandoned mine drainage is an old one. Acid-laden water seeping from old mines has made hundreds of miles of streams nearly lifeless.

The Maryland Department of Natural Resources, West Virginia Department of Energy, and the U.S. Department of the Interior Office of Surface Mining recently agreed to join forces to tackle the problem.

The agencies will develop a plan for abatement of the mine drainage problems that have the greatest impact on the water quality of the North Branch, its tributaries, and the Jennings Randolph Reservoir behind Bloomington Dam.

The federally funded study will examine specific abandoned mines, and evaluate their impact on the receiving stream and determine the reduction in pollution needed to meet water quality requirements for aquatic life and recreational resource uses.

The study will then examine treatment alternatives, and establish a priority ranking of sites. The study was developed by Maryland and West Virginia with assistance from the federal government.

Eleven Southern Rams Named To All-Star Teams

Eleven members of the Region I Class B championship Southern High School football team have been named to one of both all-star teams of the Potomac Valley Conference and the Highland Football Conference, while their coach, Tom Woods, received the Coach of the Year award from both conferences.

The Rams not only won the regional title, but also captured the PVC and HFC titles with 5-0 records in each. Under Coach Woods, Southern has won the HFC title seven times and the PVC crown four times.

Named to both all-star teams were J.R. Bosley at tailback and Zack Gibson at safety. Also named to the PVC squad were: Gary Long, offensive tackle; Brent Sanders, offensive end; Randy Tichnell, defensive back; and Scott Damon, defensive end. Also selected for the HFC all-stars were: Mike Inglesse and Gordon Savage, offensive guards; Mike Bittinger, fullback; Bobby Bernard and Chris Helbig, linebackers.

Bosley led the area in rushing with a total of 1,749 yards on 285 carries in 12 games, for an average of just over six yards per carry. He scored 24 touchdowns and four extra points for a total of 152 points, caught 11 passes for 131 yards, led the team in kickoff returns with 16 for 392 yards and punt returns with 11 for 114 yards. On defense he had three interceptions (second best on the team) and recorded 33 tackles.

Gibson, best known in the area for his skills at quarterback, ranked fourth on the team in tackles with 56, led in interceptions with six, and had one fumble recovery. He was the second leading scorer on the team with six touchdowns, rushed for 272 yards on 66 carries for a 4.12 average, and completed just under 50 percent of his passes, 37 of 68 for 453 yards and two touchdowns.

Long provided much of the off-tackle blocking for Bosley and also recorded 32 tackles on defense.

Sanders was the third leading receiver for the Rams, catching seven passes for 97 yards and one conversion. He was also the third leading rusher with 297 yards on 33 carries, for an outstanding nine yards per attempt. He returned seven punts for 61 yards and two kickoffs for 44 yards. He was the sixth leading tackler on defense with 52.

Tichnell was the third leading tackler for the Rams with a total of 64 and also recorded a pair of interceptions. He was the fourth leading rusher with 278 yards on 41 carries (a 6.78 average), scored four touchdowns, returned four kickoffs for 58 yards and three punts for 41 yards.

Damon was the fifth leading tackler for the Rams with 55, while linebackers Bernard and Helbig led the team with 85 and 84 tackles, respectively. Helbig also had two interceptions and two fumble recoveries, while Bernard had two interceptions and one fumble recovery. From his tight end position, Bernard also led the team in receptions with 13 for 135 yards.

Inglesse and Savage also anchored the Ram offensive line and, on defense, contributed 46 and 11 tackles, respectively.

Fullback Mike Bittinger was the second leading rusher on the team with 490 yards on 102 carries for an average of 4.8 per attempt. He scored three touchdowns and, on defense, contributed 13 tackles and one fumble recovery.

As a team, the Rams compiled a total of 3,245 yards on the ground on 546 carries (270 per game) for an average of just under six yards per carry, which is a school record. They scored 322 points, or an average of almost 27 per game, and finished the 1987 season with an 11-1 record, having lost only to Fairmont Heights in the state Class B semi-finals.

Tricia Heatherman led the Rams against Joppatowne with 19 points, while Courtney Smith chipped in with 10.

The Rams took a 13-4 lead by the end of the first quarter, extended it to 28-8 in the second stanza, and then held the host team scoreless in the third period to take a 41-8 lead into the final period.

Last night against visiting Allegany, a follow-up shot by Smith at the 1:30 mark of the fourth period gave the Rams' their second win of the campaign.

Lakers Whip Reading, Fayette Before Losing To Westmoreland

The Garrett Community College Lakers took to the road this past week for three games in four days, winning the first two, but losing the third, leaving them with a 6-2 record.

Coach Dennis Gibson's club stopped Reading Community College Friday night, 107-96; rolled over host Penn State-Fayette Campus Saturday night in Uniontown, Pa., 78-55; but then were soundly defeated Monday night at Youngwood, Pa., by Westmoreland Community College, 101-79.

Duane Tabor, who has been the Lakers' scoring leader so far this season, paced Garrett against Reading with 28 points.

The Lakers lead by as many as 14 points in the first half, but Reading came back behind the hot shooting of Rodney Hodge and David Farnum to take a seven-point lead. Garrett rallied to narrow the Reading lead to just one point, 47-46, at halftime.

Hodge finished with 33 points, while Farnum, who was a MacDonald's All-American last year, recorded 22 points, including four three-point shots.

William Scates recorded 22 points for the Lakers, while teammate Aaron Davis netted 20.

The Lakers took the lead for good about two minutes into the second half when Eric Downs connected for a pair of jumpers to give Garrett a 55-51 advantage.

Gibson, who was disappointed with his team's performance, particularly in rebounding, credited Davis with a strong defensive effort.

Garrett was forced to play without their starting center, 6-6 freshman Dell Youngblood, who was injured just after the opening game of the season.

On Saturday night against Fayette, it was 6-4 sophomore Joe Schmidele who led the Lakers, connecting for 22 points, while Eric Downs finished with 10 points.

The Lakers jumped out to an early lead and never looked back, holding a 43-25 advantage at halftime. They also out-rebounded Fayette, 44-27.

Greg Czekaj and Tim Rodriguez led Fayette with 12 and 11 points, respectively.

The game Monday night against Westmoreland essentially resulted in a battle between the Lakers and one opponent, Craig Curry, who broke a Westmoreland single-game scoring record with 42 points.

Curry netted 14 buckets and hit 14 of 15 free throws, plus led his team in rebounds with 14.

Meanwhile, the Laker backcourt managed to hit only nine of 35 shots from the floor.

The Wolfpack assumed a 12-4 lead after four minutes, but Garrett battled back to close the gap to just two points, 16-14, on three straight buckets by Tabor.

However, Curry led Westmoreland to a 28-16 lead at the seven-minute mark and the Lakers never again seriously threatened.

The Lakers stayed close to the Wolfpack in rebounding, being edged by only six, 33-27; but Westmoreland netted 26 of 31 free throws, compared to a 15-for-21 effort by GCC.

Tabor and Downs led Garrett with 21 and 20 points, respectively, while Davis added 13 and Tony Haskell hit 10. Tabor paced the rebounding with nine and Downs was close behind with eight.

Haskell and Davis each hit two three-point buckets and Davis was credited with five assists.

The win was the seventh in 10 starts for Westmoreland.

The Lakers will attempt to get back on the winning track this Saturday when they travel to the Mount Alto, Pa., Campus of Penn State for a 4 p.m. contest. Their next home game is slated for Wednesday against Ohio Valley Business College, with tip-off set for 7 p.m.

Bender's Debut With Huskies Spoiled By Beall

The season opener for the Northern High boys varsity basketball team was not a pleasant one for first-year coach Dave Bender and his Huskies, as they were hammered by visiting Tuesday night by Beall, 72-42.

The Mountaineers, led by Scott Muir in the first half, moved out to a 16-8 lead, stretched their advantage by 35-15 by halftime, and held a commanding 56-25 lead after three quarters.

Muir scored 13 of his 17 total points in the first half, while Brent McKenzie paced Beall with 18 points.

Leading all scorers was Northern's Aaron Zumpano, who netted 19 points, all in the second half. John Harnke also reached double figures with 13 points for the Huskies.

Northern was out-gunned from the floor by a 30-19 margin, while both teams netted only three foul shots each.

It was the second win of the campaign in as many starts for Beall, who opened their season with an upset win over powerful Bishop Walsh, 77-76, last Friday.

Northern will face another strong opponent this Friday when they travel to Lonaconing to play Valley.

Rams Defeated In Opener By Campers, 63-45

The Southern Rams boys varsity basketball team opened its 1987-88 campaign Friday night by taking a 2-0 lead over host Allegany, but that was about the only high point of the game for Ram fans, as the Campers proceeded to thump Southern, 63-45.

Southern Coach Oren Yoder questioned whether or not his team was mentally ready to play the game, noting various poor decisions and mistakes on the part of his players.

Zack Gibson's bankshot with 30 seconds elapsed was followed by 10 unanswered Camper points, and Allegany never trailed.

Travis Bohrer was the workhorse for the Campers, as the 6-7 senior forward netted 21 points, pulled down 20 rebounds, blocked three shots, and dished out four assists, while Derek Young, a 6-8 junior, added 17 points and Jim Hamilton finished with 12.

Three of Hamilton's markers came with 22 seconds left in the first period, which gave the Campers a 17-10 advantage. He hit another three-pointer just over one minute later, in the second period, to give Allegany a 20-12 lead.

The first half ended with the Rams down 34-20 and the third period was played evenly, as the Campers were on top 46-32 going into the final stanza.

The largest lead of the game came at the 2:47 mark of the final quarter when Todd Bowman hit a bucket underneath to give Allegany a 59-38 advantage.

The smaller Rams were out-rebounded, 47-27. Senior Bobby Bernard was the only Ram to reach double figures with 12 points.

All was not lost for Southern fans, however, as the Ram jayvees defeated their Allegany counterparts in the preliminary contest, 44-34. Marshall Pike paced the Rams with 17 points, while Tim Nightengale led Allegany with 11.

Southern will travel to Beall this Friday to face the 2-0 Mountaineers.

The Huskies played evenly with the Black Knights in the first quarter of Friday's contest, as Valley was on top by only one after the first quarter, 11-10. But the Huskies' shooting went cold and Valley's offense came alive in the second quarter and Northern was down 30-14 by halftime. The lead was extended to 44-25 by the end of the third stanza.

Lori Parker and Kelli Phillips led the winners with 15 points each, while Jennifer Johnson contributed 13.

Northern's Melissa Beeman, a 5-4 senior, paced all scorers with 17 points on four buckets and six of eight free throws. Kristen Edwards netted 13 for the Huskies.

Ram Grapplers Flattened By Sentinels, 60-9

The Southern High wrestling team opened its season on a disappointing note Tuesday night by being flattened by host Fort Hill, 60-9.

The only victories for the Rams were recorded by Paul Niner, who pinned Greg Stumbaugh in the 112-pound class, and Randy Marple, who outpointed Craig Wilson in the 126-pound division.

Recording pins for the 1-1 Sentinels were Dan Bowser, Jason Yarnell, Matt Thomas, Bill Dumphrey, Trinity Riley, Jason Bridges, Tim Daniels, and Mike Squires.

Coach Rob Browning's young squad will host Tucker County next Thursday, Dec. 17, before breaking for the Christmas holidays.

Laker Women Edged 40-38 In Season Opener

A basket by Theresa Murphy with just 12 seconds remaining on the clock gave the Potomac State College women a 40-38 decision over the Garrett Community College last Thursday in the Lakers home opener.

The Catamounts jumped out to a 9-0 lead by the 11:16 mark of the first half, but a bucket by GCC's Gail Aldridge initiated a rally that put the Lakers on top by one, 19-18, at halftime.

However, the Lakers had a total of only six players and fatigue in the second half led to foul trouble.

Garrett held at 38-36 lead late in the game, but a rebound and follow-up shot by Alisa Hudson knotted the score at 38 before Murphy hit her winning bucket.

Sharon Tanner led the Cats in scoring with 10 points, while Murphy pulled down 11 rebounds and blocked four shots.

Leading all scorers was Aldridge with 16 points, who also nailed the first three-point shot ever for the Laker women. Chris Gregory and Loretta Spruill each grabbed six rebounds for the Lakers.

"Gail was shooting 50 percent from both the floor and foul line and had only one turnover," stated first-year Laker coach, Stephanie Durow. "She handled the ball for us against their press and just did an excellent job."

Coach Durow said she was "encouraged" by the performance of all her players. "Of course, I am not too happy that it took us until the 11:16 mark before we could score," she said. "I feel that having this first game over with will help us prepare for the rest of the season."

The Lakers will meet Potomac State again this Friday, Dec. 11, at 8 p.m. in the Potomac State Tournament in Keyser.

Southern Area Dribblers Club To Meet Saturday

The Oakland Rotary/School Community Centers Program (SCCP) "Dribblers Club" will begin its fifth season this Saturday, December 12. The club is open to all girls and boys in grades 3-6 who are interested in basketball.

Over 130 youth participated last year and, according to club directors, even more are expected to attend this year. Each student is instructed in fundamental basketball skills and plays in 20 games during the 12-week program. The players are coached by members of the Southern High School basketball team.

Third and fourth grade students are to report to Dennett Road Elementary School, while fifth and sixth grade students should report to Southern Middle School. Directing the Dennett Road portion of the program is Bill Ewing, while Paul Pacella is the director of the Southern Middle School segment.

The program is sponsored by the Oakland Rotary Club, in conjunction with the Board of Education's SCCP.

"It's great to see two outstanding organizations like the Rotary and SCCP working together to bring our youth a fantastic program," stated Ewing.

The club will meet each Saturday until February 27, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Yough River

owners," said Groves. He continued, "Now we have a chance to perhaps voice any opposition we may have before the fact. Too often, the state sets down regulations, gives the county the responsibility to enforce those regulations and expects us to pay for it."

The first meeting of the task force will be held Friday in Annapolis.

Also at last week's meeting, investigations were officially begun on the Scenic and Wild Rivers Act.

Groves indicated that the state had been "dragging its feet for the past 12 years" on the issue.

"It refreshing to know that this state board now has something to do besides harass us about the Yough," said Groves.

He indicated that the board has now approved the criteria for establishing a visual corridor on the Yough. Maps will be sent to every property owner in that corridor and property owners may then request a copy of the plan.

Acquisition of county or private property by the state was also discussed. Previously, the state could condemn property to acquire it. Through legislation, the state must now give up land and put it up for public sale before it acquire any more. This is known as the Land Bank Concept.

"This is good news for Garrett County," stressed Groves.

The review board also discussed emergency whitewater regulations in what Groves termed "a showdown." He said the consensus of the local review board is to see whitewater rafting better controlled, if not eliminated.

"Again, the rights of the property owners are at stake here," said Groves. "The state has done nothing to control rafters from coming onto private property. Often times, the privacy of property owners is violated and too many times their property is trashed. Their rights need to be protected."

Choral Society Concert Set; To Feature Harpist

The Garrett Choral Society will present its annual Christmas Concert next weekend, and along with the regular accompanist, Dr. David Sheets, at the organ, will be harpist Frances Davis, of Cumberland.

Ms. Davis studied with Carlos Salzedo, who instructed at the Curtis Institute of Music, Philadelphia, and in New York City. She has performed with the Lancaster, Pa., Symphony, the Bangor Symphony of Maine, the Maine Summer Symphony, the Reading, Pa., Civic Opera, and at the Lancaster Opera Workshop. She has presented considerable solo work in and around the Cumberland area.

Ms. Davis is married to Robert Davis, who is a fisheries biologist for the Department of Natural Resources. They have two children: Christine, a freshman at Frostburg State University, and Matthew, a sophomore at Bishop Walsh High School.

Ms. Davis will accompany the Choral Society women on the cantata, "Ceremony of Carols."

The concert is slated for Friday and Saturday, December 18-19, at 8 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland. Tickets, which are $2 for adults (children under 12 admitted free) may be purchased from Choral Society members or at Englander's Pharmacy. The Society is under the direction of Nancy Learey.

Further details of the concert will appear in next week's issue of The Republican.

also present hazardous bumps, walls, and dropoffs which can affect an unwary operator. As such, persons venturing onto the ice should exert the utmost care in any travels on the lake during the winter months, says Schwaab.

Rescue capabilities are limited by the hazardous nature of the frozen lake surface. In addition, the quick onset of Hypothermia during winter weather conditions drastically reduces the ability of the body to survive cold weather mishaps. Hypothermia is a cooling of the body's core temperature which results from exposure to a cold environment. Heat loss is increased rapidly by immersion in cold water. The quick action often required to combat hypothermia is sometimes difficult to obtain.

Schwaab states that over 70 miles of trails on state forest lands are open for snowmobile use during the winter months and the public is encouraged to use them. Snowmobiles operating on these trails must be registered with the Department of Natural Resources and display an identification tag. Trails open to this activity are well marked and maps and information on other regulations are provided when snowmobiles are registered.

The registration certificate is available by mail or in person at any of the Department's regional service centers, the Annapolis office, or selected local agents. Locally, Deep Creek Lake State Park (387-5563), Savage River State Forest/New Germany State Park (895-5759), Herrington Manor State Park (334-9180), Potomac-Garrett State Forest (334-2038) and the Cumberland Regional Service Center (777-2134) can provide more detailed registration, regulation and trail information.

"As with any trips into the out of doors, winter travelers are advised to leave information with a responsible party as to their anticipated trip, its direction, duration and their estimated time of return," Schwaab said.

"Travelers should also insure that they take the proper clothing and equipment along on any winter trips, said Schwaab. Any questions relative to Deep Creek Lake and its use should be directed to the Deep Creek Lake Management Office at 387-4111. For emergencies or law enforcement assistance during evening and weekend hours, dial 911.

Potomac Edison Seeks Reduction In Fuel Rate

Potomac Edison filed a request Monday with the Maryland Public Service Commission for a decrease in the fuel rate portion of customer's bills, which would be a $6 million annual reduction in revenue.

The electric utility applied to reduce the fuel rate by 6.9 percent or .083 cents, to be effective January 6, 1988, if approved. The proposed rate is 1.251 cents for each kilowatt-hour, compared to the current rate of 1.344 cents per kilowatt-hour.

For a residential customer using 800 kilowatt hours a month, the fuel rate reduction would reduce a total bill by 74 cents or 1.4 percent. A residential customer who uses 2,000 kilowatt-hours a month would experience a decrease of $1.86 or 1.5 percent.

Potomac Edison's fuel rate reflects not only the cost of fuel used for the generation of electricity, but also the benefits of reduced costs to customers through credits from sales of electricity to other utilities. During the past year, the company has been able to increase sales of electricity to other utilities, resulting in an overall reduction of fuel costs, a PE spokesman said.

In Maryland, Potomac Edison serves over 160,000 customers in all or parts of seven counties.

Party Affiliation Change Deadline Is December 14

Maryland voters have until 9 p.m. Monday, December 14, to change their party affiliation, according to the Garrett County Board of Election Supervisors. After that date, no one is permitted to change from one party to another unless the voter changes his residence from one county to another within the State when registration is open, and upon re-registering, decides to switch affiliation.

State law requires that the deadline for party affiliation changes be 12 weeks, or 84 days, prior to a primary election. The 1988 Maryland Presidential Primary Election is slated for Tuesday, March 8. The new date came about as a result of legislation passed by the 1986 General Assembly.

Deer Kill

Williamson; a 173-pound buck killed by Royl Brocht near Meadow Mountain; and a 173-pound, eight-point buck killed on Maynadier Ridge by Jay Bittinger.

The bucks with the largest number of points were killed by: Kenneth Harding Jr., 21-point, no weight recorded, near Buffalo Run; William Duckworth Sr., 16-point, 175-pound, on Backbone Mountain; Robert Yommer, 15-point, 131-pound, in the Jennings Area; Vicki Wilhelm, 14-point, no weight, no location recorded; Robert Maclary, 12-point, 113-pound, in the Boy Scout Road area; and Kim Tortorice, 11-point, 151-pound, in the Walnut Bottom area.

Bourgeois stated that weights appear to be up this year indicating good growth due to a mild winter last year with plenty of acorns. Opening day total, which Bourgeois says varies according to the weather, was below last year with 700 bucks killed this year, 902 killed last year, 554 killed opening day in 1985, and 749 killed that day in 1984.

Tomorrow and Saturday, December 11 and 12, are set aside for doe season. This season for antlerless deer is open only for those who did not bag a buck in regular season. Eligible hunters must have a doe permit or be a landowner where they are hunting. All deer must be checked in, and Bourgeois reminds landowners that they are not excluded. To be legal, all deer must be field tagged before being moved from the woods. Landowners may make a tag which includes their name, date, and location of the kill.

Muzzleloader season will follow from December 19 through 26. Hunters who killed a deer during either rifle season (buck or antlerless) may still hunt during muzzleloader season and can take a deer of either sex without a doe permit, says Bourgeois.

Farmers Home Offices To Have An Open House

In recognition of the completion of a major automation project, the Farmers Home Administration will hold an open house in all county offices on Tuesday, December 15, according to Delaware/Maryland FmHA State Director, G. Wallace Caulk.

The final computer terminal has just been installed, marking completion of one of the largest automation projects ever undertaken in the United States, Caulk said.

"We have installed 64 computer terminals in 25 county and district offices as well as here in the state office," Caulk said. "The major benefit of the system will be to improve FmHA's service to family farmers and rural residents. The computer system will allow FmHA to perform many of its communication and analysis functions with greater speed and accuracy," Caulk said.

"County offices will be open to the public between 10 a.m. and noon on Tuesday the 15th," Caulk said, "and we welcome anyone who is interested in seeing how the new automation system works."

Nationally, over 6,000 computer terminals have been installed. Each office system includes a 386 mini computer and a varying number of PC 6300 individual work stations. State offices can communicate with the national office and district offices by electronic mail. County office computers can interact with the mainframe computer in Kansas City.

"We believe that our borrowers, employees and ultimately the American taxpayer will benefit greatly from this automation project," Caulk said.

Garrett County's office of the FmHA will be among those participating in the open house, according to Timothy R. Taylor, supervisor.

NATIONAL DRUNK AND DRUGGED DRIVING AWARENESS WEEK PROCLAIMED — The Garrett County Commissioners recently proclaimed December 13 through 19 as National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week when local police officers will concentrate on the laws pertaining to the DWI/Drugged violators in an effort to remove those dangerous persons from the streets and highways of Maryland. The commissioners urged that all area residents refrain from driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs in order to help reduce traffic deaths in the area. Also, Maryland State Police officials are asking that any observed drunk driver be reported to them. A "3-D Weekend" will initiate the week with a total of nine MSP officers on duty at strategic points throughout the county for enforcement of the DWI laws. The 3-D weekend will begin Friday, December 11, at 6 p.m. and will continue through Saturday, December 12, at 7 a.m. Pictured above, seated, are commissioners, Ernest J. Gregg Jr., Elwood L. Groves II, and John G. Braskey. Standing, same order, are representatives of the local police agencies, Chief John K. Sines, Oakland City Police Department; Sheriff M. Van Evans, Garrett County Sheriff's Department; Tpr. Paul R. Brown, Maryland State Police, and Officer Walter K. May, Maryland Department of Natural Resources.

Tailgate Thefts Investigated By Md. State Police

A theft amounting to $740, and involving stolen tailgates, is under investigation this week by the Maryland State Police, McHenry detachment.

Melvin R. Custer, Swanton, and George O. Crone, Mechanicsville, Va., reported that the tailgates from their trucks, parked at the Grantsville Livestock Market, were removed Saturday.

Crone also reported that an Igloo cooler and 150 pounds of miscellaneous packaged meat was stolen from his 1986 Ford pick-up truck. Custer's vehicle was described as a 1985 Chevrolet pick-up truck. Tfr. R.J. Resh is investigating.

James W. Krough, Pittsburgh, Pa., reported that six pine trees, located at his seasonal residence on Beckman's Peninsula, were damaged sometime between December 2 and Tuesday when someone cut the tops off each of them.

According to Krough, the trees were originally 15 to 20 feet high. Investigating officer, Tpr. Paul R. Brown, indicated that a chainsaw was probably used in the incident.

County Chairmen Named For Dole Presidential Bid

Several residents of Western Maryland have been named to hold prominent roles in the campaign of presidential candidate Robert Dole. At a recent press conference in Frederick, Md., former Delegate DeCorsey E. Bolden, (R) Garrett County, was named chairman of the Dole Campaign for Garrett County. Former State Senator Edward J. Mason, (R) Allegany County, was named honorary chairman of the Dole campaign in his county. Patricia White, Mtn. Lake Park, a member of the Garrett County Republican Central Committee, was named to the Garrett County Executive Committee for the Dole campaign.

The press conference followed a luncheon at the Frederick Sheraton Inn with guest of honor Elizabeth Dole, wife of presidential candidate Robert Dole. The luncheon was also attended by Leona Beckman, president of the Southern Garrett County Republican Women's Club.

During the press conference, Mrs. Dole commented that it was her personal choice to resign as secretary of the Department of Transportation in order to campaign actively for her husband. Some of the points made about Dole's campaign are: to insure American security in a dangerous world, to foster freedom at home as well as abroad, to forge a government that is competent as well as compassionate and to make a society in which traditional values predominate and public policy is attuned to the needs of the family.

Persons interested in working with the "Dole for President" campaign should contact their county chairperson.

Members with market steers were reminded to have their animals tattooed by January 1.

Under new business, members were told that rabbits and poultry will have to be vaccinated for the fair this year. The club voted to give a donation to county 4-H volunteers Ron and Debbie Fulk after they lost their home in a fire. After the meeting, Danielle DeBerry gave a demonstration on making patchwork and letter pillows.

- 4-5 cups flour

KIFLE

In preparing the Kifle, the dough is kneaded and chilled but there is no rising period, which makes a simplified method of achieving a light, flaky tenderness.

- 2 cups sifted flour
- 1 cake compressed yeast (or use dry yeast)
- ½ cup margarine
- Powdered sugar
- 2 egg yolks
- ½ cup commercial sour cream

Put sifted flour into a large mixing bowl. Crumble in compressed yeast. Cut in margarine with pastry blender until mixture is crumbly. Add egg yolks and sour cream, mix well. Form into a ball. On lightly floured board knead until smooth (5-10 minutes). Divide dough into 3 equal parts. Wrap in waxed paper, chill in refrigerator at least 1 hour. On a board sprinkled with powdered sugar, roll each part of the dough into an 8-inch circle; cut each into 8 pie shaped wedges. Fill wide end of each wedge with 1 tablespoon of Walnut Filling below. Roll up from wide end to point. Place on greased baking sheets, curling ends to form crescent shape. Bake at 375 degrees about 25 minutes or until golden brown. Dust with powdered sugar. Makes 2 dozen cookies.

Walnut Filling:

- 1 cup finely chopped walnuts
- ½ cup sugar
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Combine walnuts, sugar and vanilla. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Makes enough filling for 2 dozen cookies.

- ½ cup water
- 1 tsp. vanilla
- 1 cup chopped nuts
- 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten

Stir until sugar is dissolved, then cook without stirring until syrup will spin a thread or a little dropped in cold water forms a hard ball. Remove from heat and pour, beating constantly, in a fine stream into stiffly beaten egg whites. Continue beating until mixture holds its shape and loses its gloss. Add vanilla and chopped nuts. Drop quickly from tip of spoon onto waxed paper in individual peaks.

PEANUT BRITTLE

- 2 cups white sugar
- 1½ cups Karo syrup
- 1 cup hot water
- ½ tsp. salt
- 1 tsp. soda
- 1 tsp. butter
- 2 cups peanuts

Combine sugar and syrup; stir in hot water. Place on heat and boil until mixture reaches 300 degrees (check heat with thermometer). Reduce heat, add peanuts and butter. GCMG OBSERVES GREAT AMERICAN SMOKE-OUT — In cooperation with the American Cancer Society, the Garrett County Memorial Hospital participated in the Great American Smoke Out on November 19. The three newborns in the obstetrical unit received t-shirts from the American Cancer Society with the slogan, "I'm a Born Nonsmoker." Pictured above, left to right, are: Edward Holloway with daughter,

Julianna Elizabeth: Charlotte Strawser with daughter, Bridgette Marie; and Linda Jones with son, Michael Wayne Jr. In addition, all employees were invited to participate in a "Smoke-Free Break." The Hospital Board Room was used for employees to take their coffee breaks in a smoke-free environment. Literature on the hazards of smoking, kits to adopt a smoker for the day, and quit smoking hints were available. A video presentation on second hand smoke was shown. Coffee, tea, juice and muffins were served. Annette Livengood, director of Personnel, stated that the smoke-free break allowed employees to take their coffee breaks in a healthy, smokeless environment and to learn more about the hazards of smoking. She further commented that there was a high percentage of employee interest and participation in the Smoke-Out.

Local Teacher To Lead Travel Group Abroad

Sonia Pratt, art teacher at Southern Garrett High School, has been selected to lead a trip abroad organized by the American Institute For Foreign Study (AIFS) of Greenwich, Conn.

Over 300,000 students, teachers, and other adults have participated in international educational travel programs sponsored by AIFS since it was founded in 1964.

Group members of the "Three Capitals' Pleasures" tour spend ten vacation days visiting London, Paris and Madrid. Side trips include Toledo, Versailles and Canterbury. AIFS guide-lecturers accompany the group throughout, providing commentary at museums, cathedrals, and other points of interest visited. There is also time for individual exploring and shopping.

The AIFS travel program has been granted listing by the Council on Standards for International Educational Travel, a nonprofit organization committed to establishing standards for international educational travel and monitoring compliance with those standards on behalf of schools, communities and educational groups in the United States.

There are still places available on this program. For more information, parents and students, as well as interested adults, may contact Mrs. Pratt at 334-3501.

New Teachers Need More Assistance And Training, State Survey Finds

A large influx of new teachers entering the schools and rising expectations for performance of those teachers are placing pressure on school systems to do more than they have in the past to bring teachers "up to speed" in their first year or two in the classroom.

At its meeting Wednesday, December 9, the Maryland State Board of Education was to review a report based on a survey of the state's local school systems that discusses the need for more systematic programs of staff development for beginning teachers. The report was compiled by Research for Better Schools, an educational laboratory funded by the U.S. Department of Education to provide research assistance to the Mid-Atlantic states.

The report recommends that each local school system clarify its goals for beginning teacher development, use a wide range of strategies to help these teachers, and provide more training for trainers of new teachers. Among recommended strategies are a reduction in the workload for beginning teachers, assigning them fewer extra duties and demonstrations of exemplary classroom management techniques.

The increasing need for professional development programs for new teachers, according to the State Department of Education, is evident in the increasing numbers of new teachers who will enter Maryland classrooms in the remaining years of the century. Some 10,000 new teachers are expected in the next three years, the department estimates, and 75 percent of the state's teachers in the year 2000 have not yet been hired.

"The road to excellence in new teacher performance," says Dr. Herman Behling, assistant state superintendent, "involves four critical factors: quality supervision and evaluation, a climate of professional growth and high expectations, opportunities for continuing professional development, and organizational structures conducive to teacher development needs."

While the survey by Research for Better Schools found few comprehensive programs for developing new teachers in the state, the report cites seven programs that feature promising approaches. These programs are in schools in Baltimore City and in Caroline, Calvert, Anne Arundel, Frederick, Charles and Howard counties.

State Department of Education staff development specialists are using findings of the report in working with Calvert, Carroll, Howard, Montgomery and Somerset counties to develop exemplary programs of beginning teacher development. The department plans to publish a resource book of strategies for evaluating new teacher programs next summer.

Local Students On Dean's List

Seven area college students are among the 91,000 students included in the tenth annual edition of the National Dean's List recently published by Educational Communications, Inc., Lake Forest, Ill.

Students are selected for the honor by their college deans or registrars and must be in the upper 10 percent of their class, on their school's dean's list, or have earned a comparable honor. More than 2,500 colleges and universities nationwide use the publication to recognize academically qualified students.

Local students selected are: Scott V. Watkins, Grantsville, a student at Western Maryland College; Carissa L. Selby, McHenry, a student at the University of Maryland; Jeanette L. Sweitzer, Deer Park, of Davis and Elkins College; Teresa L. Lavengood, Swanton, Lock Haven University; Daniel E. Ferrell, Gorman, W. Va., West Virginia University; Judy C. Fink, Horse Shoe Run, W. Va., Davis and Elkins; and William D. Lantz Jr., Horse Shoe Run, West Virginia University.

PE Advises On Bill-Paying And Weatherization

Winter brings snow, low temperatures and higher electric bills, as Potomac Edison customers spend more time indoors and use more energy to keep warm.

The electric utility offers programs for customers who may have difficulty paying their bills during the winter heating season. These programs, along with assistance from local governmental agencies, can help customers weatherize their homes, cut down on energy usage or establish satisfactory payment schedules, a PE spokesman said.

"Customers should call us to let us know if they're having trouble making ends meet and might have difficulty paying their electric bills," said Jo Mullendore, supervisor of residential activities. "We're often able to help them work something out through many of our programs, but we first need to know that they need assistance."

Through its Weatherization Residential Assistance Program, or WRAP, Potomac Edison provides funds for weatherization materials to be permanently installed in electrically heated homes. If a customer meets state low-income energy assistance guidelines, he or she may be eligible for up to $500 of weatherization assistance, and a company representative will try to obtain additional services through local assistance programs, where available.

Also included in the WRAP program is a free home energy survey for the customer, which will determine the types of improvements needed. The customer may receive a water heater jacket, electrical outlet draft seals, door sweeps and a low-flow showerhead.

Other assistance programs available through Potomac Edison are:

An Average Payment Plan, which levels higher and lower electric bills over the year, so that the customer pays an average payment each month.

Personal Bill-Paying Schedule allows customers to pay higher winter bills over a period of months.

The Bill-Extender Plan delays the due dates of customer's bills until after they receive their Social Security checks.

The company's Hospitalization Program defers collection until a customer confined to a hospital recovers and returns home.

Life-Support System Plan, which maintains priority electric service to customers who are seriously ill or who rely on life-support equipment; and

A Third-Party Notification Plan enables customers — who are out of town for extended periods, suffer from physical disabilities or are elderly — to designate another person to receive copies of their service disconnection notices. This friend, a neighbor, relative or social services agent would not be responsible for paying the bill, but could make sure it is taken care of.

Weatherization and emergency energy assistance programs are available to local customers through the Garrett County Community Action Committee Inc.; telephone, 334-9431.

Holiday Events Scheduled At Blackwater Falls

Legal Aid Bureau Notes December Outreach Schedule

Staff members of the Legal Aid Bureau, Inc., will be available to discuss legal problems with persons during December in Oakland on December 15, from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Community Action Center.

The Bureau provides legal assistance in civil matters to eligible persons. Services are available at no cost to those whose income and property holdings are below certain federally-mandated levels.

The Bureau has discontinued its monthly outreach in Grantsville. Residents of the Grantsville area are requested to call the Cumberland office at 777-7474 and an appointment will be scheduled.

There will not be a representative available in Oakland if Garrett County schools are cancelled because of bad weather. Persons should always call the Cumberland office by 10 a.m. each scheduled outreach day to confirm whether or not the Bureau representative will be available in Oakland.

The Western Maryland office of the Bureau is located at 110 Greene Street in Cumberland. The office can be reached in Garrett County by call 334-8832.

Whenever possible, persons needing assistance should call in advance to schedule an appointment for the outreach location or for an appointment at the Cumberland office, according to Bureau officials.

Try An Experiment

Turn out the lights some night, touch a match to a single candle, and watch the miracle that happens.

The flame wavers and then steadies. The whole room is bathed in a soft glow, showing new shadows and depths, new softness and warmth. It seems like you are living in another place, in another age.

Switch the lights on again and they seem dazzling, harsh, until your eyes get used to them.

Two entirely different atmospheres have been created in the same room. The candlelight has brought a kind of magic, electricity has brought with it reality.

In our lives we need both magic and reality—and the place to find them is in your church or synagogue. There you will find the magic of peace and relaxation; yet the message is real, sometimes even harsh. The teachings are as old as time, yet as new as tomorrow.

Go find out for yourself.

A NAME FOR THE CHILD!

December 13, 1987

Background Scripture: Matthew 1:1-25
 Devotional Reading: Isaiah 9:1-2

At Christmas time we often emphasize that the birth of Jesus in a manger is indicative of God's love made manifest in the most humble of circumstances. Jesus was born, not to royalty or wealth, but of humble parents from an unimportant town. But there is also another indicator of the depth of God's love: Jesus was conceived by an unwed mother.

The whole story of Jesus might have begun in scandal, instead of the awe and wonder with which we regard it today. When, before they were married, "Mary" was found to be with child, "Joseph" would have been justified in causing a furor in the town of Nazareth. Even in this age of sexual license in which we live, such an event would still be regarded as scandalous.

But Joseph had a dream in which an angel spoke to him, saying, "do not fear to take Mary your wife, for that which is conceived in her is of the Holy Spirit. She will bear a son, and you shall call his name Jesus, for he will save his people from their sins." Matthew 1:20-21.

JOSEPH'S OBEDIENCE

Christians venerate Mary for her humble response to God's purpose, but I think we need also to honor Joseph. He played a very important part with his response to the dream. He might have disregarded the dream and acted according to his wounded pride. Instead, Matthew tells us, "When

Sportscaster Jim McKay started out as a reporter

By Toni D'Amato

Didn't Jim McKay, the sportscaster, begin his career as a courtroom reporter on "Divorce Court"? — W.S., Greensboro, N.C.

Jim McKay

McKay, sportscaster of "ABC's Wide World of Sports," hosted "Sports Spot" in 1951, moderated the quiz show "Make the Connection" in 1955 and was the court reporter on the drama "The Verdict is Yours" in 1958. He also acted as the moderator of "Youth Takes a Stand," a discussion program, from 1954 to 1955.

McKay, who won eight Emmy Awards, for Best Sports Commentator for "ABC's Wide World of Sports," began his career in the 1940s as a newspaperman for the Baltimore Sun.

In 1950 he was brought to New York City by CBS.

McKay was assigned to cover the Olympics for that network in 1960 and has covered all subsequent Olympic games for ABC. He appeared on the first telecast of "ABC's Wide World of Sports" in 1961.

I say Kurt Russell starred in an old Western series, but no one can remember the name of it, including me. Can you help? Also, how old is Russell? — F.N., Augusta, Ga.

I think you're talking about the Western series "The Travels of Jaimie McPheeters," which aired from September 1963 to the following March. Kurt Russell played the title role in this show about a boy traveling on a wagon train in 1849. This series was based on the 1958 Pulitzer Prize-winning novel by Robert Lewis Taylor.

Russell, who was born on March 17, 1951, is 36 years old.

Who wrote the song "White Christmas"? — C.H., Billings, Mont.

The song was written by Irving Berlin and immortalized by Bing Crosby, who introduced it in the 1942 film classic "Holiday Inn."

This redneck movie critic thrives on controversy

By Connie Passalacqua

Want to see someone with a great gimmick? Tune in to The Movie Channel's weekly "Drive-In Theater" (Fridays at 11 P.M.) and you'll see this weird, fast-talking, cowboy-hatted dude named Joe Bob Briggs introducing tasteful movies like "The Toxic Avenger" or "The Beast From 20,000 Fathoms." Briggs is actually the alter ego of John Bloom, a former Dallas Times Herald movie critic, who devised and assumed the critical comic redneck persona several years ago. Since then, Bloom successfully popularized his inventive gimmick.

Joe Bob Briggs

He moved from newspaper to local film festivals, to a nationally syndicated column, to a book and a news letter, and a year ago to cable television.

"They [The Movie Channel] had this show called 'Drive-In Theater' and they asked me to come host it one time," says Bloom. "Immediately we had censorship problems. Sheriffs were huddled in the (control) booth. They invited me back and there were more fights."

"But one thing that attracted me to cable TV is that I thought they didn't have any standards. But when I got here, I found out they do have standards! They won't show some of my favorite movies like that 1977 classic 'I Spit on Your Grave,' which Siskel and Ebert called the worst movie ever made, and the original 'Texas Chainsaw Massacre.' These movies are deemed too grisly for cable. So last year I sponsored a 'Too Grisly for Cable Film Festival' (in Dallas).

"I review the movies that people like," he continues. "Do you know that for years Charles Bronson was the biggest box-office star in the world? Now, he's never going to win an Academy Award, but the people recognize him as a great star. Right now, our biggest drive-in star is Arnold the Barbarian."

Bloom says he gets lots of mail. "They write to me from trailer parks, jails, the bunnies — places where people are living like Charles Manson. People who write to Joe Bob are like Joe Bob. They're lonely. They're left out. They're a little off, just like Joe Bob."

He moved from newspaper to local film festivals, to a nationally syndicated column, to a book and a news letter, and a year ago to cable television.

"They [The Movie Channel] had this show called 'Drive-In Theater' and they asked me to come host it one time," says Bloom. "Immediately we had censorship problems. Sheriffs were huddled in the (control) booth. They invited me back and there were more fights."

Hume Cronyn (l.) and Jessica Tandy re-create their Broadway roles as an Appalachian farm couple in CBS's "Fiddler on the Roof." The "Hallmark Hall of Fame" presentation airs Sunday, Dec. 13.

BEHIND THE SCENES

A celebrated scriptwriter retells the Christmas story

By Frank Lovece

The renowned scriptwriter Stirling Silliphant is talking about camels. And car salesmen. And the homeless in Los Angeles. And some, how, it all connects. As he launches into a discussion of liberal guilt on the set of the TV movie "The Three Kings," airing Thursday, Dec. 17 on ABC, it becomes apparent that he is a natural-born storyteller.

Stirling Silliphant

The camels that set off this discussion are Socrates ("an immense male with the sweetest disposition"), Marco ("as ill-tempered as a beast as I've ever met") and a third whose name escapes him ("nondescript, no personality"). They're among the stars of a modern-day retelling of the biblical tale, which, under Silliphant's pen, finds a trio of insane asylum inmates (Jack Warden, Lou Diamond Phillips and Stan Shaw) wandering away from a Christmas pageant in costume and on camel. Journeying through Los Angeles until they reach the barrio, the "kings" inadvertently re-enact the ancient drama.

Shooting on location, co-producer Silliphant and the rest of the cast and crew also found a more contemporary drama enacting itself. "While we had actors and extras portraying the homeless," says Silliphant, "the real homeless were all around us. And here we are in this business of creating a fantasy, spending $4 million on it, and surrounding us is very real suffering. There was a point where we almost wanted to say, 'Let's give the $2 million still left to these people.'"

"But that's not the answer," he sighs. "I don't know what the answer is. We in Hollywood try to assuage our guilt by saying that at least we wrote about it, but that's bull, too."

As Silliphant has reminded us for years with scripts including the Oscar-winning "In the Heat of the Night" (1967), the best in us constantly has to fight to overcome the worst.

"We don't change attitudes," Silliphant maintains. "I think in most instances, we subliminally reinforce what people already feel. I don't know where public feeling comes from," he acknowledges. "I'm content if something like 'The Three Kings' can touch it now and then."

SOAP OPERA WEEK

This reader has problems with a soap actress' age

By Kimberly Redmond

Why did "Another World" replace Anna Stuart, the actress who played Donna Love before Philece Sampler? Sampler is too young to play the role. — N.S., Wytheville, Va.

Philece Sampler

Stuart, elected to leave "AW," and has gone to Hollywood to look for other acting jobs. We agree that Sampler isn't old enough to be the mother of twin daughters, Victoria and Marley, played by Ann Heche.

Please refresh my memory about how Luke and Laura (Anthony Geary and Genie Francis) left "General Hospital." — K.K., Waldorf, Md.

Laura disappeared into the fog alone during a storm, time involving con man David Gray (Paul Rossini). When David's yacht blew up, Luke believed that Laura had been on board. After much confusion, Luke and Laura (who had returned from the dead in 1983) went on a honeymoon trip around the world in early 1984. They returned to "GH" for a few weeks in November 1984, but left for their Texas ranch, revealing that Laura was pregnant.

Is it true that Mary Beth Evans (Kayla Devereaux on "Days of Our Lives") is pregnant in real life? Why didn't they write her pregnancy into the story? — S.G., Revelstoke, Canada.

Mary Beth Evans

Evans and her husband, Dr. Michael Schwartz, welcomed their new son, Daniel Evans, on Oct. 6. At the time Evans was pregnant, the show's writers didn't want Kayla to be pregnant in the story line.

PBS

CINDY SAYS

Nick Nolte: No whitecaps Prince Albert: No future?

By Cindy Adams

Home after shooting Orson's "Farewell to the King" in Borneo, Nick Nolte came back like the proverbial Wild Man of Borneo. Seems sumptuous dining in the jungles of downtown Sarawak came with a small case of hookworm. There remains one day more of filming that in the film? Mind your own business, that's how.

Prince Albert did his "Life-style" interview sans makeup. Asked who'll someday take over, Caroline or him, Al answered "very quietly," says Robin Leach. "He appeared concerned." Figures. The kid could soon be unemployed. And "hobnobbing expert" isn't great on a resume.

The Cap Cities network ABC — suddenly called Always Be Chintzy — is not only shrinking staff, but they're wiping historical file tapes. Class A news shows use fresh interviews mixed with historic footage. That colluded the lifeblood of a show like "Nightline," is now being erased to be re-used to save a buck. Reportedly "hysterical" about it, Ted Koppel, who has threatened not to renew his contract, was using this as a bargaining chip.

Nick Nolte

Forget it. Nolte and his wife and baby and the whole shebang are not schlepping back across the world for one day. The film lacks only the opening sequence, which is a raging storm at sea. The 25-foot breakers engulf Nolte. He washes overboard. Only one problem. No whitecaps off Borneo. The only raging currents were inside director John Milus, who lacked his beginning scene. It will now be shot in Hawaii. If this movie takes place in Borneo, how will they account for Beverly Ann (Cloris Leachman) discovers that it's never too late to learn a lesson from Santa Claus (Chuck McCann) on NBC's "The Facts of Life." It airs Saturday, Dec. 12.

Numerous Area Students Named To Who's Who

Numerous students from the area have been included in the 21st annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1986-87.

Who's Who, published by Educational Communications, Inc., Lake Forest, Illinois, is the largest high school recognition publication in the country. Students are nominated by high school principals and guidance counselors, national youth groups, churches or by the publishing company based upon students' performance in scholarship award contests or extracurricular activities.

Final selection is determined on the basis of criteria which include high achievement in academics and leadership in school activities, athletics or community service. Traditionally, 99 percent of Who's Who students have a grade point average of "B" or better and 97 percent are college bound.

The 21st edition of Who's Who, published in 12 regional volumes, features 550,000 students, or 5 percent of the nation's 12,000,000 high school students. They represent 18,000 of the 22,000 public, private and parochial high schools in the country.

Maryland Agent Orange Registry Is Established

Marylanders who served in Vietnam and who may have been exposed to the controversial defoliant Agent Orange are being asked to register with the recently established Maryland Agent Orange Commission.

All information gained through the registry will assist future studies on the long-term effects of Agent Orange exposure. Additionally, its finding will serve as the foundation of a report which the Agent Orange Commission is expected to present to Governor William Donald Schaefer.

In calling for the establishment of a Maryland Agent Orange Commission in 1986, the Maryland General Assembly recognized that a large number of Vietnam veterans had been exposed to Agent Orange and other possibly debilitating chemical defoliants during their service. Among the possible implications of this exposure were increased numbers of disabled Maryland veterans and of birth defects in their children.

According to the Maryland

Agent Orange Commission, those vets who add their names to the registry will be kept up-to-date on scientific findings concerning Agent Orange. In addition, registered individuals will have the option of participating in forthcoming studies to further knowledge of the effects of Agent Orange and other defoliants.

Along with building the registry, the Maryland Agent Orange Commission is seeking to gather additional information on Agent Orange. Resources to be utilized include studies conducted by other states and by the Veterans Administration, as well as information gained through resources of the Vietnam Veterans of America.

The Commission is also seeking to acquire the names of Marylanders who have previously contacted the Veterans Administration about exposure to Agent Orange.

Vietnam Veterans who believe they may have been exposed to Agent Orange during their military service are urged to register with the Maryland Agent Orange Commission. To do so, they should write or call the Maryland Agent Orange Commission, 113 W. Franklin Street, Baltimore, MD, 21201; (301) 332-1-NAM.

Why

did my lights flicker?

Flickering lights...flashing digital clocks...both can result when your electric service is disrupted even for a fraction of a second. Wind or lightning may be responsible. Branches or animals get on electric lines. Vehicles hit our power poles. Any of these can cause that short electrical disturbance along the power lines serving your home.

When these things happen, our recloser, or "smart circuit breaker," trips and attempts to reset itself. In many cases, the disturbance is cleared almost immediately. The recloser restores the line to normal operation and prevents a longer outage.

You may not notice the electrical disturbance, but you will notice your digital clocks flashing. (A clock radio with a battery back-up can save you the inconvenience of resetting.)

Next time you notice your lights flicker, keep in mind that the recloser is working for you. It's one of the ways we work to assure you a reliable supply of electricity.

December Schedule

"Wellness Together's" staff would like to thank all the health professionals who have provided services at greatly reduced rates and all the people who have participated in our programs and classes in 1987. Many thanks also to "The Republican" staff and WXIE/WMSG for their generous support. We look forward to reaching more people with more services in 1988, hoping to help reduce the high rate of heart disease in our area. "Happy, Healthy Holidays to All!"

"Wellness Together's" calendar, which focuses on helping you reduce your risk for heart disease, should be in your mailbox by January 1. Please read through it and check out the quiz on the back page. If you will call in to 334-2155, ext. 377, we'll mail you the answers and a colorful card on reducing your risk for a heart attack.

Ten steps to Holiday Wellness. Can you check all of these?

- Check the smoke detectors and fire extinguishers in your home to be sure they are working properly.
- Avoid excessive exercise for which you have not warmed up or trained. Check your heart rate while chopping wood, shoveling snow, and cross-country skiing.
- Refrain from abusing drugs, tobacco, and alcohol.
- Wear your seat belt and buckle up your children and grandchildren in safety seats or belts.
- Avoid excessively stressful situations, and plan for quiet periods during this busy season.
- Place safe decorations on a tree that is watered well and located away from sources of heat.
- Eat balanced, regular meals to avoid overeating sweets.
- Find time for exercise — it will give you time for yourself and help reduce tension.
- Dress with several layers of warm clothing, and cover your head, hands, and feet to help preserve your body's warmth.
- Baby and childproof your home when receiving young visitors.

Holiday Fire Safety Urged By Fire Marshal

With the holiday season upon us, Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele is urging all Marylanders to use extreme care and good judgment with Christmas trees and combustible decorations.

"During the holidays, families suffer as their homes are destroyed by fires — fires usually caused by carelessness," Gabriele said. "Some examples of the careless acts which lead to these fires are the improper use of decorations, placement of Christmas trees too close to heating appliances and faulty decorative lights."

Christmas trees are highly flammable, particularly if they have been cut long in advance of their intended holiday use. When placed indoors, these trees will dry out rapidly due to the heat and low humidity of a home, he stated.

"Furthermore, Christmas trees should be kept indoors only as long as absolutely necessary and the base of the tree kept in water," remarked the Fire Marshal.

The Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office and the Maryland State Firemen's Association offer these safety tips:

Christmas Trees

- Christmas trees should be kept in water while in the home. The bottom of the tree should be cut on an angle to expose fresh wood, which will allow water to be absorbed into the trunk.
- Place the tree in an open area and away from exits in the home.
- When a Christmas tree shows signs of extreme dryness, it should be disposed of immediately.

Lights

- Indoor lighting sets that have the Underwriters Laboratory (U.L.) listing on them, should be the only lights used on Christmas trees, whether artificial or "live."
- Lights and extension cords should be examined for cracks or deteriorating conditions before the equipment is used.
- If a home is unoccupied for any length of time, the decorative lights on the trees and throughout the home should be turned off.

Decorations and Candles

- It is recommended that decorations be non-combustible or flame retardant. All decorations should be placed away from heat producing appliances, such as portable heaters.
- Christmas wrapping paper should be disposed of promptly to reduce the chance of a fire occurring in these easily ignited materials. Wrapping paper should not be burned in a fireplace, as this could result in a serious dwelling fire.
- If candles are lit to add to the decorations throughout, they should be extinguished if the home is going to be unoccupied at any time.

Gabriele summed up the safety precautions stating, "Our citizens must exercise good common sense during the holidays if we are to stop the serious fires which occur all too frequently at this time of year." The Fire Marshal's Office estimates that approximately 900 residential fires will occur during the month of December.

For further information on holiday fire safety measures, citizens should contact the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office or their local fire prevention bureau.

Gabriele Prohibits Sale Of Certain Tree Decoration

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has placed a ban on the sale of a product called "Fire Knock-Out", which is packaged as a Christmas tree decoration and is used as a fire extinguisher to be placed on live Christmas trees.

The decoration conforms to the design of a bell with a glass bottom. The device holds approximately three ounces of Halon 2402, which allegedly is activated by a temperature of 117 degrees Fahrenheit. "Fire Knock-Out" has been shown to contain a product called dibromotetrafluoroethane, a vaporizing liquid which is prohibited from sale in the state by the Code of Maryland Regulations.

The State Fire Marshal's Office and local fire prevention bureaus throughout the state have gone to numerous department stores ordering the removal of the "Fire Knock-Out" Christmas tree decoration from the stores. The device has also been banned for sale and use in the State of New Jersey, according to the Fire Marshals Association of North America.

Arthur Kaufman, manager of Future Fire Suppression, Inc., the manufacturer and distributor for "Fire Knock-Out", has requested an appeal of the Fire Marshal's Order to the Maryland State Fire Prevention Commission. The Commission will hear the appeal at the Commission meeting today, December 10 in Pikesville.

Halon 2402 is a toxic substance which can be harmful to health if it is ingested by humans. Health problems associated with Halon products are changes in the central nervous system, such as tremors, convulsions, lethargy, and cardiovascular effects which include hypotension and decreased heart rate.

Researchers Use Electrons In Fight Against Salmonella

Every few seconds another package of chicken on the assembly line rolls under the shoe box-sized contraption and comes to a halt. The red light on the side of the box turns green for a second or two as invisible and noiseless electrons bombard the chicken. Then the package moves on, and countless others take its place — each receiving its dose of high energy electrons — as workers load the packages of chicken onto trucks destined for local supermarkets.

Some sinister scene from a future sequel of Star Wars?

Sinister, hardly. But futuristic, yes, says Dr. James Heath, professor of poultry science at the University of Maryland.

The poultry processing plant of the future, Heath says, will more than likely have one of those gizmos — a high-energy electron beam accelerator — shooting volleys of electron particles at chicken parts, like kids shooting targets in a shooting gallery.

Heath should know. He and colleague, Dr. John Doerr, are working now on a project that uses the technology of electron beam accelerators to pasteurize chicken meat.

Why? For several reasons, Heath explains. It wasn't until "60 Minutes" broadcast its segment last March on salmonella that people began to sit up and take notice: improper handling of meats during processing and cooking contribute to the more than four million cases of food poisoning in the U.S. each year.

And, according to the Centers for Disease Control, the problem has gotten worse. In the last 10 years, outbreaks of salmonella in the Northeast and Middle Atlantic have increased five-fold.

While a lot of the responsibility for salmonella poisoning rests with consumers who improperly handle and cook meats such as chicken, Heath, Doerr and poultry processors are looking for an ounce of prevention — before the chicken leaves the processing plant.

"That's where this technology plays a role," says Heath. "There is considerable interest in the food industry and the scientific community in using irradiation to increase shelf-life and ensure the safety of poultry products."

Irradiation — or exposing foods to small doses of radiation — has been approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for some fruits and vegetables. And many in the scientific community anticipate that irradiation of poultry products is just around the corner.

Although the irradiation process — which uses radioisotope or gamma sources such as cobalt-60 and cesium-137 — creates absolutely no radioactivity in foods, it is cumbersome, expensive, and can only be used safely in small doses. And, adds Heath, it requires a protected processing plant separate from those where poultry are packaged.

"High-energy electron beam accelerators, on the other hand, can be used at high enough power to destroy or inactivate disease-causing organisms such as those that cause salmonella poisoning," says Heath.

He adds: "They're low in cost, compared to the equipment you need for gamma irradiation, and they're intrinsically safe."

The first phase of Heath's and Doerr's research analyzes the effects of electron beams on the smell, appearance, tenderness and shelf-life of poultry.

The second phase examines how well electron beams zap the micro-organisms responsible for salmonella.

Electron beam accelerators may eventually become the technology of choice to pasteurize poultry simply because they will be more convenient than gamma irradiation, Heath asserts.

"Potentially, electron beam accelerators — unlike radioisotope sources of irradiation — can be located right in the poultry processing plant, says Heath. "In fact, some day these accelerators may be located directly on the processing plants' packaging line where technicians can control the precise dose needed to destroy dangerous organisms."

State Police K-9 Division Seeks Dog

The Maryland State Police K-9 Division is seeking the donation of either a black or golden Labrador Retriever to be trained for use as a police dog.

The dog can be male or female, but should be between one year and 18 months old. The dog needs to have a good disposition and be able to play fetch and retrieve. AKC registration is preferred, but not necessary.

The dog will become part of an elite group of canines that perform a variety of important duties each day throughout Maryland, an MSP spokesman said.

Persons wishing to donate a retriever should contact First Sergeant Benjamin Cohey, commander of the State Police K-9 Division at 301-268-0131, 461-9459, or 461-3918.

Garrett Memorial Resumes CHOP For Youngsters

Garrett County Memorial Hospital's CHOP (Children's Hospital Orientation Program) has started again for another school year, according to a hospital spokesman. All first grade classrooms in the area are invited to participate in a learning visit of the hospital.

Students from the Kitzmiller Elementary and Dennett Road Schools visited the hospital in October and November. Visiting students spend most of their time in the Emergency Room observing nursing staff demonstrating techniques and instruments used there. The goal of the program is to familiarize children with the hospital so that they may be less frightened if they have to make an emergency visit, the spokesman said.

Students get a first-hand look at other areas of the hospital by taking an elevator to the second floor to see where examinations are sterilized in the Central Supply Department and peek through the glass at the rooms in the Obstetric Department. On the basement level, they are guided through the laundry, the laundry and other departments," the spokesman said.

When the students leave, they are given a bag filled with a specially designed coloring book, band-aids, medicine and first-aid guides and even a CHOP Program is a cooperative effort between the

Pirolozzi Named District One Administrator

Senator John N. Bambacus recently announced the appointment of Mary Beth Pirolozzi as his district administrator. Her responsibilities will include representing the senator at public meetings, advising the senator of constituent concerns and operating the district office.

In making the announcement, Bambacus said, "I have had the pleasure of working with Mary Beth over the past 16 years, as well as having her as a student in my state and local government class. She brings with her a great deal of experience and knowledge of community activities and understands the service responsibilities to the citizens of Allegany and Garrett counties. I am pleased to have her as a member of our legislative staff."

Pirolozzi has been a member of the staff at Frostburg State University for the past 16 years, serving as the office manager in the office of University Advancement and as secretary/accountant for the Frostburg State University Foundation, Inc. Her activities included organizing and planning special fund raising events as well as playing an active role in the development and growth of the alumni program.

A native and resident of Allegany County, Pirolozzi has worked with many service organizations such as the Allegany County Crippled Children's League, American Cancer Society and the Maryland School for the Deaf. She also served as a member of the St. John Neumann Home School Executive Board and has been active on the local and state levels with the Miss America Scholarship pageants.

Pirolozzi is currently a business administration major at Frostburg State University. She resides in Cumberland with her son, Keith.

Firlie Selected As Legislative Session Intern

Timothy J. Firlie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Firlie, Cumberland, has been selected by the Maryland General Assembly to serve as a legislative intern for District One State Senator John N. Bambacus for the 1988 legislative session in Annapolis. "I am very pleased to have a student of Tim's calibre on my legislative staff," says Bambacus. "He has worked in my district office for the past few years and has worked extensively on becoming familiar with policy issues that will arise during the upcoming session."

Firlie is currently a student at Frostburg State University majoring in political science. He is the president of the Political Science Club, a member of the Student Government Association, a member of Delta Beta Chi Fraternity and an active member of the Greek System on campus.

Bambacus adds, "I feel Tim's contribution to my staff will greatly enhance our effectiveness during the 1988 session." In Annapolis Firlie will be responsible for following legislation through both houses, attending various committee meetings, maintaining close contact with constituents and briefing Bambacus on various concerns from the district. He will graduate from Frostburg State University in May.

Frostburg State Teacher Interns In Local Schools

A number of student teacher intern assignments in Garrett County schools involving Frostburg State University were announced this week by Dr. Alice Alexander, coordinator of N-8 Field Experiences at FSU. The assignments will conclude this Friday, December 11.

The following persons were assigned to Garrett County Schools: Patti Dixon, Oakland, with Mrs. Twyla Stewart at Accident Elementary; Susan Keadle, Petersburg, W. Va., with Mrs. Eleanor Sloan at Bloomington Elementary; Jill Gracie, Swanton, with Mrs. Randi Sell, Broad Ford Elementary; Debbie Breneman, Accident, with Mrs. Esther Bender, and Crystal Brown, Salisbury, Pa., with

Gamblers Hotline Now Available Through DHMH

Help for people with a compulsive gambling addiction is just a phone call away now that the Maryland Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DHMH) has established the Gambling Hotline of Maryland. Howard B. Silverman, acting director of the DHMH Addiction Services Administration, announced the hotline contract has been awarded to the National Center for Pathological Gambling, Inc. of Baltimore.

"The center will operate the statewide hotline 24 hours a day year-round for compulsive gamblers," said Silverman. "Those callers requesting treatment will be referred to co-operating agencies and private practitioners."

The initial contract award for $7,038 will fund the hotline from December 1, 1987 through June 30, 1988.

The National Center for Pathological Gambling, Inc. is a non-profit organization specializing in education and training, research and treatment. "Compulsive gambling is an addiction that affects approximately 3% of Maryland's population, regardless of age, sex, race or socioeconomic status," said Dr. Valerie Lorenz, the center's executive director. "The emphasis of our activities focuses on education, research and information/referral — precisely the services requested by ASA," she said.

The hotline number for compulsive gamblers, family members and friends is 1-800-332-4402. Trained volunteers provide general information about compulsive gambling and the availability of treatment programs and self-help groups such as Gambler's Anonymous, Gam Anon, and G.A. Intergroup. All calls will remain confidential.

Injury, Illness Rate Stable For Maryland In '86

There was one job-related injury or illness for every 13 workers in Maryland's private sector workplaces in 1986, according to data released this week by Henry Koellen Jr., Maryland's Commissioner of Labor and Industry. Results of Maryland's survey of occupational injuries and illnesses showed that, while the work force increased by 61,000 workers, the injury and illness rate remained stable.

The latest survey, based on reports submitted for 1986 by Maryland employers, shows an overall incidence rate of 7.8 injuries and illnesses per 100 full-time workers, a slight decrease from the 1985 figure of 7.9. Maryland's 7.8 rate is better than the national rate of 7.9 for 1986. The rate for cases serious enough to result in lost workdays was 3.9 per 100 workers, down from 4.1 in 1986.

The construction industry remained the leader in injuries and illnesses with a 15.8 rate, but it was down from the 1985 figure of 16.1. The manufacturing rate remained unchanged at 10.1. The rate for finance, insurance and real estate was up slightly from 2.8 in 1985 to 2.9 in 1986.

Reported occupational injury and illness data are based on records employers must maintain under the Maryland Occupational Safety and Health Act. Records are processed by the Division of Labor and Industry in cooperation with the Bureau of Labor Statistics, U.S. Department of Labor. The Occupational Injuries and Illnesses Survey is a Federal/State cooperative statistical program which covers employers in private sector industries which had at least one employee during 1986. Excluded are the self-employed, farmers with fewer than 11 employees, and private households.

Additional information on recordable occupational injuries and illnesses is available by contacting Ms. Letha Ticer, Division of Labor and Industry, 501 St. Paul Place, Baltimore, Maryland; telephone (301) 333-4202 or toll free from within Maryland on 1-800-492-6226, Extension 4202.

State Police To Get Tough On Drunk Drivers During Holiday Season

Maryland State Police Superintendent Colonel Elmer H. Tippet says statewide enforcement of Maryland's drunk driving laws will be strict during the long holiday season. Tippet's warning on drunk driving is timed to coincide with Governor William Donald Schaefer's proclamation declaring National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week in Maryland, December 13 through 19. The proclamation will be released during a breakfast meeting this Friday in Annapolis. The meeting will be hosted by the Metropolitan Baltimore Public Safety Media Relations Council, a group which represents members of the media as well as representatives from the highway safety community.

Maryland State Police will be concentrating their holiday enforcement efforts on field sobriety testing of drivers suspected of driving under the influence or driving while intoxicated.

"Every trooper statewide will have access to P-B-T (Preliminary Breath Test) equipment during the holidays, while administering the roadside field sobriety tests," said Colonel Tippet. "Our main goal is to locate, identify and remove the drunk driver from our highways." State Police will be using the highly successful sobriety checkpoints and alcohol saturation patrols throughout the holiday season. Extra teams of troopers will be deployed at various locations around the state focusing attention on roadways which have traditionally demonstrated a high incidence of alcohol related accidents.

During 1986, nearly half the drivers killed in auto accidents who were subsequently tested had consumed alcohol prior to the accident. In 1986, there were 790 fatalities in Maryland, 302 of them alcohol related. During the first ten months of 1987, Maryland State Police arrested 10,564 people for driving while intoxicated.

President Taft weighed 352 pounds.

CHRISTMAS TREES: AN OLD TRADITION THAT ADDS SPARKLE TO THE HOLIDAY

by Bernice Kepple

The decorated fir tree was first used in Germany about the time of Martin Luther. The German words "O Tannenbaum" were set to one of the oldest tunes in existence. The English version, "O, Christmas Tree," (at right) is heard in homes all over our country as families decorate their tree.

As recent as three decades ago most Christmas trees were wild evergreens cut from the forest. Whole families made annual treks to the forest to choose and cut their holiday tree. Many of the ready-cut trees which were available at that time were imported from Canada or the New England states. But in the 1950s, "plantation-grown trees" became available and soon replaced the wild trees. Today, almost all of the 30 million natural Christmas trees used annually are grown especially for Christmas.

Garrett County led the state in Christmas tree production for many years. The Garrett County Christmas Tree Growers' Association was formed in 1955 with two Oakland residents, W. W. Nace and Tom Thayer, serving as the first president and secretary/treasurer, respectively.

The following year the county organization, spear-headed by a state organization and the Maryland Christmas Tree Growers' Association (MCTA), was formed. That year they also joined 10 other states in the National Christmas Tree Growers' Association. John Adams, of Oakland, then chief forester for the Western Maryland Railroad, was the first

"O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree,
Your branches green delight us.

Your branches green delight us.

"They're green when summer days are bright;
They're green when winter snow is white.

trustee to the national association and was treasurer of that organization for five years.

An active member and past officer of the MCTA, Dr. Frank Custer, owner of Mountain Top Tree Farm, began planting pines on his farm near Oakland in 1956. "Many, many trees were planted in the 50s," he said, explaining that the government's "soilbank" program and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) worked together to help growers get started.

Custer explained that in the soilbank program, farmers were paid not to plant crops, but could plant the ground in trees provided they didn't harvest them for 10 years. Custer didn't put his farm in the soilbank program. He did, however, take advantage of the help offered by the ASCS, who furnished trees and paid 80 percent of the planting costs. "At that time, many growers got in, and were even paid to get in, with almost nothing invested," he said.

Today, Mountain Top Tree Farm is covered by 70 acres of various species of pine and fir trees. This includes one steep hill still covered by a stand of original pines planted in 1956. "The hill would be hard to work if we replanted it, anyway," Custer said, and added that the stand of 30-year old trees keeps the topsoil on the hillside from eroding. Custer is also a partner in 30 acres of pines located on another farm.

His first Christmas trees — about 100 of them — were sold in 1964. In 1968, Custer remembers, a Number One Scotch Pine, measuring five to seven-and-a-half feet, cut, baled and loaded, sold for $1.75. "You've got to remember that wages those days were only $1 per hour, though," he said.

Looking over the Custer farm from the machine shop and the retail lot on the hill, trees can be seen in all stages of growth. "We usually plant some trees each year, even if they're just replacements for those that have been sold or the few that die," said Custer. The rows of trees are sprayed with herbicide in the fall for weed control, and mowing is done between the rows four or five times a year. When whole stands of trees are harvested (a process which takes three to five years), rye is planted as a cover crop in the fall and again in the spring. "That rye brings the deer in droves," he says. "And they do bother the trees some. They not only eat new growth in the spring, they like to sharpen their horns on the trees. But as long as there's not too much damage done, we don't fuss; we enjoy them."

The Custers (Dr. Custer is a retired veterinarian and a retired member of the Maryland Department of Agriculture, and his wife, Lorena) offer not only ready-cut trees, but "ball and burlap" trees that can be replanted after the holidays, "choose and cut" trees that are picked out by the purchaser (who may borrow a bowsaw to cut it), and even specially boxed trees that can be delivered anywhere in the country by United Parcel Service.

The Custer operation is very organized. During the year, one full-time employee, aided by another two or three at shearing time, and five or six at harvest time, keeps the operation running smoothly. It takes two or three weeks just to harvest the trees, which have been measured and tagged, either for harvest, or to be left standing for the "choose and cut" buyers. All the pines which will be sold this year were sprayed with a mixture of a green-pigmented latex base and water. This helps the tree retain moisture and gives it a pretty green color, Custer says.

A "shaker" was used on Mountain Top Tree Farm for the first time this year. Custer explains that all pines lose the equivalent of a year's growth of needles in October. Many of those dead, brown needles remain caught in the branches of the tree. The mechanical shaker rids the tree of all these unsightly, dead needles before it is baled.

A grading system is used as the trees are baled. Number One Premium trees are left with a clear butt end; Number Two Select trees are given one cut mark on the butt end with the chain saw; and Number Three, or those not quite measuring up to select, are given an "X" marking on the butt end of the stump. A color code for tree height is used at this time also. The butt ends of trees measuring six to seven feet tall are left clear; those from seven to eight feet are spray painted orange; those from eight to nine feet are painted green; and the butts of five to six foot trees are spray

The view, looking toward Route 219, shows trees in many stages of growth, as more young trees are planted for every tree harvested.

The baled trees are then hauled to a shady area under the large old pines and sorted, according to grade, for shipping. Custer says that approximately 4,000 to 5,000 trees will be harvested and sold at Mountain Top Tree Farm this year.

"Wholesalers pick up truckloads of trees on Thanksgiving weekend, and retailers — the public — always begin coming to buy Christmas trees about three days before we're ready," Custer says. This year, early in November, 77 large trees left Custer's farm for Washington, D.C., to be used in the White House Pageant of Peace.

Custer feels that growers these days are doing a better job in their tree operations. "We're constantly looking at genetics to get better trees, nutrition through fertilization, weed control through vegetation control programs, and care of the trees through shaping and pruning."

There are some concerns, though, Custer says. "Growers, having had a sellers' market a number of years, have neglected to provide the best quality trees their customers preferred." The State and National Christmas Tree Growers' Associations are working to improve the quality of the trees consumers buy and take home

"We're looking at ways to deliver good, saleable trees in fresh condition to consumers at the retail lot and to retailers at the wholesale lots. We're trying to educate retailers in how to care for the trees prior to selling, too," Custer said.

Christmas tree growers have a voluntary check-off system which gives one cent per tree sold to the national organization for public relations and educational purposes. "I purposely won't sell what retailers can't use and care for. I send them a number of trees they can handle and sell."

At Mountain Top Tree Farm, the trees sold to the public are displayed inside a low shed.

hanging from hooks in the ceiling. In this way, Custer says, customers can walk around the trees and turn them to make sure they buy just the "right tree" this holiday season.

Each tree sold contains a tag which gives care instructions for the tree. Custer says that these instructions are simple: to assure that the tree will stay flame-resistant, cut off about two inches of the stem; mount it in a water-holding stand and add water daily; place the tree away from heat outlets and see that electric lights do not have frayed cords or cracked sockets; and turn off the tree lights when leaving the home or retiring for the night.

Custer doesn't send many "trees-in-a-box," by UPS, probably between 30 and 50 each year, simply because he's not anxious to expand his business that much. "It's a nice idea, though," he says. "All those who have received them have been very pleased with them." The tree is shipped in a box that has been treated with wax, keeping the tree moist and fresh. Shipping takes about three to four days in Maryland, and if cared for properly, the tree can last until the end of January. Custer, whose family is spread out all over the country, sends them trees each year and is pleased with the speed of delivery, condition of the trees and their lifespan. He considers the idea a perfect way to send a bit of Maryland to family and friends.

Custer sees the concept as direct marketing — a way for growers to expand the Christmas tree market. "There are 38 million Christmas trees sold each year in the United States. In a few years there will be 40 to 60 million trees ready to cut. What are you going to do with them? We've got to tailor our product so more people use it. It answers the questions many people ask. How are we going to stuff that big tree into our compact car, or carry it up those six flights of steps, or squeeze it into that tiny elevator? The idea is catching on with people who want to send trees to relatives, senior citizens and people who aren't able to go out and get their own tree."

A Christmas tree not only provides holiday enjoyment, but through its growing years, the tree also cleanses the air, provides people with oxygen, protects the water supply, makes a home for wildlife and beautifies the land. For each Christmas tree harvested, two or three are replanted to continue the cycle. Many other Garrett County

A MOUNTAIN TOP TREE FARM employee (above) holds a harvested Christmas tree in the "shaker," a device that rids the tree of all the unsightly, dead needles caught in its branches before the tree is baled. Below, the trees are baled and marked for both quality and height before being shipped.

Christmas tree growers sell trees locally or ship them to more populated areas to be sold. A couple of growers even have their own retail lots in more urban areas of the state. Some of the county's large-volume growers are: Marshall and Cindy Stacy's Pinetum Farm Christmas trees which the Stacys sell in retail lots in Howard and Montgomery counties; Tom Kight, Dr. James Feaster, Harry Hunter, who retails trees in Glen Burnie; Maple Land Farm and Nursery; and William Nace.

Garrett County families are fortunate to live in an area where it is not difficult to find their "dream" tree this Christmas, either in one of the many retail lots or on one of the farms where they may "choose and cut" their own. The tree is an important part of Christmas, worth all the trouble and the cost when sheer joy, delight and pleasure are reflected in children's eyes on Christmas morning.

"O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree,
"You give us so much pleasure!"

"O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree,
"You give us so much pleasure!"

"How oft at Christmas tide the sight,
"O green fir tree, gives us delight!"

"O Christmas Tree, O Christmas Tree,
"You give us so much pleasure."

Interest Rate On Home Loans Lowered By VA

The Veterans Administration lowered its maximum home loan interest rate from 11% to 10.5%, effective November 10, 1987.

In announcing the change, VA Administrator Thomas K. Turnage said, "The decrease reflects the current market condition in that investors are willing to accept a lower yield on long-term investments."

The lower rate means that the monthly payment of a typical VA home loan of $70,000 will be $26.31 less per month.

The last change in the VA interest rate occurred on October 5, 1987, when it went up from 10.5% to 11%.

Also effective November 10, the VA decreased by one-half percentage point the maximum rates for Graduated Payment Mortgages to 10.75%, home improvement loans to 12%, manufactured home loans to 13%, manufactured home lot-only loans to 12.5%, and manufactured home and lot loans to 12.5%.

VA home loans may be used to purchase, improve, or refinance a house or condominium, or to purchase or refinance a manufactured home.

The Choraleers To Perform At Cherry Glade

The Choraleers will present a program at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church on Wednesday, December 16, at 7:30 p.m. This will be a Christmas candle-light service.

Choraleers, of Lancaster, Pa., is a group of 17 young men and women of post-high school age. "Theirs is a musical ministry presenting a dynamic Christian witness in music and original drama which portrays Bible truths with a modern-day relevance," according to a Cherry Glade Church spokesman. Their varied program includes music from the classics to the contemporary, from acapella to accompaniment with many original arrangements.

While known as Choraleers of Lancaster, these young people come from a variety of areas and even states and countries. In addition to a weekend ministry in the Eastern United States, their travels have taken them into all of the U.S. and Canada as well as Central America and other Caribbean Islands.

Arnold Moshier, director, has been a teacher of music for 28 years and has conducted music in many areas of the church, school and community. Mrs. Moshier is employed fulltime in nursing in a local hospital. The 17 members have a variety of occupations and volunteer their time for this Christian musical ministry.

THE CHORALEERS

The concert at Cherry Glade will conclude the musical ministry of the Choraleers. After 28 years of a successful growing ministry, the Moshiers say they feel it is time to "un-schedule" their lives and move on.

The Cherry Glade Church is located along the Accident-Bittering Road, approximately four miles from Accident. Everyone is welcome to this special Christmas concert. Those who desire more information may call Elmer H. Maust, pastor, at 245-4143.

Day Care Providers Association Meets

The third meeting of the Garrett County Day Care Providers Association was held on December 2 at Garrett Community College, McHenry. Those in attendance were Dean Wilson, Paula Seaman, Debbie Workman, Cathy Case, Dandrea Magoon, Wendy Warnick, Debi Spear, Lisa Fike and Liz Hart.

Guest speaker Darlene Glatfelter, of H & R Block, discussed changes in tax laws and tax preparation for day care providers.

The Association will not meet again until March, 1988.

Heart Association Offering Free Holiday Pamphlet

With the upcoming holidays, it becomes even more difficult to limit calories and fat intake. Is it possible to enjoy delicious holiday foods and yet not gain ten pounds?

The American Heart Association-Western Maryland Division thinks so and is offering a free holiday pamphlet entitled "Holiday a la Heart" that features several tasty, yet heart-healthy, recipes. This pamphlet is a collection of easy-to-prepare recipes such as onion-dill dip, raspberry cheesecake, and turkey tetrazzini. "These dishes all reflect a lighter, healthier way of cooking and will beautifully decorate your holiday table," an AHA spokesman said.

The American Heart Association-Western Maryland Division is also offering another recipe pamphlet especially geared for people with high blood pressure called "Now You're Cookin'." This guide contains recipes that are low in sodium, fat, and cholesterol.

Research has shown that reducing sodium intake may help lower the risk of developing high blood pressure and stroke in susceptible people.

To obtain free copies of "Holiday a la Heart" and "Now You're Cookin'", persons may call the local American Heart Association Office at (301) 724-4011 or stop by at 551 North Centre Street (second floor over Buchanan Lumber Company), Cumberland.

Entertainment Spending Increases In State, County

Maryland State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein says Marylanders spent more than $118.9 million on taxable entertainment during the July, August and September 1987 period, or almost 8% more than entertainment spending for the same quarter of the previous year.

"We are sending checks totaling $6,641,493 to Maryland's subdivisions as their share of the admissions and amusement tax revenues collected for the first quarter of fiscal year 1988," Goldstein said. "This distribution is about 3% more than the $6,452,817 million the subdivisions received for the first quarter of fiscal year 1987."

Compared to the first quarter of fiscal year 1987, Garrett County's share of the revenues jumped 38 percent, from $34,950 in the first quarter of '87 to $48,329 in the first quarter of fiscal year 1988.

The comptroller cited increases in spending in the categories of golf courses, night clubs, and motion pictures. Spending at golf courses jumped 19.5% to $10.86 million, while night clubs admissions showed a 15.4% increase to $3.04 million. Spending on motion pictures increased nearly 9%, to $19.9 million.

This is the third consecutive year in which we've seen growth in summer entertainment spending," Goldstein noted. "Entertainment spending declined in the summer of 1984, but has increased at a greater rate each year since then."

The admissions and amusement tax is collected by the Comptroller's Office at rates set by local governments, and the revenue is returned to them quarterly.

Typewriter Theft Investigated By Sheriff's Dept.

The Garrett County Sheriff's Department this week is investigating the theft of a typewriter, valued at $900, reportedly removed from an office at the Garrett County Courthouse sometime between November 12 and 16.

Jeanie Hetrick, employed at the Courthouse as secretary for General Services, reported the crime that occurred in Room 304. The typewriter is a Xerox Memory model. According to investigating officer, Chief Deputy Harland Tichnell, there were no signs of forced entry.

A breaking and entering and theft that occurred sometime between November 29 and December 2 was reported by Ronald W. Lang, Baltimore, who stated that his tag-along trailer was broken into.

According to Lang, the trailer was parked on the Ralph M. Burnett Lane off Oakland-Sang Run Road when a person or persons forced open the door and removed a kerosene heater and a propane tank and regulator. Total loss and damage amounted to $320, according to investigating officer, Deputy R. Drenning.

Any individual artist who is a resident of Maryland or non-profit arts organization incorporated in the state is eligible to apply.

General Operating Grants to Arts Organizations are designed to fund arts organizations in the state whose programming is recognized to have substantial impact on their communities. Funding categories: Children's Events, Dance, Folk Arts, Literature, Media, Multi-Discipline, Music, Theater, Visual Arts.

Special Project Grants offer financial assistance to a wide range of short term arts projects, such as providing support for arts activities of non-arts organizations or new activities of arts organizations. Funding categories are the same as for Grants to Arts Organizations.

All grant applications must be for activities occurring between July 1, 1988, and June 30, 1989.

The Individual Artist Program provides direct grants to artists, offers professional and financial advice, and initiates projects that provide services and opportunities for artists in Maryland. Artist Fellowships in the amount of $5,000 are awarded solely on the basis of creative excellence to artists who are permanent residents of Maryland. Works-in-Progress Grants are intended to fund single projects already underway by Maryland visual artists, choreographers, and writers.

Holiday Mailing Tips Offered By Div. Postmaster

Bulky brown paper and loose string are out when it comes to wrapping holiday parcels; proper addressing is in, says Baltimore Division General Manager/Postmaster James A. McDougald.

"The name of the game is for customers to address packages properly, with the name, house number and street, and/or the apartment number," McDougald said. "The city, state and ZIP Code should all be on the last line, — be sure to use the ZIP Code! And put your return address and ZIP Code in the upper left corner."

McDougald also suggests writing a parcel recipient's name and address on a slip of paper and put that inside the parcel.

"Remember, too, that Postal Service standards require a surcharge for oversized envelopes," McDougald said.

The Postal Service offers these additional suggestions for mailing correctly:

"Cushion the contents of packages carefully with crumpled paper, commercially available foam shells or air-pocket padding, and leave no empty space in the box. If the gift item is small, use a padded mailing bag.

"Seal your parcel with one of these kinds of tape: pressure sensitive, nylon-reinforced kraft paper or glass-reinforced pressure sensitive. Don't use cellophane or masking tape — they're not sturdy enough."

"Don't wrap a carton in brown paper or tie it with twine; paper can tear and twine can get tangled in mail processing equipment."

"Address not just packages, but cards and letters too, with smudge-proof ink."

"Put the recipient's name and address in the lower right part of the top of the package, and your name and address in the upper left, and remove all other labels and addresses."

"Try to avoid sending cash, but if you must, use Registered Mail. Use it for irreplaceable valuables, too."

"Attention to these few mailing pointers will help assure that your cards, letters and packages will arrive on time and in good condition," said McDougald. "And it will help us serve you better, too."

We're Hear To Help

by Pamela A. Martin, CCCA

ONE OF MANY

One barrier to buying a hearing aid is that the would be user thinks of his situation as abnormal. He does not want to have to depend on an obvious external device for his listening needs. Applied across the board, this kind of thinking would result in a great deal of unused electronic equipment. A hearing aid is an electronic marvel that collects, amplifies, and delivers sound. So too is home high fidelity equipment and portable radios with headphones with their radio tuners, amplifiers, and speakers. What would life be like without increasingly sophisticated telephone systems? Our nation's defense is based on radar and surveillance equipment. A hearing aid is but one electronic device in the midst of a whole range of listening devices.

Today's hearing assist devices are a common electronic component that helps one to overcome hearing difficulties. For the experienced approach to meeting your hearing needs, we welcome you at ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES. Let us help you regain the enjoyment of daily sounds so important to your lifestyle.

Even if a hearing aid were to become wet, there is no chance of the wearer experiencing electrical shock.

Highland Arts Group Schedules Madrigal Event

by Chris E. McCabe

"All Hail and Good Cheer!"
The season of merriment approaches and Highland Arts Unlimited, Inc. proudly announces A Madrigal Christmas Celebration. December 14 has been chosen as the date that the Church-McKee Arts Center of Potomac State College, Keyser, W. Va., will be transformed into a grand hall bedecked with live greens and flowing banners evoking an Elizabethan Christmas Celebration.

The evening begins with a reception, served in the arts wing of the center. From 6 to 8 p.m. tables brimming with feasting will be spread in true English style. The aroma of hot wassail will fill the air, as the traditional delicacies of plum pudding with hard sauce, nut breads, and cheeses take their places along side of trays overflowing with sweets and pastries tantalizing even the most stalwart dieting lords and ladies. During the reception costumed singers will mingle with us modern-day folk and prepare us for what follows.

At the stroke of 8 the trumpets will sound the fanfare and ladies. During the reception costumed singers will mingle with us modern-day folk and prepare us for what follows. no director nor accompanist, making this one of the most difficult types of music to perform.

Madrigal singing, brought to England from Italy in the 16th century, was first an informal type of entertainment at the castle and country homes of the landed gentry. Frequently the lords and ladies performed the music themselves as they sat at the dinner in the great hall. Naturally, during the twelve days of Christmas Season, there was much entertaining and singing of Madrigals.

Madrigals are songs written for small groups in which several voices parts are skillfully combined so that each part is interesting and independent both melodically and rhythmically. The Madrigals are often sung without instrumental accompaniment, and they are frequently based on secular text or fable of the times. The first Madrigals were quite spontaneous. It was not until the late 16th and 17th centuries that they were published in written form. Madrigal singing continues to flourish in England and the Madrigal Society, founded in 1741, still meets regularly in Carpenters Hall, London.

Plan now to be a part of our Christmas Madrigal celebration. Tickets will be on sale at the door for $3.00 and all Highland Arts Members need only show their membership card, admission includes both the reception and the concert. Any person inclined to arrive in costume of the period will most certainly not be turned away. Let us celebrate this Holiday season with merriment and revelry. All Hail and Good Cheer.

Michael Kozier Named New ASCS County Executive Director

Michael R. Kozier has been named to the position of ASCS County Executive Director, following G.P. Halterman's recent advancement to regional director. Kozier began his duties Monday at the Soil Conservation Office at the Garrett County Courthouse.

Kozier and his wife, Joanne, have been Garrett County residents since 1973, living in Accident, McHenry, and currently in Deer Park.

Graduating with a forestry degree from Allegany Community College, Kozier then transferred to West Virginia University, graduating with a degree in forest resources management. After graduation, he worked for state agencies and private industries in forestry-related fields before joining the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) in 1983.

His first ASCS position was in Cecil County, and after three years he was transferred to Fayette County, Pa., where he served until his recent transfer to Garrett County. Throughout his years of service in other areas, he and his wife have maintained their Garrett County residence.

In Garrett County, Kozier plans to continue Halterman's work. Also, depending on the budget in Washington, D.C., he plans to push Ag Land Preservation a little more. He also intends to increase information to the ag community as much as possible, with specific plans to use slide and video presentations to promote good public relations. "The office will do our usual best in trying to provide service" to the county's ag community, he said.

North Garrett FFA Alumni Sets Meeting Date

The North Garrett FFA Alumni will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, December 15, at 6 p.m. in the Vo-Ag room of Northern High School.

After a short business meeting, a Christmas get-together will be held. Anyone attending is asked to bring a snack or beverage.

Everyone is welcome to attend. For further information, interested persons may call 826-8749.

Farming In Maryland

Bernice Kepple, Farm Editor

Farmers Should Inspect Stored Grain Year-Round

To prevent economic loss and preserve the quality of farm-stored grain destined for future markets, Olin S. Davis Jr., chairperson, Maryland State ASC Committee, said farmers who participate in the commodity loan and grain reserve programs should inspect the crops year-round.

"The grain must be inspected for insects and mold growth, not only in warm weather, but also during the fall and winter months," Davis said. Farmers can use prescribed grain storage and handling methods to eliminate wasted grain and lost profits, he said.

The market value of infested grain may be substantially reduced if the number of insect-damaged kernels is sufficient to lower the grade of the grain. Discounts against the price paid per bushel are often assessed by the buyer if live insects are present in the grain.

Although insects in stored grain almost go dormant for the winter, Davis said temperatures in the center of freshly-stored grain may be warm enough for insects to feed and increase in number. "Regular inspections are necessary because the longer the grain is in storage, the more apt it is to become infested."

When there is evidence of insect infestation in stored grain, the ASCS official said farmers are required to either fumigate or recondition the grain, rotate it with new crops if in the reserve program, or repay the loan.

With harvesting completed, the U.S. Department of Agriculture says farmers should have adequate space to store their 1987 grain crops. Although ending stocks for the season are estimated to be 13 percent over last year, USDA's agricultural outlook report says the smaller harvest and increased use will likely reduce total storage needs below last year's level. At that time, approximately five billion bushels of storage space remained unused.

"Even with no growth in capacity since December 1986, five to six billion bushels of storage space are likely to remain unused this year," USDA officials said.

However, capacity growth during 1987 is believed to be nearly equal to that of 1986. In 1986, on-farm capacity increased an estimated 963 million bushels and off-farm capacity rose 839 million bushels.

Cost Of No-Till Equipment Is Tax Deductible

The 1986 Maryland legislature passed a law allowing farmers to deduct the cost and installation of conservation tillage equipment purchased after December 31, 1985, from their Maryland state income tax. The Maryland Department of Agriculture (MDA) developed a method for certifying eligibility for this deduction, which includes the following program details.

1. Conservation tillage equipment means a new or used "planter" or "drill" designed to minimize the disturbance of soil in planting crops.

2. Equipment must have been purchased after December 31, 1985.

3. Equipment must have a minimum useful life of four years.

4. The applicant must retain ownership of the equipment claimed for at least three years.

5. Deduction may be spread over more than one year if equipment deduction value is greater than income claimed. To be eligible to file the deduction, farmers should first contact the local Soil Conservation District office for certification forms and information about the deduction.

They must next present a dated receipt of equipment purchase to the Soil Conservation District to verify their expense.

on the certification form.

The Soil Conservation District will then forward the form to the MDA for final approval.

The farmer will receive two copies of the certification — one for his records and the original to forward with his income tax return.

For more information on which costs may be deducted and just how it all works, contact the Garrett Soil Conservation District at 334-1900.

Training Meeting Set For Farm Bureau Directors

The Garrett County Farm Bureau Board of Directors and Women's Committee have been invited to join Tucker and Preston County, W.Va., Farm Bureaus for a Board of Directors training meeting on Dec. 14. The meeting will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. at the Chimney Corner Restaurant in Red House and will include dinner ordered from the menu and paid for by those attending. Spouses are welcome and encouraged to attend.

Following dinner, a training video from the American Farm Bureau Federation, "Formula for Success," and a motivational video by Earl Nightingale, "The Strangest Secret," will be shown and discussed.

Directors and Women's Committee members wishing to make reservations may call Bill Aiken at 826-8427 or Clark Kolb at 826-8484 as soon as possible.

Gov. Schaefer To Host Chesapeake Bay Seminar And Agreement Signing

On December 14 and 15 representatives of the commonwealths of Virginia and Pennsylvania, the District of Columbia, the Environmental Protection Agency, and the Chesapeake Bay Commission will join Maryland Governor William Donald Schaefer in signing the 1987 Chesapeake Bay Agreement. The agreement, drafted earlier this year, is a blueprint for bay restoration efforts to be undertaken over the next 10 years under the supervision of the executive council of the Chesapeake Bay Program.

In addition to Governor Schaefer, members of the council include its chairman, Virginia Governor Gerald L. Baliles; Pennsylvania Governor Robert P. Casey; Washington, D.C., Mayor Marion Barry Jr.; U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Lee Thomas; and Kenneth J. Cole, chairman of the Chesapeake Bay Commission. The agreement will be signed Tuesday, December 15, at 10 a.m. at the conclusion of the two-day program.

Governor Schaefer said, "I am determined to speed up our efforts to restore the Chesapeake Bay. This agreement is important — not just because it represents the joint commitment of four political jurisdictions, the EPA, and the Chesapeake Bay Commission — but because it is based on specific goals and has a time table that dictates deliberate action. We can restore the bay and we must."

Welcoming remarks for the program will be offered by Virginia Secretary of the Department of Natural Resources John Daniel and David Carroll, Chesapeake Bay coordinator for Governor Schaefer.

Implementation of the agreement will be discussed in six seminars to be held on the afternoon of Monday, December 14. Each seminar will be conducted by panels of policymakers representing each of the signatories to the agreement. Topics include living resources, water quality, population and development, public participation and education, public access, and governance.

On Tuesday, a breakfast will be held for elected officials from Maryland, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the District of Columbia and the signatories to the agreement.

The 1987 Chesapeake Bay Agreement will be signed at 10 a.m. Seminar participants and the public are invited to witness the signing.

Deere & Company Presents Series On Tillage Practices

Tillage systems, their cost, their performance, fertilizers needed, and the results of new research, are some of the topics in this series of articles on tillage printed by Deere & Company of Moline, Ill. Gordon D. Tjelmeland, agricultural product information specialist with Deere & Company, says that misconceptions persist about tillage and agricultural chemical practices, and that the most current data has shed new light on the matter. In printing the series of articles, Tjelmeland says, Deere & Company hopes to provide sensible, balanced, straight-forward information that people can put to good use.

The following is the last in a series of six articles from Deere & Company scientists and technicians.

"BEST" TILLAGE SYSTEM: COST-CONSCIOUS MATCH OF SITE-SPECIFIC METHODS

The advent of chemical weed control in the 1950s and the growth of conservation tillage in the 1960s and 70s has fueled a continuing debate about which tillage system is best — conventional, minimum or no-till.

Farmers and researchers have since learned that no one tillage system can hold the title of "best" under all conditions. Soil type, weather, topography, crops and individual farming goals influence tillage performance. Because of this, tillage choices always have to be site-specific.

"If there is one common thread to follow in choosing a tillage system, it's economics," says Dr. Richard Johnson, senior scientist at the Deere & Company technical center in Moline, Illinois. "Short-term cashflow has to be balanced against long-term soil maintenance."

"A good tillage system should produce profitable crops while also controlling water and wind erosion. It must also be able to incorporate fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides without endangering soil or groundwater supplies."

"Tillage choices can be complex, so the best way to start is by defining the overall goal," says Johnson. "The fundamental objective is to control pests while conditioning the soil for planting."

"Tillage tools and crop chemicals are simply the means to an end. They can be used in any combination. It's important to pick tillage tools with the most flexibility to meet changing conditions. What works one year might be all wrong the next."

Johnson stresses that only a broad range of knowledge and keen observation of advancing tillage technology will help the successful farm manager make the right choices.

"Keep crop yield records and calculate net profits, then relate them to tillage techniques used and the actual costs of production. Jot down field notes on any soil erosion problems or weed infestations you see developing on your farm."

"If you change or reduce tillage, make certain that additional chemical costs for pest control don't cut into your net profits."

"Follow local university literature on new tillage methods, but don't assume that every hot new tillage tip necessarily has a place on your farm."

"If you see a new technique that seems promising, try it on a limited scale. See how it works for you before totally committing to it. Don't commit just because a neighbor or some article says it's the thing to do," Johnson cautions. "Don't be afraid to try something new."

"But leave the 'great tillage debate' in the coffee shop. Anyone who rigidly believes that one particular tillage system beats all others is headed for trouble."

"No-till, for example, can lead to insect and weed problems. Excessive conventional tillage can contribute to soil erosion. Minimum tillage can sometimes lead to reduced crop yields. Yet each of these systems can also offer great advantages in particular situations," Johnson says.

Glenn Olson, manager of tillage and planting equipment

Safety Signs Help Keep Animal Waste From Being Hazardous

Animal waste can be hazardous if safety precautions are ignored during design and while working around storage structures.

In fact, according to Jim Schlossnagle, U.S. Soil Conservation Service, safety features are required for all waste management systems that the agency helps build.

"Farms are already known as one of the most dangerous places to work," says Schlossnagle. "We certainly don't want to create an even more dangerous situation."

One of the most common dangers is humans or animals falling into manure pits. "These pits are deceiving because the manure on top forms a hard crust," Schlossnagle explains.

"Sometimes there will even be grass growing on it. People, and animals, get deceived into thinking it is hard all the way through, step on it and fall in."

Manure pits that have a sudden drop off must have fences, guard rails, walls, or other barriers around them. Ladders or other escape routes should also be provided. A gauge indicating the depth of stored waste should also be readily visible.

Loading and unloading areas also present dangers. Tractors and loaders can skid off slippery, steep ramps. Ramps should be flat enough so equipment won't slip. Paved ramps should have a rough surface for traction.

Tractors and other equipment used around storage structures should have roll-bars, protective frames, crush-resistant cabs and seat belts.

An invisible but potentially legal hazard is noxious gases produced by wastes stored in tanks, enclosed areas or under slotted floors inside livestock buildings. Among the toxic gases produced by decomposing waste are ammonia, methane, carbon dioxide and hydrogen sulfide.

One young farm worker collapsed and died after inhaling hydrogen sulfide while steam cleaning gutters inside a calf barn. Other fatalities have occurred when workers entered recently emptied liquid manure tanks. Still others have drowned after being overcome by fumes and falling into the pits.

Enclosed storage systems should have ventilation systems, says Schlossnagle. The only sure way to tell when gas concentrations have reached a dangerous level is to purchase and use a gas detection monitoring device. Cooperative Extension safety leaders can recommend the type to buy and where to get one.

If it is necessary to enter an area where noxious gases are present, self-contained air packs and safety harnesses should be worn. Someone similarly equipped should be posted outside in case of emergency.

Last, but not least, says Schlossnagle, warning signs should be posted to alert workers and visitors to possible dangers around storage structures. The Garrett Soil Conservation District has a limited number of warning signs available for Garrett County farmers at a cost of $8.50 per sign. Call 334-1990 for more information.

"Carelessness can be a fatal mistake," says Schlossnagle. "You can never be too careful."

planning for Deere Company, ages: "As new tillage systems evolve, follow them closely and determine any possible advantages over what you are now doing. Tillage tools are continually improving, and what was impossible last year may well be developed into a successful technique two or three years from now. Keep up with what's going on — it's a dynamic industry."

"One technique that looks promising is rotating tillage practices, much as we rotate crops. Mix different tillage practices together. Switch to disking or field cultivating and leave a lot of surface residue to help control erosion, but then every few years, switch back to deeper tillage with the moldboard plow or chisel plow to incorporate nutrients and control shallow germinating weeds."

"Maybe use a moldboard plow following corn, then the next year, try no-till following soybeans. In wheat country, alternate deep tillage in the fall with deep tillage in the spring. Don't be afraid to mix your techniques. Use whatever farming tools you have to best advantage for the season and the conditions."

"Tillage choices are complex and the selection of techniques has to change as nature changes, or as economics change," Olson says. "Change is the one constant. Whether we're agricultural engineers or farmers, we all have to continue to adapt. That's what makes farming challenging and rewarding."

SSCC Votes To Support Plan For Sediment And Erosion Control

The State Soil Conservation Committee (SSCC) voted to support Soil Conservation District (SCD) retention of sediment and erosion control plan approval. Soil conservation districts are currently charged by the Department of Natural Resources Sediment Control Law with technical review and approval authority of sediment and erosion control plans required during development.

Arnold Parreco, chairman of the Prince George's Soil Conservation District, appeared before the SSCC to discuss the intention of the Suburban Homeowners Association to seek a legislative amendment turning this responsibility over to the county. Parreco stated that no prior complaints about SCD capabilities or servicing of plan reviews had been registered. Current turnover for sediment control plan processing averages three days in Prince George's County.

SSCC representatives expressed concern about the technical review process being transferred to a political arena. Floyd Allred, chairman, SSCC, noted that SCDs "provide that important check and balance."

In other business, Jesse Crook, supervisor of the Maryland Department of Agriculture's (MDA) Weed Control section, met with SSCC members requesting closer coordination of field staff. Occasional problems have arisen when soil conservation personnel have recommended no-till methods to address erosion problems and weed inspectors require conventional tillage to treat noxious weed problems.

Pearlie Reed, state conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), recommended that SCS review their technical standards for possible effect on weed control programs.

Rosemary Roswell, Soil Conservation administrator, noted she would "include participation of weed control personnel in future soil conservation technical training to coordinate outreach efforts and promote communication of program needs."

The SSCC's next scheduled meeting is December 17 at the Maryland Department of Agriculture.

Fall Milk Production — Not What It Has Been?

Some of us have heard this complaint quite often in recent weeks, the cows just are not milking like they usually do in the fall. Practical possible reasons for lower production might be: 1) poorly conditioned dry cows; 2) somatic cell counts creeping up during wet weather; and 3) below average quality corn silage.

Dry cows fed on burned pastures without supplemental forage and grain, lost weight leaving them under-conditioned at freshening. The lack of condition can cost 1,200-1,800 lbs. of milk production. This is an easy management problem to correct but one that is often overlooked. The implication of somatic cell counts increasing during wet weather is self-explanatory as it can negatively impact milk production. Corn silage analysis have been indicating corn silage is lower in TDN (and higher in ADF) than usual, with TDN values in the lower 60's rather than high 60's or lower 70's. What does this mean? Comparing this year to last year, the same 65 lbs. of silage (35% DM) contains about 1.6 less lbs. of TDN or the equivalent to 2-3 lbs. of corn. Failure to make necessary ration adjustments potentially compounded with skinny dry cows make the negative impact on production unavoidable. This is one year "Book Values" for corn silage may not work in ration balancing — test, don't guess.

More on Highlights of the 1986 Tax Reform Act

Personal Deductions: If you itemize in 1987 and thereafter, you will still be able to deduct interest payments on mortgages for up to two homes (within limits), your charitable contributions, and state and local income and property taxes. Interest on personal expenditures other than mortgage interest will be phased out over a four year period. Sales tax deductions for nonfarm purchases will not be allowed after 1986. Medical expenses will be deductible only to the extent they exceed 7.5% of adjusted gross income. Two-earner couples will no longer be permitted a two-earner deduction after this year. Business meals and entertainment expenses will only be 80% deductible. These expenses, along with others such as personal income tax preparation, safety deposit boxes, business journals, etc., reported under miscellaneous expenses are deductible only to the extent they exceed 2% of a taxpayer's adjusted gross income.

Treatment of Cattle Lice on Livestock

Reminder that cattle lice populations are seasonal in that numbers are low during the summer and high during the winter months. Cattle should be treated starting in December and again in March, even if signs of lice are not noticeable.

Do not use a grubicide (organophosphate), even if good for lice, now as it is too late and cattle may have an adverse reaction when grub treatment is applied after November 1. Dursban 44 or Lysof are not grubicides and effectively control lice. Ivomec is good but increases the cost of treatment. An excellent economical practice is to make sure your cattle are treated by New Year's Day or before.

VENISON ON YOUR TABLE

If you are one of the lucky people to have access to venison this fall, you may soon find that you run out of ideas to put variety into game meat dishes.

The general description of deer meat is that of meat dryer than beef, lower in fat, because it is not marbled but compares to beef in cholesterol content.

Well aired and cooled, freed of visible fat, the venison can be canned or frozen. If it is to be used for jerky, freezing at least 60 days at 0°F will protect you from possible transmission of diseases. If cooking the meat fresh, make sure it is well done.

Jerky: Cut loin, round or flank cuts into 1/4" thick strips, cross grain, remove all fat and white skin tissue. The meat can be brine cured or dry cured. Brine curing mixes salt and spices with water, into which meat is immersed for 6-12 hours. Dry curing has salt and seasonings applied dry to the meat. You may also avail yourself of commercial flavorings on the market, such as liquid smoke or hickory-flavored smoke. Lay strips of venison flat on drying racks and dry at 160°F. for 4 hours, then continue at 130°F. until the jerky when cooled cracks, but does not break when bent. Start checking after about 10 hours total drying time. Blot venison with paper towels during the drying to remove fat droplets. Safest storage is in the freezer, but room storage for short periods when properly dried is also acceptable.

VENISON STROGANOFF
1/2 cup oil (or other fat)
2 pounds venison cut in strips
1/2 inch by 1/2 inch by 2 inches
1/4 cup flour
1 envelope onion soup mix
3 cups water
1 cup cream of mushroom soup undiluted
6 tablespoons catsup
Noodles, rice or mashed potatoes

While oil is heating, shake meat in flour to coat. Saute until browned. Add onion soup mix and water. Simmer until venison is tender (1 hour or more). Add cream of mushroom soup and catsup. Heat thoroughly and serve over noodles, rice or mashed potatoes.

Szegediner Gulasch: An "old-world" recipe for more experienced cooks: 1-2 lbs. cubed venison, same weight chopped onions, oil to brown meat in, paprika, bay leaf, flour to thicken (optional), sour cream.

Saute onions in oil, add blotted venison, brown on all sides, add salt and paprika to taste, and 1 bay leaf, enough water to cover meat and simmer at low heat for one hour. If thicker gravy is desired, dust with flour. Add 1/2 pint sour cream, a pinch of sugar and few drops of lemon juice or vinegar. Stir well and serve with dumplings or potatoes and salad.

For more venison recipes please contact Irmgard R. Koscielniak, Cooperative Extension Service, P.O. Box 445, Oakland, MD 21550 or call 334-1990. If you have special hints or unique recipes for deer or other game meats, please share it with us to be included in our handout.

Whoo's News

Public Relations chairman

The Christmas holiday is special to all of us. With each family comes a different tradition. The members of the Extension Homemakers like to think that we are one big family. We also have our own traditions. One of which is the annual collection of food for the House of Hope. We have done this for many years but it has not been advertised. This year we extend an invitation to the public to become a part of our tradition.

The Maryland Extension Homemakers will be teaming up with WXIE and WMSG in a food drive for the House of Hope on December 19. More information will be available in the next couple of weeks. Please listen to the radio and watch for ads in this paper.

Those wishing to participate earlier may drop off their non-perishable food at the Extension office. Come make a needy family happy and meet the Maryland Extension Homemakers. This service is open to all citizens without regard to race, color, sex, handicap, religion, age or national origin.

From our monthly reports we find Loch Lynn Homemakers finishing the felt bags and boots for the nursing home this month. They are filled with candy and ready to go. In the "dressed dolls" contest, four of the Loch Lynn members took home ribbons.

Four members of the Bittering Club celebrated birthdays in November. They met November 17 at the home of Fern Beachy and the club served cake in their honor. Kathren Bowser demonstrated, to the 10 members present, how to "Winterize Your Home." These girls will meet December 18 at 6 p.m. at Virginia Hesson's for their Christmas party. Everyone is welcome and should bring a canned food for the Bittering food pantry.

From all Garrett County Homemakers and the Cooperative Extension Service, we wish you a "Very Merry Christmas!"

THAT IS THE QUESTION!

To advertise or not to advertise, that is the question! If you were going to sell your home today, what would you do?

The common belief is that newspaper advertising for buyers is the number one way to sell your home. If you sell your home "By Owner" and advertise in the local paper, you will get some calls, won't you? Those callers may or may not be serious buyers, but if they are, they will probably shop around before buying, right?

Eventually, they will call a real estate agent who can show them many homes, resulting in a sale, but not through a "By Owner."

On the other hand, the real estate company will run ads too, but not on every home in their inventory. They understand that buyers compare many homes before making a decision. So, the wise real estate company will pick one very attractive home in each price or style category, and create an eye-catching ad designed to make the telephone ring with ready buyers in each category.

Those buyers will then be shown all homes in inventory which meet their family's needs, resulting in a satisfying purchase. A professional real estate agent will then continue to work with those who do not purchase right away. Perhaps months later, when you place your house on the market through an agent, those buyers are ready and waiting as a result of months of effort on the part of the agent, with no additional advertising needed.

Understanding real estate dilemmas and their solutions is our business, and we'll happily share our knowledge with you. Why not give us a call at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

Video Version Of Cumberland
Pageant Available

The video version of Gateway to the Promised Land, Cumberland's bicentennial musical-dramatic pageant, is now completed and ready for the public to order.

Betty Atkinson Favre, the pageant's creator and producer of the video, is making the "video version" available to the public at $35.00 each. The video is a "Hollywood-style movie with fast cuts and lots of close-ups," she says. "We did not merely set up a camera on a tripod and turn it on." The video, prepared at Frostburg State University's Department of Communication Media, with assistance from technical specialist, Bert Thiel, was edited together from two separate taping sessions using four cameras at each. One taping session was a live performance, so the audience's reactions are featured also.

This production is Favre's second video and first full-scale feature film. It was a "real learning experience in the art of filmmaking," she says, which is why she's selling it only at cost. "Even though it has a certain primitive quality, one day it will be a collector's item," she promises, "because it is real bicentennial memorabilia."

Favre's first video, a documentary entitled, The Rhetoric of Fitness (1985), is already a collector's item in Hollywood and has been declared a "cult classic," according to Jan Raabe, a cable television producer and spokesperson for collectors in the professional entertainment industry. The Gateway video, according to several people who have ordered quantities of copies, is already a collector's item, too.

Favre stresses that one of the most important features of the Gateway video is that it not only shows the pageant with its music by George McDowell Jr., Grantsville, and choreography by Faye Snow, but it also incorporates two other major bicentennial events. These are the Cumberland Bicentennial Encampment and Rifle Frolic, directed by Thom Starkey and videotaped by Ron Windemuth, and slide photos of Cumberland's early industry and life over the last hundred years, made from the bicentennial photo exhibit, Cumberland: the Birth and Growth of a Victorian City, prepared by Gary Bartk, Michael Pearce, and Joseph Weaver. In addition to these bicentennial events, the video features slide photos by photographer, Karen A. Skidmore, of dozens of Cumberland

BITTINGER-GLADES

Church News

Holy Communion will be celebrated in all three churches of the Bittering parish this Sunday. Following worship services, a congregational meeting will be held, at which time new council members will be elected and a 1988 budget will be adopted.

Emmanuel's LCW will meet on Friday evening at the church. Phyllis Buckel will lead the topic "The Good News of Christmas." Each member is asked to bring some finger food and a donation for the food pantry. They are asked to bring along a news item, showing God active in the world.

All news items for the newsletter are to be in to Sharon Lowery by Thursday.

On Wednesday, December 16, the Choraleers, a singing group from Lancaster, Pa., will present a Christmas Candlelight service at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church. The time is 7:30 p.m. and the public is invited to attend.

The women of Cherry Glade Mennonite Church will meet on Tuesday to wrap Christmas gifts for giving to needy families and others.

Community Christmas Party
The Annual Community Christmas party will be held at the Bittering Fire Hall on Sunday, December 13, at 6:30 p.m. It is being sponsored by the Bittering VFD and Auxiliary.

Everyone in the community is invited to share in an evening of food and fellowship. Each family is asked to bring some refreshments, any finger foods of their choice. The Ladies Auxiliary will furnish drink, cups and napkins.

Parents who wish may provide gifts for their children for under the tree to be distributed by Santa. (Please mark gifts clearly).

There will be a food collection for the Bittering Food Pantry. The Auxiliary is encouraging each family to bring any canned or packaged food items they wish to donate to needy families.

Emmanuel's LCW Meets
The LCW of Emmanuel met on November 13 in the church with 11 members in attendance. The meeting was called to order by Jenny Hady, who then led the group in the November LCW response.

The Christian Action Committee reported serving 90 people following the slide presentation of Linda Buckel's European trip on November 1. Cookies and punch were also served at the Task Force meeting on November 7.

Twelve comforters, one box of men's sweaters, two boxes of men's clothing, one box of children's clothing, six school kits, two sewing kits, two health kits and 12 lbs. of homemade soap were sent to Lutheran World Relief.

Audrey gave a report on World Community Day held at the Cherry Glade Mennonite Church.

A brief summary was given by Betty on the Task Force meeting held at Emmanuel on November 7.

New officers will be elected at the December meeting. A nominating committee of Leora, Sharon Knox and Maxine was appointed. A slate of officers will be presented at this meeting.

Correspondence received was a "thank-you" from Linda for hosting her slide presentation and a letter from the synodical unit president asking for help in meeting the budget.

The program, "Women and Vocation — Making Choices in Daily Living" was presented by Doris Knox and Jenny Hady. This program explored the different dimensions of vocation as they relate to women. The problems of three women were discussed. Scripture readings were used to explore the topic.

The Thank Offering Service "Toward A New Day" was led by Dorothy Teets. The program ended with the missionary benediction.

Zion's LCW Meets
The Lutheran Church Women of Zion, Jennings, held their monthly meeting in the church on December 1. Pastor Louise Knotts and seven others attended. Shirley Yommer and Judy Stanton were received as new members.

Leota Baker led the topic "The Good News of Christmas." The program endeavored to identify specific ways in which God is active in the lives of people and to present a worship celebration that focused on the birth of the Messiah. Scripture texts were read by Nellie Yommer and Ethel Hetrick.

The last portion of the program "Singing the Good News" was devoted to singing Christmas carols led by Pastor Knotts and Alta Broadwater.

Mrs. Nellie Yommer presided over the business meeting. The December newsletter was received from the Lutheran Youth and Family Services, formerly the Lutheran Children's Home in Zelenople, Pa.

It was resolved that the women's organization will function under the name "Women of the ELCA, Zion, Jennings" beginning in January.

Nellie Yommer reported having sent a total of 26 greeting cards to persons during illness or bereavement during the year on behalf of the LCW.

Election of officers was held with the following being chosen: president, Nellie Yommer; vice president, Judy Stanton; secretary, Shirley Yommer; and treasurer, Leota Baker. Ethel Hetrick was retained as Christian Service chairman. Each will serve terms of two years.

Mrs. Nellie Yommer presented special offerings in memory of her husband, Clyde, and also Lulu Belle Shives. These were designated for Kugler Nursing School in India and Youth ministries, respectively, and will be sent to Lutheran Church Women. An offering given as a tribute to the memory of Norman Baker, designated for ministry with deaf persons, was also forwarded to Lutheran Church Women Specific Ministries.

This will be the last time the group will meet as Lutheran Church Women. On January 1, the Evangelical Lutheran Church will come into being, as a result of three Lutheran bodies merging, and the women's auxiliary will be known as Women of the ELCA. The next monthly meeting is scheduled for January 5.

Attend Meeting
Charleen-Evans-Thomas and Lillian Reckner attended a Delta Kappa Gamma meeting at Silver Tree Inn last week. The group held a brunch and a Christmas auction.

Personal Items
Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Maust were Charlotte and Phillip Tice of Grantsville.

Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Brenneman were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Bender and family, Michelle Bender and Evelyn Yoder, Springs, Pa.

CEC To Award Two Scholarships For Engineering

Scholarships worth $1,500 will be awarded to two engineering students pursuing a career in consulting engineering in a statewide competition being held by the Consulting Engineers Council of Maryland (CEC/Md).

The $500 CEC/Md Scholarship will be awarded to an engineering student who is enrolled in a Maryland college or university engineering program accredited by the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology (ABET) and seeking a bachelor of science degree which might lead to a consulting engineering career. Students must be entering their junior, senior or fifth year (in a five year program) in the fall of 1987 and should be in the top half of their class. Students meeting the above criteria, but attending an accredited college or university in another state, may apply if they are a Maryland resident.

The $1,000 William Roe Kahl Scholarship will be awarded to a selected civil engineering student who meets the above criteria. It is financed by Rummel, Klepper & Kahl, a leading civil engineering firm in the area, in honor of one of its founding partners, and administered by CEC/Md.

Winners may also have the opportunity to compete for a number of national awards totaling approximately $30,000 from the American Consulting Engineers Council (ACEC). For additional information and application forms, persons may contact G. Robert Davidson, Scholarship Committee chairman, CEC/Md, 1 east Franklin Street, Suite 401, Baltimore, Maryland 21202, or phone (301) 539-1592. The deadline for submitting completed applications, and all necessary forms, is February 1, 1988.

energy conservation. This report is being prepared and the public hearing is being held as required by Federal Tax Law regarding the issuance of mortgage revenue bonds. These federal requirements have been added in order to require issuers of mortgage revenue bonds to make greater efforts to assist lower income eligible households to receive loans before assisting higher income households. CDA has in the past made efforts to do this and also intends to expand and refine its programs to include new ways to provide homeownership opportunities for the lowest possible income eligible households.

All interested parties are invited to submit written comments and present oral comments at the public hearing regarding the issuance of mortgage revenue bonds. Written comments should be received by CDA on or before December 17, 1987. Any person desiring to present oral comments should notify CDA at 45 Calvert Street, Annapolis, Maryland 21401, Attention: Stanley Tupaj, Director, Office of Policy and Governmental Relations on or before December 17, 1987. Oral comments will be limited to presentations of no more than ten minutes per person.

Pleasant Valley House Damaged Heavily By Fire

What was reported as a flue fire quickly turned into a structure fire Wednesday morning at a residence just off Bernard Road in Pleasant Valley.

The Oakland Volunteer Fire Department was called to the home of the Jim Ford family at 8:38 a.m. by the Garrett County Office of Emergency Management; however, upon their arrival they discovered heavy smoke coming from the entire two-story wood frame structure.

Deer Park and Aurora fire departments were then called to assist, as was the county air cascade vehicle presently being housed at Bayard VFD.

According to a spokesman for the Oakland VFD, Ford discovered smoke coming from an area near the fuel oil stove in the living room of the house and called 911 to report a flue fire. It was discovered later that the fire was electrical in nature, having originated in an outlet located beside the stove. The blaze quickly spread inside the walls of the house and burst through some areas of the roof and around the windows. High winds hampered firefighters' efforts, however they were successful in saving the structure.

Because the fire had spread through so many areas in the walls, considerable damage was reported, but it was believed that the house could be restored. Firemen remained on the scene until 10:50 a.m. Also called to the scene was the Southern Garrett County Rescue Squad. There were no injuries reported.

Garrett Choral Society Concert Friday, Saturday

The Garrett Choral Society, under the direction of Nancy Learey, will present its annual Christmas concert this Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. at St. Peter's Catholic Church, Oakland.

The well-known Society is composed of residents from many corners of Garrett County who share a common interest in singing. In addition to past Christmas concerts, the Society has also presented several major musical productions, including "Oliver," "Fiddler on the Roof," "South Pacific," and "H.M.S. Pinafore."

This year's concert will include Benjamin Britten's work, "Ceremony of Carols," which will be presented by the female members of the Society, and include solos by Cindy Fike, Sue Peterson, and Laurel Grant.

Other numbers will be "Carol of the Bells," "Little Babe," solo by Tom Peterson.

MAJOR DAMAGE was reported yesterday at the home of the Jim Ford family in Pleasant Valley, just off Bernard Road. The blaze was caused by an electrical malfunction in the wall and quickly spread throughout the walls of the house. Oakland, Deer Park, and Aurora firefighters were successful, however, in saving the structure. There were no injuries reported.

Grantsville Man's Condition Now Listed As "Stable"

A Grantsville man, seriously injured in a one-vehicle accident last week, is now listed in "stable" condition at Sacred Heart Hospital, Cumberland, where he had been admitted in "guarded" condition last Wednesday, December 9.

Bobby L. Broadwater, 19, was operating a 1981 Oldsmobile Omega southbound on Bear Hill Road at 4 p.m. when the vehicle ran off the right side of the road, re-entered the roadway, crossed the center line and ran off the left side of the road.

The vehicle then, according to police reports, traveled airborne for approximately 30 to 40 feet before striking the far side of a deep ditch, overturning and coming to rest at the bottom of the ditch.

Investigating officer, Tfc. G.R. Chaney, charged Broadwater with driving while intoxicated and failure to drive on the right side of the road.

Melvin R. Custer, 21, Swanton, was treated and released at

Three Injured In Two-Car Mishap Saturday

Three area persons were treated and released at Garrett County Memorial Hospital Saturday following injuries they sustained in a two-vehicle accident in Oakland.

Oakland City Police Department investigated the 9 p.m. mishap that sent Verna Harvey, 70, Mabel Roderick, 74, both of Mtn. Lake Park, and Brenda Moffett, 22, Deer Park, to the hospital.

The accident occurred, according to Sgt. Roger Lewis, at the intersection of Center and Wilson Streets, when Harvey, operating a 1983 Plymouth, was southbound on Wilson Street and failed to stop at the intersection. Her vehicle then collided with the 1986 Chevrolet Spectrum, operated by Moffett westbound on Center Street.

The Moffett vehicle was pushed into a light pole and shrubbery, located off the roadway. Harvey was charged with failure to stop at a stop sign.

In other news from OCPD, Bonnie J. Hershman, Friendsville, reported a destruction of property that resulted in $2,500 worth of damage to her 1982 Lincoln town car.

According to Hershman, the vehicle was parked in the lower lot at Garrett County Memorial Hospital when someone apparently struck it, resulting in damage to the left panel. The incident occurred Tuesday between 7 a.m. and 3 p.m.

Anyone with information concerning the incident is asked to call Crime Solvers at 334-1975 or the Oakland City Police.

Still No Candidates File For Board Of Ed. — Little Interest Reported

The last day to file as a candidate for the Garrett County Board of Education election is 9 p.m. on Monday, December 28. According to Election Board Supervisor Fred Sanders, no one has filed as a candidate for either of the two at-large positions which will appear on the ballot in the March primary.

Sanders explained that persons from any election district may file for an at-large position and that candidates' names for those positions will appear on ballots in every county election district, with names of the three candidates who are top vote getters in the primary appearing on the November ballot. In the November election, the two candidates with the most votes will become Board of Education members. The outgoing at-large members of the Board of Education are Bill Goldsborough and Anna Mary Fratz.

Candidates for delegate to the Democratic National Convention must file between January 4 and 9 p.m. on January 11, 1988, in the Annapolis office.

Individuals wishing to become candidates are advised to ascertain that they have all necessary documents and information required for filing before they make the trip to the election office so that their applications may be processed without delay. Filers should have a form of identification, preferably a driver's license; their election district; and their Congressional district.

For more information, persons may call the Garrett County Election Board Office at 334-1962.

The Maryland State Administrative Board of Election Laws will accept candidate filings for federal and state offices through 9 p.m. Monday, December 28, for the 1988 elections. The State Administrative Board

West Virginia Man Dies In Hunting Mishap

A West Virginia man died Friday, December 11, in Preston County Memorial Hospital, after being accidentally shot while hunting that same day near Aurora, W.Va.

Richard McCrobie of the West Virginia Department of Natural Resources said Virgil Secrist Jr., 41, Horse Shoe Run, was shot at 5:10 p.m. by a gun that his wife, Jo Ann Secrist, was unloading.

The couple were reportedly doe hunting and were sitting in a field at the time of the mishap.

McCrobie said Mr. Secrist was sitting on the driver's side of the vehicle and that Mrs. Secrist was standing on the passenger side of the vehicle with the door open unloading the .22 caliber rifle. The gun accidentally discharged and struck Secrist under the right arm.

Reportedly, the gun's safety was not on during the time of the shooting. Possible charges are pending in the accident.

Born in Mount Zion, September 8, 1946, the victim was the son of Virgil and Pearl (Brown) Secrist, New Creek, W.Va.

A Vietnam veteran, Mr. Secrist was employed by Island Creek Coal Company.

Besides his parents, he is survived by his wife, Jo Ann (Stalnaker) Secrist; four daughters, Rebecca Ann Secrist and Eileen Cathy Secrist, both of La Puente, Calif.; Tammy Lynn Secrist and Melissa Ann Secrist, both at home; two sons, James Eric Secrist and Daniel Lee Secrist, both at home; eight sisters, Mrs. Wanda Coleman, Silver Spring; Mrs. Martha Beavers, Westernport; Mrs. Betty Kidwell, Laurel; Mrs. Wilma Howdyshell, Shalimar; Mrs. Lilly Moats, Crellin; Mrs. (Continued on Page A-3)

Architect Named For SHS Project, Funding Formula Still An Issue

It was announced at the December meeting of the Garrett County Board of Education, held last Thursday, that the architectural firm of Gandee and Partners, Inc., Charleston, W.Va., has been selected to undertake the proposed Southern High School renovation project.

Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County Schools, noted, however, that the specific fee arrangement has yet to be determined, explaining that the firm had submitted two fee arrangements, and the board has not had enough time to review them adequately.

Gandee and Partners, Inc., was selected, according to Ryscavage, because of their satisfactory undertaking and completion of the recent Northern High School renovation, as well as their favorable fee proposal. (Their's was the lowest bid.)

Ryscavage added that the principal and staff at the high school will play an "extremely important" role in the renovation project, from beginning to end, citing Northern High School principal, Ed Green and his staff and their cooperation and patience with the project.

Information was also presented at the meeting regarding proposed changes in the rules and regulations of the public school construction program procedures.

Ryscavage explained that a task force, appointed by the Board of Public Works, had recommended that each school jurisdiction contribute a local share of funding from 25 to 50 percent, depending on each jurisdiction's relative wealth. The task force also recommended an annual $60 million state allocation over a five-year period (FY1989 to FY1993) for school construction projects in Maryland jurisdictions.

Ryscavage, in testimony given to the task force in September, favored Treasurer Lucille Maurer's proposal that a $74 to $76 million annual state commitment, stating that this sum "appears more responsive to these relative needs than the recommended $60 million authorization."

Ryscavage, along with Garrett County Commissioner, John G. Braskey (recently elected as the first vice-president of the Maryland Association of Counties), stated their concern that Garrett County would be unable to assume its financial share ($2.4 million) of the $5.5 million

Commissioner Braskey Testifies At School Construction Hearing

Commissioner John G. Braskey was in Annapolis Wednesday to testify against the Board of Public Works' recommendation for school construction funding in Maryland.

He testified not only on behalf of the position of the Maryland Association of Counties (MACo), but also for Garrett County. The local commissioner serves as first vice president of MACo as well as legislative chairman.

Speaking for MACo, Braskey requested that the state set aside $100,000,000 for school construction over the next five years, as opposed to the $60,000,000 proposed by the task force appointed by the Board of Public Works.

MACo is also requesting the development of a five-year plan by the state so that individual counties could plan strategies in their local budgets for school construction.

Braskey said that although MACo as a body did not want to deal with the actual state funding formula, he stressed that Garrett County felt if there were no change that the state needed to help less affluent counties, such as Garrett.

He said that help could come in the form of a revolving loan with little or no interest to the counties or with a bonding authority.

Local county government and school board officials are greatly concerned about the school construction decision because of the impact it will have on the Southern High School renovation project which had already been approved by the state under the old formula. Reportedly, the local project will not be grandfathered in under the old formula which will increase the cost of the renovation from a local share of $1.2 million to nearly $2.5 million.

Finzel Man Pleads Guilty To Drug Manufacturing

Following an indictment by the September 1987 term of the Grand Jury, a Finzel man was indicted on two drug-related charges, one of which he pleaded guilty to during a recent hearing in Garrett County Circuit Court.

Elmer J. Yutzy, 32, was charged with the manufacturing of a controlled dangerous substance (marijuana) and possession of marijuana, and pleaded guilty to the second count. Judge Fred A. Thayer then ordered a pre-sentence investigation.

The charges were the result of an investigation last August by the Maryland State Police, Cumberland City Police and Maryland Department of Natural Resources police. The investigation resulted in the discovery of a plot of ground off Piney Run Road where marijuana plants were growing.

The plants were sent to the Maryland State Police lab for identification September 2.

Yutzy was returned to the Garrett County Jail where he is being held on a $1,000 bond.

Colorado Man Allegedly Abducts Estranged Wife

According to West Virginia State Police, a Colorado man allegedly abducted his estranged wife at gunpoint Friday from a residence near Elk Garden, W.Va. and forced her to another residence nearby.

Jon Alexander Robert, 28, LaPorte, was then arrested by W.Va. State Police and charged with carrying a dangerous and deadly weapon. Other charges are currently pending against Robert, who was held following the incident in the Mineral County (W.Va.) Detention Center. He was later released on a $750 bond.

The incident reportedly occurred in late morning when Robert went to his estranged wife's parent's home, reportedly making threats against his separated wife, Robin (Evans) Robert, and members of her family.

According to police reports, Jon Robert left the residence in a 1996 Jeep and roadblocks were then set up by W.Va. and Maryland State Police, Mineral County Sheriff's Department, Keyser City Police and the W.Va. Department of Natural Resources police.

Robert was later apprehended at a nearby residence, along with Robin Robert, who was reportedly unharmed.

Pa. Youth Dies In Hunting Mishap

A Meyersdale, Pa. youth was accidentally shot and killed by his brother while hunting in the Glencoe area of Somerset County Tuesday morning, December 15.

Gary Lee Lowery, 15, was pronounced dead at Meyersdale Community Hospital Tuesday morning as the result of a gunshot wound to the head, accidentally by his brother, Jeffrey Lowery, 17.

State Police at Somerset said the brothers were hunting with their father and three other brothers at approximately 7:30 a.m. when the father shot and wounded a deer.

The deer was tracked to a steep embankment and Gary Lowery climbed the bank to locate the deer. As he walked up the embankment, he startled the injured deer causing it to stand up.

His brother then fired up the embankment at the deer, missing it and striking his brother in the head, police said.

Born in Meyersdale, November 8, 1972, he was a son of Donald L. and Dorothy (Edgar) Lowery.

He was a member of Summit Mills Grace Brethren Church. Surviving in addition to his parents and brother, Jeffrey, are four other brothers, Gregory Lowery, Mitchell Lowery and Cary Lowery, all of Meyersdale; and Thomas Lowery, serving with the U.S. Air Force in Omaha, Neb.; one sister, Dawn Lowery, Meyersdale; his maternal grandmother, Mrs. Dora Edgar, Grantsville; and his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Laura Lowery.

Friends will be received today from 2-4 and 7-9 p.m. at the Leckemby Funeral Home. A service will be conducted Friday at 2 p.m. at Summit Mills Grace Brethren Church by the Rev. Albert Valentine. Interment will be in Union Cemetery.

GENERAL INSTRUMENT VIDEOCIPHER® II 2100E SATELLITE DESCRAMBLER

FEATURES

Automatic Descrambling of Authorized Signals	After the 2100E descrambler is installed, your local cable company or programmer will authorize your unit to receive the scrambled programming to which you subscribe. Then the descrambler will automatically decode those channels.
Multi-Channel Reception	With a single 2100E descrambler, you'll be able to process all channels, up to 240, that are coded with the General Instrument VideoCipher® II scrambling system.
Assist Displays	The 2100E descrambler is designed for easy operation. Twenty-eight "assist" displays appear on your television screen showing you how to operate many functions.
Enhanced Video Performance	When a satellite signal is scrambled with the VideoCipher® II system, the audio subcarriers are eliminated from the video signal. Elimination of subcarriers, combined with digital processing means that more power can be supplied to the video signal. This results in better video performance of the descrambled channels.
Wireless Remote Control Optional	The optional wireless infrared remote control allows you to operate all descrambler features.
Superior Digital Audio	All scrambled audio signals are digitized and error-coded so you'll receive high-quality, noise free audio on all descrambled channels. And if programmers offer stereo broadcasts, just connect your stereo-equipped TV set or home audio system to the 2100E descrambler for rich stereo sound.
Special Programmer Services	Programmers may offer special features that are fully operational with the 2100E descrambler. These built-in features include: second language audio; password-controlled program ratings; personal data and teletext messages; and special event pay-per-view programming.
Compatibility	The 2100E is designed to operate with most satellite receivers that use a 70 MHz, 70 MHz IF loop-through or composite baseband interface (some receivers may require modification to provide the composite video output). See our current receiver compatibility sheet, or contact your receiver manufacturer for more information.

We also will include with your purchase a very special deal on programming packages.

You can be watching your favorite movie channel or sports channel within minutes of your installation.

A TRANSCONTINENTAL RECORD? — Phill Buck and Susan Miller left Astoria, Oregon in May to begin a 5,400-mile self-propelled canoe crossing of the continental United States. The two wish to establish a North American transcontinental record and observe and record the water quality across North America. Running about one month behind schedule, the two were hoping to arrive in Springfield, Massachusetts, by mid December, but because of the weather, they have changed course and plan to finish their journey in Baltimore. They canoed along much of the same route as the Lewis and Clark expedition, and then on to other waterways in the east, bicycling inbetween. The theme of their journey, they say, is best represented by a quote taken from Tennyson's "Ulysses": "To strive, to seek, to find, and not to yield."

Tri-County Council Seeking Inland Port In Western Maryland

The possibility of an inland transportation port in Western Maryland to reduce the cost of shipping to the Port of Baltimore was discussed last week by Tri-County Council of Maryland.

TCC has made that recommendation to Governor William Donald Schaefer.

The inland port would be in competition with an inland port in Winchester, Va., which state officials feel is diverting some business from the port in Baltimore.

An inland port would serve as a central terminal from which rail, road, and airline services would ship items to the port in large volumes to reduce overall costs to business and industry.

The cities of Hagerstown and Cumberland have expressed an interest in becoming such an inland port. TCC members unanimously voted Thursday to endorse the concept and to request the Schaefer administration to investigate.

Garrett County Commissioner Ernest Gregg Jr., who is also TCC chairman, said "an inland port would contribute to the economic viability of the TCC region," which includes Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties, the only portion of the state to receive federal Appalachian Regional Commission (ARC) funds.

During the past year, TCC has worked with county economic developers and public works directors to secure $3,471,056 in federal funds for numerous projects.

Some $30,000 of those funds were used to develop a coal export promotion brochure with the hopes of selling more Western Maryland coal in Europe and Asia. Coal in the state is mined exclusively in Garrett and Allegany counties.

Also at the Thursday meeting, TCC members heard a report on the 1988 pre-world and 1989 world whitewater championships.

TCC supplied administrative start-up money and is paying for the salary of Steve Prosser, coordinator for Whitewater Championships, Inc., which will sponsor the races. Several other Allegany Commissioner Arthur Bond said the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers can also control the discharge limits at the Bloomington Dam to provide enough water for Bloomington and other towns while still enabling the Olympic-class races to occur.

Cable TV Rate Regulation Ruled Unconstitutional

Municipalities in Garrett and Allegany counties have been unhappy with their inability to regulate rates charged by cable television companies. In reply to constituent complaints, District One Senator John N. Bambacus, along with senate colleagues attempted to sponsor legislation to regulate rates charged by cable television companies.

In a recent letter to the two county's municipal mayors and council members and the boards of Allegany and Garrett County Commissioners, the senator wrote that his attempt to sponsor legislation to regulate these rates over the last several years has been unsuccessful because he has been constantly informed that such legislation would be unconstitutional.

cause of preemption by the federal Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984, which de-regulated rate control of cable companies.

Unfortunately, the senator has been informed again this year that such proposed legislation is again deemed to be unconstitutional.

Legislative Counsel informed Bambacus that in 1985, the General Assembly considered a bill (HB-1184) that would have permitted local governments to regulate the rates of cable television companies. In response to that bill, Bambacus was told that the Attorney General did an extensive review of the federal Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984.

The result of that review was a report entitled "Guide to State and Local Government Cable Regulation Under the Cable Communications Policy Act of 1984." At that time, the Attorney General concluded that "local governments will not be able to set rates charged by cable operators after December 28, 1986."

Expect A Jolt . . .

A decision is expected within the next two weeks from the Maryland Board of Public Works on whether or not to implement the school construction formula proposed by the 1986 Task Force, better known as the James Commission. That decision will have a major impact on Garrett County, because of the proposed Southern High School renovation project that is expected to begin in 1989.

When the Garrett County Board of Education submitted its proposal for the Southern project, the funding formula used by the state would have provided all but $1.2 million of the required $5.5 million. It was upon this basis that the project was approved by local government. However, if the James Commission recommendation is adopted, the county will be required to fund $2.5 million of the project, which will place a tremendous financial burden on the county treasury.

There has been strong testimony presented by Dr. Jerome Ryscavage, superintendent of Garrett County schools, and Garrett County Commissioner John Braskey which we hope will be heard by the Board of Public Works. Braskey testified this week, not only as a county commissioner, but also on behalf of the Maryland Association of Counties, of which he is first vice president and chairman of the legislative committee.

Braskey and Ryscavage both stressed that the James Commission formula does not provide enough financial assistance to the less populated, less able-to-pay counties. Both also suggested the creation of some form of scaled state loan program, whereby the poorer counties would pay little or no interest and the wealthier counties would pay the higher levels of interest. Dr. Ryscavage urged the Board to consider an alternative proposal by State Treasurer Lucille Maurer that would provide approximately $75 million annually rather than the $60 million generated by the Commission's formula.

Another point made by Ryscavage was that the James Commission proposal does not take into consideration the fact that construction costs in Garrett County exceed the state average because buildings must be constructed to withstand our more severe weather conditions.

During a meeting yesterday, Governor Schaefer told Braskey and the others who presented testimony that $60 million is simply all that is available, period.

It is irritating to us that the state is, in a sense, reneging on the Southern High project, because it had already received approval as originally proposed. It seems to us that already-approved projects should be grandfathered in under the former funding formula. That request was also flatly denied by the Board.

The project for Southern High School is not something that can be scrapped. The major building of the school is 35 years old and is in dire need of renovation. However, unless the Board of Public Works responds in a favorable way to this dilemma, Garrett County's taxpayers are in for a real jolt.

Letters to the Editor

To the Editor:

The perfect Christmas Gift. At this time of the year many people are looking for the proper Christmas gift to give to a friend or family member. Those people who smoke are in a position to give the perfect gift and do themselves a favor as well. Simply quit smoking!

The Surgeon General and the National Academy of Sciences have both issued reports clearly stating that tobacco smoke can cause cancer and other diseases in nonsmokers. If you quit smoking you are sending a clear message to your family, friends and working colleagues that you love them more than your smoking.

To the Editor:

It is Friday, December 11. I am still waiting to hear the outcome of an appeal to the Board of Education yesterday concerning an unjust decision made by the transportation department of our school system.

Ronald Glatfelter was suspended for five days, forcing him to hire someone to drive his school bus for him next week. This action was taken because Mr. Glatfelter stopped to pick up my niece, Laura Taylor, at her home instead of 500 feet away at the designated stop where there are no children.

When Laura began kindergarten in September 1986, the bus stopped at her driveway along Route 219 in McHenry. The change was made in February of 1987 and Tim and Judy Taylor were informed that this would no longer be allowed. This concerned our whole family. Not only is there the danger of a child walking along a highway but they are also near the morning of Route 42 and Route 219. Plus, in the winter, snow is piled so high on the berm of the road that Laura has to walk on the highway itself.

Tim and Judy called Mr. Sines and discussed this with him, feeling sure that when he was made aware of the situation he would consider their child's safety and reassess the bus stops needed in their area. He said no to their request, so they contacted Mr. Morris. He did not meet with them until October 7 of this school year and still had not given them an answer in November when the child living at the designated stop moved away. So, using what I consider common sense, Ron stopped for Laura at her driveway.

I rode Ron Glatfelter's bus as a child and my son has ridden for three years. I have complete trust in his ability to make decisions in the student's best interest. He should be commended for his careful driving, punctuality and probably the most difficult of all — maintain order on a bus of 60 children.

I appreciate Ron and other bus drivers like him who take on the responsibility of driving our children 189 days out of the year and I certainly don't feel there should be policies in our school system that override the good judgment of a man with his years of driving experience and good record.

Sincerely,
Vicki Teets

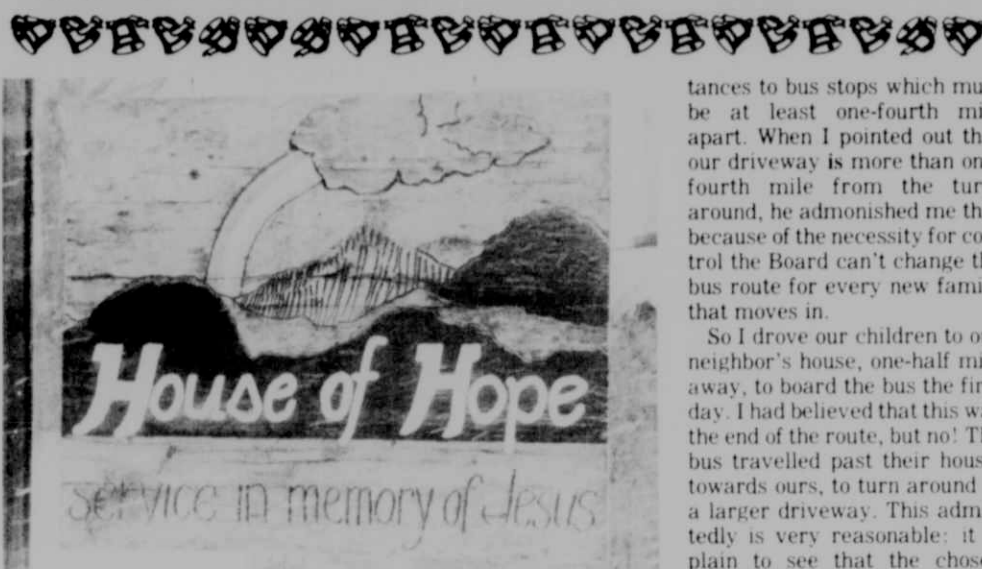

P.S. The decision of the Board of Education remains unjust. The five-day suspension was lessened to three.

To the Editor:

After reading Robert Taylor's letter which appeared in last week's issue of The Republican, I felt compelled to relate the experience I had last year with the Garrett County Board of Education regarding a transportation decision.

Because my family was experiencing many traumatic changes last year with the terminal illness of my mother and the impending birth of our fifth child, when we moved from the Dennett Road School District to the Broad Ford School District in October, I felt it was important for my children, who were in second grade and kindergarten, to continue attending Dennett Road School for the remainder of the school year. I therefore submitted an out-of-area transfer request at the end of September. Realizing that it would be very difficult for me to drive my children to and from school, I also requested transportation provisions. I further stated that, in the event that transportation arrangements could not be made, I would agree to transfer the children to Broad Ford Elementary School at the end of the first grading term (October 31).

While preparing for the appeal, I did extensive research on transportation policies and procedures. Guess what? I could not find any docu-

by Mary L. Love

My faith in Santa Claus was shaken at an early age; there were too many of him. Santa, with a bell and a kettle, was on every downtown corner. How could all those Santas read a letter, or worse, come down a chimney?

Garrett County does not have a Santa at every intersection. It does, however, have the House of Hope, through which many people channel their Christmas giving to people less fortunate. During the past year the House of Hope has provided emergency food to 1,916 people (558 families), emergency fuel to 70 families, and emergency shelter to 55 families.

Those figures all mention emergencies. Christmas can be an emergency too: the season that focuses on home and food and warmth and gifts and giving is hard on those who cannot participate. The House of Hope helps the community focus its generosity, both at Christmas and through the year.

The House of Hope has a food pantry in Oakland and has recently opened one in Bittinger to serve the northern portion of the county.

The food pantries are stocked by donations. Chuck Nolan and the staff of WXIE Radio hold an annual food drive in downtown Oakland on the Saturday before Christmas. Many churches participate and some stores also participate, collecting food and provisions for the House of Hope. Among them are Yoder's and Foodland in Grantsville; Fratz Red and White in Accident; and Browning's Foodland, Ralph's Richfood and Fratz Red and White in Oakland. The donations go to the House of Hope for storage and distribution when necessary.

The House of Hope is a local ecumenical service designed to meet local needs. The House itself is at Fourth and Alder streets in Oakland. It is staffed by Sisters Joanna and Marianne, and all its support comes from churches, organizations, and individuals, mostly local, although some from elsewhere are also generous contributors.

The House cooperates with agencies, providing in many instances services which, for some reason, are not available elsewhere. The House of Hope serves as a kind of safety net, helping in a way that preserves the individual's dignity.

If you are in need of services from the House of Hope, or if you would like to offer your services to the House of Hope, please call 334-2357.

Within ten days, I received notification that my request had been granted, and that information regarding transportation was forthcoming within the next week. Five weeks later, I was finally able to contact the supervisor of transportation only to discover that my children would be required to use a bus stop on Rt. 219 nearly 1/2 mile from our driveway. When I expressed concern for my children's safety, and asked that a bus stop be designated at our drive way, I was told firmly that since the children would be attending an out-of-area school, such a procedure would be in violation of "County Policy." Ironically, the children had been assigned to ride the same bus they had been riding to Dennett Road when we resided in Oakland!

In desperation, I contacted Dr. Ryscavage to question this "policy," and asked for assistance in obtaining a safe bus stop location. He, in turn, authorized the bus stop at our driveway for a period of six weeks after the birth of my baby, which he considered to be a period of hardship. After that time, however, I was told that the children would be required to either transfer to Broad Ford, use the pre-existing bus stop, or be privately transported to school.

My next step was to appeal the superintendent's decision to the Board of Education. Then, on February 10, 1987, two days before my appeal was to be heard, I received notification that the request for my children to continue attending Dennett Road School for the remainder of the school year had been denied! I decided to attend the Board meeting as scheduled to air my concerns over this decision. As a result, the denial was overruled, but there was still the matter of transportation. I therefore requested a hearing at the March Board meeting.

While preparing for the appeal, I did extensive research on transportation policies and procedures. Guess what? I could not find any documentation of transportation policy regarding out-of-area students! Later I discovered that the transportation decision concerning my children was based merely on previous practices, and that a formal policy had never actually been drafted! This information and more was revealed to the Board of Education during the course of the appeal to no avail. President William Goldsborough claimed that transportation services were not "free," and that Garrett County taxpayers did not contribute to the funding of these services! Charlie Teets was the only Board member who did not vote to uphold the superintendent's decision. In my estimation, the other Board members voted to uphold dubious precepts which allow a child's welfare to be placed at the bottom of a long list of priorities.

Thus, I can sympathize with Mr. Taylor's feelings of frustration and anger. This is only a brief account of all the events that transpired between October 1986 and March 1987. I sincerely hope that these cases are isolated, and that other parents and children will not be subjected to such bureaucratic actions.

To the Editor:

I read with interest the letter from Robert Taylor concerning his child's bus stop. My children, too, travel more than a quarter of a mile to board the bus at an "empty" stop.

When our family moved to Devil's Half Acre Road at Keyser's Ridge this year, I called the transportation director at the Board of Education to arrange for the bus to stop at our house. No deal. Our new home is too close to the point where the present bus route ends. To our driveway service cannot be provided unless we live at least one full mile past the current turn-around spot. This official assured me, when I protested, that many parents have complaints of this nature, especially when students have to walk various dis-

Our Turn

A Christmas Mother
by Pam Ashby

She was dressed in black crepe and smelled of soft honey-suckle. She carefully clasped the cherished strand of pearls around her slender neck and stole one more glance in the mirror before departing on an all too rare "date" with her handsome husband.

She never complained when one or more of her six children watched her apply her makeup as she "gussied up." She must have thought it a good lesson to teach one's daughter how to enhance one's looks with just the right amount of lipstick and rouge — not with words, but in her actions.

She was off to some holiday dinner and I loved it when she hugged me goodbye. She smelled so nice and felt so soft. She loved Christmas and it showed in her eyes.

I wonder if she knows how I marveled as she created the life-like creche on the mantel and the fancy, handmade decorations all over the big, old house. I can still smell the aroma of English cookies baking in the oven, wafting through the halls as she listened to Bing Crosby's "White Christmas" and took the time to write a personal note in each Christmas card. By the week before Christmas she had every pretty tin in the house filled with fudge and a huge assortment of cookies "just in case company stopped by."

Our (her) Christmas tree was always a masterpiece of which dreams are made. Sometimes she stayed up until 3 a.m. to make it so special. The kids always had the honor of placing the icicles on "her" tree the next day — "one at a time, please."

Now that I'm grown, I appreciate the order of her life more each day. There was a method to her madness. Her life wasn't easy back then, but I'm not so sure she realized it at the time, especially at Christmas. She was ahead of her time in so many ways, yet old-fashioned enough to be great fun.

It is said that imitation is the greatest form of flattery. Do you realize, mom, how I try to pattern my life after yours? You have set down wonderful traditions and important lessons that will be with me forever.

The nuts are chopped for the English cookies, the creche is on the piano, the tree boasts many handmade decorations and the forks are on the left and knives and spoons on the right. My honey-suckle-scented bath awaits me and I know that Christ is the reason for the season and that giving is better than receiving.

Ya done good, mom, and I love you for it. I love your handsome husband, too. And if you're not home for Christmas, Garrett Memorial had better watch out. There will be an unequalled Christmas celebration in your hospital room. That's a promise.

Custer was eastbound on Glendale Road, west of North Glade Road, when his vehicle began to fishtail on the icy road. Custer then lost control of the 1987 Chevrolet K-10, traveling off the right side of the road and striking an embankment and a tree. The vehicle then overturned.

Catherine B. LaPointe, 29, McHenry, was treated for injuries at Garrett Memorial Hospital following a two-vehicle accident Tuesday morning. LaPointe was operating a 1983 Toyota Tercel southbound on Rt. 219 when she was struck head-on by a 1985 Renault Alliance, operated by Frances

DON'T LET THE HOLIDAYS GET YOU DOWN

We should all look forward to the holidays. And yet, it is amazing to note how many people can hardly get through them without a great deal of stress and exhaustion.

The fast pace of modern living seems to make people almost frantic in their approach to the holiday season. Pressures build for both the business person and the homemaker as they seek to fulfill all social, business, and family obligations in a short span of time.

What many of us don't realize is that the way we feel under pressure (mentally and physically) depends to a great extent on our overall health. No one can feel relaxed, pleasant, and capable of coping with a busy schedule if his body is not functioning properly.

Even under normal circumstances, there is a difference in the reactions of those individuals whose health is less than should be expected. Add to that the over-indulgence in food and beverage during the holiday, the drain on mental and physical capacities, and the result is more obvious. Since the central nervous system influences every part of the body, stress shows up in extreme fatigue, nervous tension, and lowered resistance against disease and disability.

It's easy to say "slow down for the holidays," but your doctor of chiropractic offers some sound advice based on his health care experience and training.

1. Before you jump on the merry-go-round of activities, pull out and pitch all of the non-essential projects that were time consuming and wasteful the previous year.
2. Concentrate on essentials and pace yourself. Make up a list of projects to be done by priority and allow sufficient time for them.
3. Don't try to get all your entertaining into the holidays. If you "owe" someone a social response, try to schedule it after the holidays. Since other people suffer the same frustrating schedule as you do, they might also appreciate an invitation when the pace slackens.
4. Resist the temptation to overeat or to indulge in an excess of rich foods.
5. Get plenty of sleep and relaxation.
6. Keep an important place on that calendar of busy activities for periodic health examinations, including a spinal examination.

Your doctor of chiropractic reminds you that having a happy holiday depends on staying healthy, being energetic, and being free of pain and illness.

Persistent or recurring aches in the back and limbs may suggest a possible spinal or pelvic problem. This often requires a structural correction of the cause in order to relieve the condition. Although drugs may hide the pain temporarily, the spine and sacroiliac must be aligned to their proper position for normal function.

YOUR CHRISTMAS TREE

The Christmas tree — a sight that brings joy and excited anticipation to the children. A symbol of peace and hope to everyone throughout the nation during this holiday season.

Our tradition of decorating a tree with lights and ornaments dates back to the Revolutionary War. It was during this time that the Hessian troops hired by the British and homesick for their German homeland, decorated native American pines to remind themselves of their homes and families. The evergreen has been a symbol of the Christmas season since the European middle ages, and lighted and decorated trees have adorned Christmas celebrations in Germany since the days of Martin Luther (1483-1546).

Each December Americans take home an evergreen to decorate with tinsels, ornaments, candy canes and lights to be used as the center piece of the holiday season celebrations. Many people still cut their trees in the wild forest, though more and more the trees we use are coming from cultivated Christmas tree farms and are sold at a retail lot in residential areas.

When you visit the local retail lot you will of course be looking for a good tree, one that is fresh and appealing to the senses. The size, shape and kind of tree is determined by personal preference and the space the tree will occupy, but a fresh tree is something we are all looking for. Here are some simple tips that Ernie Metz, Project Forester for Garrett County, has suggested will help you determine if a tree is fresh:

- Bend a needle on the tree. If it is resilient, the tree is fresh.
- Bump the base of the tree hard on the ground, if no needles fall off the tree is fresh (Spruce do not retain their needles well, in their case it is not a reflection of freshness).
- Feel the bottom of the stump, if it is sappy and moist, it is fresh.

Buying a Christmas tree that passes these three tests will help assure that you are buying a fresh tree, one that will not prematurely drop its needles, and has the strength to carry your ornaments and lights without undue fear of breaking or catching fire.

For further information contact Ernie Metz, Project Forester of the Garrett Project, at 301-334-3296.

Pacific Military Personnel Air Concerns To House Committee

A delegation of House Armed Services Committee members, which just returned from the Pacific, found military families at Clark Air Base in the Philippines far more concerned about theft — including even the sheets off their beds — than rebel threats to their lives.

"Witness after witness, often to tumultuous applause from the packed house in the base gymnasium, spoke of the day-to-day fear of robberies at their quarters on base," Rep. Beverly B. Byron (D-Md.) said.

Rep. Byron is chairman of the Military Personnel and Compensation Subcommittee and also chaired the delegation that visited the Philippines, Japan, Thailand and Korea, where they had Thanksgiving dinner with the troops in the Demilitarized Zone separating the two Koreas.

The delegation held field hearings of a "town meeting" format at the Kadena base on Okinawa as well as Clark in the Philippines. Three servicemen were shot and killed near Clark Air Base in October by communist guerrillas who have threatened further killings and prompted considerable concern in the United States about the security provided.

"The delegation found that service men and women, and their families, expect the dangers of military conflict and even terrorism and are performing superbly under these conditions," Rep. Byron said.

"In the wake of the killings, there is clearly an undercurrent of concern. The burning issue, however, was the security of their homes and personal possessions against petty larceny by the criminal element in the local Filipino population," Rep. Byron said. "Although worried about the threat of terrorism, our personnel are willing to accept this as one of the risks of their job — but not the petty thievery that runs rampant. They are justifiably outraged that they have to pay 'protection' money to hire Filipino guards to keep the sheets from being stolen off the beds of their military quarters."

After the two field hearings in Okinawa and the Philippines and meetings in Korea and Japan, the subcommittee concluded that the quality of personnel serving overseas is outstanding. "What they don't deserve, however, is inadequate access to medical care and undignified living conditions," Rep. Byron said. As a result of the fact-finding mission, the delegation said it will seek to improve conditions for personnel assigned overseas.

At each stop, the delegation reviewed military construction projects, including family housing, that had been funded by the Congress in recent years. The delegation also briefed the local commanders on the difficult funding choices in military construction in light of the FY 1988 defense budget cuts.

Rep. William L. Dickinson (R-Ala.), ranking Republican on the full committee and the delegation, commented on the relationship between the U.S. military and the host countries.

"The living conditions of our service men and women, and their families, are heavily influenced by the state of political relations," Dickinson said. "When there is overwhelming support for a U.S. military presence in the host country, as in Korea, we can make substantial investments in facilities that generally improve living conditions for our personnel. On the other hand, when the host country falters in its support for the U.S. presence, we are reluctant to make those investments. We saw this situation in Panama earlier this year, and we certainly see it in the Philippines today."

While in the Philippines, the delegation visited the island of Corregidor to view the deterioration of the battlefield memorial there. A team of Seabees has begun to arrest the deterioration, but more work is required.

Further hearings of the Military Personnel and Compensation Subcommittee will be scheduled early next year to examine the issues raised in the "town meetings" held at Okinawa and Clark, especially personal safety and security. In its continuing hearings on military medical care, the subcommittee will address such issues raised with the delegation as the adequacy of staffing at overseas medical facilities and the competition for medical care posed by non-command sponsored dependents and "extended families."

On a number of the concerns expressed in the "town meetings," the ability of the committee to act will be influenced by the size of future defense budgets. These funding-related issues include household goods weight allowances and other

Permanent-Change-of-Station costs, reimbursement for high-cost, off-base housing overseas, and the perennial concern — overall military pay. The committee also plans to investigate further the concerns of service families about day care for dependent children and the quality of education at Department of Defense Dependents' Schools.

With regard to military construction in Korea, despite a reduction of nearly 20 percent in the overall military construction budget this year, the committee authorized all projects requested for points north of Seoul. The committee hopes to provide funds in the next several years that will get all troops close to the DMZ out of 1950's vintage quonset huts and into proper living quarters with inside plumbing. In the Philippines, while the committee funded family housing, a hospital at Subic Bay, and other projects this year, it denied funding for a hospital at Clark without prejudice.

The delegation also visited Thailand and held discussions with the Thai foreign minister on military and other subjects. The delegation expressed its profound appreciation to the Thais for their friendship over the years, noting their willingness to allow the "pass through" of U.S. military flights, to accept refugees from Cambodia and Laos, and to pursue the fight against illegal narcotics trafficking. The Thais raised several issues that the members will pursue, such as the large cuts in military assistance to Thailand and recent legislation that lowers world rice prices by subsidizing U.S. production.

FROM A CAFETERIA TO SANTA'S WORKSHOP — The cafeteria of Southern Middle School was converted into a real Santa's workshop on Friday, as members of the eighth grade class concluded a food and toy drive for local Santa Claus, Lou Stouffer. With Santa in the above photo are Diane Beckman, office aid, and Gary Thompson, teacher. The students sorted all of the items and then packaged them into boxes for the various age groups of children who would be receiving them. The toys and food completely filled the bed of a pickup truck, pictured below, as well as a Jeep Wagoneer belonging to Santa, and they were transported to Santa's "real" workshop near Terra Alta. Most of the toys and food was distributed over the weekend to needy families in the area. The local Mr. Kringle has already traveled many thousands of miles this year, brightening the holiday spirits of hundreds of families. Other residents, businesses and organizations that made donations of toys, food and money to Santa this past week are The Garrett County Board of Realtors, the Junior Woman's Civic Club, and Ralph and Cathy Nardi, Pittsburgh, who are parttime residents of Alpine Lake. The Nardis organized a drive in Pittsburgh, resulting in two more truckloads of toys which arrived last week.

Lakers Defeat Previously Unbeaten Ohio Valley In Overtime, 86-81

After recording two straight losses, the Garrett Community College Lakers upped their season record to 7-3 last night with an 86-81 overtime win over previously unbeaten Ohio Valley College of East Liverpool, Ohio.

GCC Coach Dennis Gibson called it "a big win over a very good team" and hopes that the Lakers will hang on to their momentum going into their weekend's annual Coca-Cola Christmas Classic in McHenry.

The score remained tight throughout most of the game, although the Lakers did build a nine-point lead midway through the first half. Ohio Valley came back to narrow the gap to just two points, 42-40, at halftime.

The lead changed hands several times in the second half. Eric Downs put Garrett on top, 73-71, with a short jumper in the final moments, but a bucket by Kenny Smith of Ohio Valley was the final score in regulation time.

The Lakers assumed control immediately in the overtime period, moving out to a 79-73 lead on a 12-foot jumper by Duane Tabor, a stolen pass and layup by Aaron Davis, and two foul shots by Dell Youngblood.

Ohio's Kevin Smith then hit a jumper to make it 79-75, but Downs responded with a three-point shot.

A three-pointer by OV's Pat Coleman cut the Lakers' lead to 82-78 with 55 seconds remaining. Following another Laker bucket, Smith recorded another three-pointer with just five seconds left to make it 84-81. Ohio Valley was then forced to foul Tabor, who concluded the scoring by hitting both of his free throws.

Downs led the Lakers with 25 points on 10 buckets and a perfect four-for-four effort at the foul line. He also led his team with 13 rebounds.

Joe Schmide finished with 15 points and a dozen rebounds for Garrett and Tabor netted 10 points.

Leading Ohio Valley's scoring were Rob Wilson, Smith, and Coleman, who recorded 19, 16 and 15 points, respectively.

Ohio Valley had come into the game with a 5-0 record.

TO HOST ANNUAL CLASSIC — The Garrett Community College Lakers, currently 7-3 on the season, will host their annual Coca-Cola Christmas Classic this weekend. The tournament will also include three strong teams from Pennsylvania: Mt. Aloysius, the McKeesport Campus of Penn State, and Beaver Community College. Pictured left to right, kneeling, are Eric Rice, Kerwin also feature Mt. Aloysius, the McKeesport Campus of Penn State, and Beaver Community College.

The Lakers will first meet Beaver this Friday, Dec. 18, at 8 p.m., following the McKeesport-Mt. Aloysius contest. The final and consolation games will be held Saturday.

Garrett split with Mt. Aloysius last season, losing at home, 91-90, on a last-second shot by Dave Murgas.

Mounties back this year are 6-5 Mike Lamb and 6-7 Stacey Porter. Lamb was second in scoring for the team last year with a 16 ppg average, while Porter was third, averaging just under 12 points. They also combined for 19 rebounds per contest, with Porter averaging 10.

The Lakers did not play McKeesport last year. McKeesport enters the tournament with the tallest line-up, which includes 6-5 Dean Thomas, 6-7 Vinnie Wise, and 6-9 John Litz.

The Lakers' losses this season have been to Westmoreland CC, Pa., Mount Alto Campus of Penn State, and Bergen CC, of New Jersey.

Current scoring leaders are Duane Tabor, who is hitting 16 per game plus pulling down an average of four rebounds, and Eric Downs, who is netting 15 points and grabbing just over 10 rebounds per game. Downs netted 25 points and grabbed 13 rebounds last night against Ohio Valley.

Joe Schmide is recording over 12 points and just under five rebounds per contest, while Aaron Davis is averaging 10 points and six assists from his guard position. William Scales is averaging nine points and three rebounds, while Tony Haskiell, former East Preston standout, leads the Lakers in assists with 6.5. Haskiell is also averaging about eight points per game, but has been on the sidelines for three games because of a severe sinus infection.

Dell Youngblood, a 6-6 power forward, was injured in the first game of the season, was back in action last night and finished with eight points, plus gives the Lakers more power on the boards.

Kerwin Thompson and Eric Jordan are spitting time at the shooting guard position, with Thompson averaging five points and Jordan, four points. Rob Germain, one of the team's top defensive players, is hitting four points per game and is the team's leading free throw shooter.

A reception for the coaches and fans will be held at Top-sider Restaurant this Friday and Saturday night following the Christmas Classic games.

The Huskies outgunned the visitors from the floor by a 16-12 margin and converted two of eight free throw opportunities, compared to a one-for-eight effort by Calvary.

Connie Ketterman paced Calvary with 10 points.

The 1-2 Huskies will return to action this Friday in Oakland by facing Southern in the opening round of the Rams' annual Snowflake Classic.

Rams Upset Beall, Then Edged By BW

Although the Southern Rams have only one win in three starts so far this season, that single victory was a big one, as Coach Oren Yoder's team traveled to Frostburg Friday night and handed the Beall Mountaineers their first loss of the campaign, 54-51.

The Rams nearly pulled off another big win Tuesday night against powerful Bishop Walsh, but were edged by the visiting Spartans, 60-56.

Although the Rams were outgunned from the floor by Beall, 20-18, they connected on 16 of 21 free throw opportunities, compared to a 10-for-15 effort by the Mountaineers.

Southern was down 17-9 at the end of the first quarter, but came back to narrow that lead to just two points, 23-21, by halftime.

A tenacious defense in the third stanza, led by J.R. Bosley, resulted in several Beall turnovers and a three-point lead by the Rams, 39-36, going into the final period.

At one point the Rams were on top by as many as six in the fourth quarter before Beall came back to tie the score with just under four minutes remaining. Southern took the lead again and kept it the rest of the way, as a final three-point attempt by Beall at the buzzer bounced off the rim.

Zack Gibson led the Rams' scoring effort, finishing with 18 points, while Rich Evick netted 11 and Bobby Bernard and Mike Ruff each hit eight.

Leading all scorers was Beall's Brent McKenzie, who recorded 27 points on nine buckets and nine shots from the line. He also pulled down 13 rebounds.

Scott Muir finished with 14 points and 10 rebounds for the Mountaineers.

The Rams also found themselves behind early in the contest with Bishop Walsh, but they never quite managed to take the lead. They were down 18-13 after one quarter and 36-29 at halftime. They cut the Spartans' lead to 47-46 by the end of the third period, but could get no closer.

Barry Page, who is averaging just over 25 points per game, led BW with 26 points, while Jason Stichter canned 18 for the Spartans.

Gibson again paced the Rams' scoring with 19 points, while Bosley was close behind with 18 and Bernard netted 11.

Coach Yoder was pleased with his team's efforts in the second half, but said that their lackluster first half and the outstanding performance by Page led to the defeat.

The Southern jayvee team, under Coach Bill Ewing, won the preliminary game, edging the Spartan junior varsity, 50-46.

The Rams will face still another tough opponent this Friday when they host Valley.

Huskies Whipped By Valley And Mount Savage

Valley and undefeated Mount Savage proved to be too much for the Northern Huskies this past week, as Coach Dave Bender's team fell to the Black Knights Friday night in Lonaconing, 68-49, and were topped Tuesday night by the home-standing Indians, 57-46.

While the Huskies never seriously threatened Valley, they came back from a 13-1 deficit in the game against Mount Savage and assumed a 37-33 lead by the end of the third quarter.

Fred Sloan led Valley over the Huskies, recording 25 points, nine of them on three-point shots. Sloan, who also pulled down six rebounds and had five steals, is averaging just over 27 points per game.

The Knights were ahead 18-12 after the first period, 36-19 at halftime, and 52-31 after three quarters.

Jeff Metz netted 17 points for Valley, while Chris Wilson hit 10 points and grabbed 10 rebounds.

Leading the Huskies' scoring was Aaron Zumpano, who hit 18 points on six buckets and six free throws, had five steals and six rebounds, while John Harmke and John Sherbin each netted nine points. Sherbin also pulled down eight rebounds and Dave Yoder was credited with six assists.

The Northern jayvee squad also went down to defeat, falling to their Valley counterparts in the preliminary game, 52-35.

The win was the second in three starts for Valley.

After Mount Savage jumped out to a 13-1 lead in Tuesday night's contest, the Huskies responded with a dozen unanswered points to knot the score at 13 by the end of the period.

za, as the half ended with Mount Savage on top by one point, 24-23.

Zumpano led an offensive surge in the third quarter and the Huskies out-scored the Indians 14-9 in that period to take a 37-33 advantage into the final stanza.

However, the fourth period belonged entirely to the home team, as Rocky Reed scored 12 of his 19 points in that time frame to put the game out of reach for the Huskies.

Mickey Burkett also finished in double figures for the Indians with 15, as did Todd Mallory who finished with 10 points.

Zumpano again paced the Huskies offensive thrust, netting 18 points, 11 of which were recorded in the second half, and Harmke finished with 13 points.

The Northern jayvees lost the preliminary game, 44-26.

The Huskies will host

Salisbury on Monday.

Laker Women Avenge Loss To Cats Before Losing Big To Hagerstown

The women's basketball team of Garrett Community College gained sweet revenge over Potomac State College Friday night, as the Lakers rolled over the Catamounts, 55-30, in an opening game of the Potomac State Women's Basketball Invitational in Keyser, W. Va. The Lakers were nipped by the Cats the previous week, 40-38, when Theresa Murphy hit a bucket with just 12 seconds remaining.

The victory celebration was short-lived, however, as Garrett was pounded the following afternoon in the finals of the Invitational by Hagerstown

Junior College, 91-49. The Hub City team earned a spot in the finals by mashing the Community College of Baltimore on Friday, 95-54.

Gail Aldridge paced the Lakers against Potomac State, finishing with 14 points and four assists, while former Southern standout Vicki Dilgard was close behind with 13 points — seven of them from the foul line — and six assists. Aldridge sunk three three-point buckets.

The Cats simply could not find the mark in their shots from the floor, hitting on only nine of 65 attempts for a 13 percent effort. None of the Catamounts finished in double figures, as Sharon Tanner led with nine.

The Lakers held a 23-10 halftime advantage and out-rebounded Potomac State, 49-31, with Garrett's Loretta Spruill pulling down a game-high 19.

Potomac State's record fell to 2-2.

Aldridge also led the Lakers in scoring against Hagerstown in the finals, netting 14 points, six of which were on a pair of three-point shots. However, Hagerstown received a balanced scoring performance by four players, as Michelle Hanna led with 21 points, Vanessa Stone and Lesley Barlett each recorded 18, and Karen Smith netted DRAWING WINNER — A $100 gift certificate was recently donated by Browning's Foodland to support a fund-raising activity for the Garrett Community College women's volleyball team. Above, Karen Frank, a member of the GCC team, accepts the certificate from Rick DiSimone, manager of Foodland. Winning the certificate in the drawing was Darlene Glottelty, Mtn. Lake Park, and selling the winning ticket was Stacy Sines. Miss Frank was the leading ticket seller.

Also reaching double figures for the Lakers was Jodi Gattian, who finished with 13 points and nine rebounds. Spruill also pulled down nine rebounds.

Coach Stephanie Durov's Lakers were never really in the game, as Hagerstown held a 44-22 halftime lead.

Aldridge was named to the All-Tournament team, along with Sharon Tanner of Potomac State, Roxandra Blake of Baltimore, Tammy Helm and Vanessa Stone of Hagerstown. Stone was named the tournament MVP.

"Friday night everything seemed to come together for the players. All of our practices finally paid off," stated Coach Stephanie Durov. "It was definitely a nice first season victory for us because it was a team effort. I am not able to single out any specific player as the one who did a better job than anyone else.

"Saturday's game was a different story. Our players were obviously tired from the night before. There didn't seem to be the team unity and cooperation there was the night before. Maybe I shouldn't have tried a different starting lineup," admitted Durov. "Overall, I feel that our players performed fairly well against Hagerstown's really talented team. But there is also lots of room for improvement on our part."

The Community College of Baltimore won the consolation game, edging Potomac State, 50-46.

The 1-2 Lakers are scheduled to travel to Prince Georges Community College this Friday for their final game before the holiday break.

Former Rams Playing For Lakers

Three Oakland residents, all former players for Southern Coach Don Stemple, compose much of the nucleus of the Garrett Community College women's basketball team this season, according to first-year Laker Coach Stephanie Durov. Christine Gregory, Jackie Noe, and Vicki Dilgard, who were key players in the great success of Southern's teams in recent years, are now seeing considerable action in Garrett uniforms.

"I feel that the high school team playing experience of these three young ladies will be an asset for our team this season," stated Coach Durov. "I look to each of them to contribute their individual talents to bring the team together. I do not believe that a player has to be a high scorer to be an important member of the team. Each player has skills that are necessary for the development of the total team."

Dilgard, daughter of Norma Johnson and Vic Dilgard, is currently averaging over eight points per game for the Lakers; Noe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Callis, is recording over three points per contest; and Gregory, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Gregory, is one of the leading rebounders.

Rounding out the Laker roster are Gail Aldridge, a Frankfort High graduate and resident of Ridgeley, W. Va.;

Kelly Likins, Rowlesburg, W. Va.; Jodi Gattian, Morgantown, W. Va.; and Loretta Spruill, Steelton, Pa.

"There is not much depth or height on this team, but there is a lot of desire to play," Durov said. "These young ladies have been working hard to overcome these obstacles."

The Lakers are currently 1-2 on the season.

The five most popular sports activities for American adults are swimming, fishing, bicycling, bowling and running.

Smith Bucket Secures Win For Southern Girls

A shot by Courtney Smith in the final moments of the game gave the Southern varsity girls a 36-34 victory over Bishop Walsh Monday night in Oakland.

The score was knotted at 34 when Sherri Bosley drew a charging foul from a BW player to give the ball back to the Lady Rams with 1:05 remaining.

The Rams were down 7-4 after the first quarter, came back to take a 16-14 lead by halftime, but fell behind 25-22 at the end of three quarters.

Tricia Heatherman led Southern with 15 points and 10 rebounds, while Smith finished with 13 points and a dozen rebounds. Marci Stemple finished with five steals for the Rams.

Pacing the Spartans were Dee Guthrie and Katie Coulehan, who netted 14 and 12 points, respectively.

It was the fourth win in five starts for the Rams, while the Spartans dropped to 0-4.

The Southern girls will host their fourth annual Snowflake Classic this Saturday and Monday, with the first game slated for 2 p.m. Saturday between Fort Hill and Valley. The Rams will meet Northern in the 4 p.m. contest.

The consolation game of the tourney will be played Monday at 6:30 p.m., followed by the championship game at 8 p.m. Fort Hill has won the tournament twice and Southern, once.

Mt. Top League Results Announced

Martin's Auto Glass kept its Mt. Top Basketball League-leading undefeated record intact with a come-from-behind 64-62 win over previously unbeaten A&A Realty.

A&A held a 35-25 halftime lead, which was increased by as many as 12 points in the third quarter. However, Martin's tenacious defense, fast-break offense, and timely outside shooting by Dennis Gibson brought Martin's to within three points at the end of the third stanza.

Martin's stayed within four points until they took the lead on Gibson's 15-foot jumper with 2:30 remaining. Martin's increased the lead to 66-62 with less than a minute left before Steve Liller hit a jumper for A&A with 40 seconds to go.

Martin's turned the ball over with 15 seconds to give A&A one last chance to tie. After a timeout, A&A worked the ball to Steve Liller for a 12-foot baseline jumper, which missed. Ken Niner's follow-up rimmed the basket and Greg Shockey's tap missed just before time expired. Liller led all scorers with 20 points and Gibson had 19 for Martin's.

In other action, Miner's & Merchant and Durst Exxon kept pace with Martin's in the standings, recording wins over Old Mill Restaurant and Video Connection, respectively.

Miner's won 62-55, as Bryan Wilt had 15 points for the winners and Tom Panther had 23 points for Old Mill.

Durst Exxon won 59-52, as Jim Antower sunk 15 points for the winners.

National Guard evened its record with a 66-63 win over Fairfax Stone. Pat Adams of Fairfax had a game high 25 points and Bill Braithwaite had 19 for The Guard.

Bausch & Lomb won its first game of the season, 49-42, over Deep Creek Pharmacy. Carl Latimer recorded 12 points for B&L and Tom Bullhuck hit 16 for the Pharmacy.

Spotlight On Scholarships

Julie Warnick, daughter of Charles and Leota Warnick, Oakland, has been selected for a Westvac Scholarship.

Miss Warnick is majoring in business administration and secretarial science. She plans to pursue a career in management and eventually own a business of her own.

Brad L. King has been chosen as one of this year's recipients of the Westvac Scholarship at Garrett Community College.

King is a graduate of Southern High School and is majoring in wildlife management and forestry.

He is the son of Rodney and Mary King, Deer Park.

SCHOLARSHIP SPONSOR — Nancy M. Nemith, left, manager of Government/Community Relations for C&P Telephone Company, recently visited Garrett Community College to present a scholarship check. C&P has been supporting Garrett County residents at GCC since the fall of 1974. Approximately 40 students have gained access to education through these scholarship funds. Accepting a check in the amount of $1,600 from Ms. Nemith was Cissy VanSickle, financial aid director at GCC.

State Jobless Rate Higher, County's Stable

Maryland's estimated unemployment rate edged up slightly from 3.9 percent in September to 4.0 percent in October, according to statistics released by the Maryland Department of Economic and Employment Development (DEED).

Meanwhile, Garrett County's jobless rate remained at 7.2 percent, the same figure recorded in September. The October rate last year was 7.7 percent.

This over-the-month increase for the state matches that of October 1986. Nationally, the unemployment picture remained unchanged with joblessness holding steady at 5.7 percent.

After three months of declines, the statewide labor force increased by an estimated 7,982 persons to reach 2,399,948 in October. Although nearly 4,000 more Marylanders were employed in October than in September for a total of 2,302,916, an almost equal number of residents became unemployed during that period to bring that total to 97,032.

In Garrett County there were 850 persons without employment in October, out of a workforce of 11,855. Out of a workforce of 11,606 in September, 840 were jobless.

Service providers accounted for nearly all of the new jobs generated between September and October. However, seasonal declines continued in eating/drinking places, hotels, amusement/recreational services, membership organizations, and agricultural services.

The full impact of these losses was cushioned somewhat by the pre-holiday hires in general merchandise/apparel stores, increased seasonal employment in state and local educational institutions and increased employment in the construction industry. However, the two-month employment gain in manufacturing was turned around by the effects of seasonal drop-offs in food and kindred products, strike activity in chemical/allied products and reduced business activity in primary metals.

Regional unemployment trends were relatively consistent with those statewide with the exception of the Eastern area of the State. Joblessness in the nine country area rose from 4.1 percent in September to 4.1 percent in October. The unemployment picture was particularly bleak in Worcester County as the end of the summer tourist and agricultural season caused the jobless rate to rise from 4.1 percent to 7.4 percent. Similar trends boosted neighboring Somerset County's rate from 5.8 percent to 7.0 percent.

Western Maryland was the only region to experience reduced joblessness. Its unemployment rate dropped slightly from 7.5 percent to 7.2 percent. Unemployment declines in Allegany and Washington counties, in particular, contributed to the overall decline.

Meanwhile, in the Baltimore metropolitan area, joblessness rose slightly from 4.3 percent to 4.5 percent. Baltimore City's unemployment estimate rose from 6.5 percent in September to 6.9 percent in October.

In the Maryland suburbs of the Washington, D.C., metro-

Southern High project. The $2.4 million figure includes the 25 percent local share and the architectural and equipment fees which is the responsibility of the local financial authority.

At the meeting, Ryscavage shared his recommendation to the task force that a school building authority be established as "the only viable possibility" to "float bonds at a preferential rate...to ease the financial burden of most jurisdictions, especially those whose bond rating is relatively poor."

He added, "In order to provide special consideration to local sub-divisions less able to underwrite needed school construction, we suggest that the state assume the interest portion of the costs of such bonded indebtedness on a sliding scale with the poorest rated jurisdictions having no interest charge to those with the best rating having the benefit of the more favorable authority rate."

Commissioner Braskey, at a meeting Wednesday, presented these views to the Board of Public Works. A decision is expected to be made in two weeks by the board.

Ryscavage also noted that a fixed-seating auditorium is to be included in the SHS proposal, explaining that such a facility would not only benefit the students but the surrounding communities as well.

Also at the meeting, the Board of Education approved the satelighting of food service to Red House Elementary School, following the school's request that they be considered for the program in light of the recent death of the cafeteria manager there.

According to John Morris, assistant superintendent of administrative services, Dennett Road has been selected as the site of the preparing kitchen for the service to Red House. A cafeteria worker will be added to the staff at Red House to assist in the preparing, transporting and serving of food. That position will replace the position of cafeteria manager at Red House, said Morris.

Morris explained to the board members that, the satelighting of food to Red House, beginning in January, will result in a savings of approximately $3,300 for the remainder of the school year, adding that a $9,000 savings per year would be realized thereafter.

Morris said that there would be a one-time purchase of equipment to transport food.

Condition Stable

Also injured in a two-vehicle accident was Ethel J. Butler, 36, Terra Alta, W.Va., who was then taken to Garrett Memorial Hospital where she was treated and released.

The accident occurred Saturday at 12:10 p.m. when Butler, operating a 1978 Ford F-25 east-bound on Rt. 39, was attempting to make a left turn into a driveway when the operator of another vehicle, traveling in the same direction behind Butler, struck the Butler vehicle.

John E. Wilson Jr., 20, Oakland, operator of the second vehicle, a 1968 Ford F100, failed to control his speed when Butler began to turn, and, while passing Butler on the left side, sideswiped the vehicle.

Wilson and his two passengers, Ralph Rodeheaver, 17, Oakland, and Cecil Tasker, 17, Deer Park, were not injured. A passenger in Butler's vehicle, Chastity Butler, nine, Terra Alta, was also reportedly not injured.

Wilson was charged by Tfc. L. Rosage with failure to control speed.

Voters League Meets With Local Elected Officials

The League of Women Voters of Garrett County met for its annual holiday get-together with its elected officials December 5. Approximately 25 citizens met with Judge Fred Thayer, Oakland Town Council President Hank Seifert and Council member Terry Helbig. The representative from the Garrett County Commissioners did not attend.

The round-table discussion centered on the past, present and future activities of Oakland and its neighboring municipalities.

Good Food and how to prepare it!

SPINACH DIP

- 1½ cups fresh spinach (or ½ cup thawed frozen spinach) chopped
- 1 scallion, chopped (or 2 if preferred)
- ¾ cup lowfat cottage cheese
- ¼ cup plain lowfat yogurt
- 2 tsp. lemon juice (or to taste)
- Freshly ground pepper, to taste

Combine all ingredients, preferably in blender or food processor. Chill for at least 30 minutes to blend flavors. Adjust flavor with lemon juice and pepper. Serve with almost any raw vegetable, or with breadsticks or lowfat crackers. This will yield about 1 cup, with each 2 tablespoons containing about ½ gram of fat and 28 calories.

RADISH TRIANGLES

Here's an idea for hors d'oeuvres that are festive but not fat-laden! The sliced radish topping makes them attractive and the radish and horseradish combination provides a bit of a bite.

- 9 medium radishes, cleaned and trimmed
- ½ cup part-skim ricotta cheese
- 1½ tbsp. prepared horseradish, squeezed dry
- 1/8 tsp. pepper
- 6 slices whole wheat or other whole grain bread

Grate 5 of the radishes and blot excess water with a paper towel. Mix the grated radishes in a small bowl, with the ricotta, horseradish and pepper. Cut each bread slice diagonally into 4 triangles, then lightly toast them in a single layer under a preheated broiler, about 2 minutes per side. Cool to room temperature. Slice the remaining 4 radishes paper-thin. Spread cheese mixture on bread triangles. Top each triangle with 2-3 radish slices. Cover with plastic and refrigerate until serving time. This recipe yields 24 pieces (8-12 servings) with 24 calories and ½ gram of fat for each portion.

SNOW PEAS WITH LEMON DIPPING SAUCE

- 2 egg yolks
- 3 tablespoons wine mustard
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 2 anchovies
- 1 shallot
- 1 cup vegetable oil
- 1 pound fresh snow peas

Put egg yolks, mustard, lemon juice, anchovies and shallot in blender container. Cover and process at blend. Immediately remove feeder cap and pour in oil. Remove to storage container. Refrigerate until ready to serve. Serve in dipping bowl surrounded with fresh snow peas. Carrots and cauliflower pieces may also be used. Yield 1½ cups.

HAM 'N' MUSTARD STUFFED MUSHROOMS

- 8 ounces cooked ham, cubed
- 2 green onions, cut into pieces
- 2 tablespoons sour cream
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon wine mustard
- 1 tablespoon chutney, minced
- Dash curry powder
- 14-20 fresh, medium mushrooms, stemmed

Grind ham and onions, in blender. Combine all remaining ingredients except mushrooms. Mound ham mixture into mushroom caps. Chill until ready to serve. Yield: 14-20 appetizers.

GOURMET SHRIMP SPREAD

- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened to room temperature
- 2 cans (4½ oz. each) tiny or broken shrimp pieces rinsed and well drained
- ¼ cup mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- ½ teaspoon dillweed
- Unsalted crackers

Combine all ingredients at medium speed until well mixed. Remove to serving dish, cover and chill until ready to serve. Yield: 2 cups.

A Holiday Punch for All Ages

One of the most popular drinks at holiday gatherings is Punch. Serve two versions, one plain, and one "spirited" and you will be sure to please guests both young and old.

This Merry Berry Punch blends lemon flavored iced tea mix with cranberry-apple drink and pineapple juice. The tea gives the punch a solid base without masking the other flavors, and ginger ale is added for the sparkling final touch.

The "spirited" version of this punch calls for a cup of rum and increases slightly the number of servings.

Use your best pitcher for the plain punch, and put the "spirited" version in a small punch bowl or even a crystal fruit bowl. Arrange your table with traditional holiday greens and colorful napkins along with punch cups or small glasses, and you are ready for informal, easy entertaining.

Merry Berry Punch

(Makes 4 quarts or 32 4-oz. servings)

- | | |
|------------------------------|----------------------------|
| 6 rounded tablespoons lemon | 4 cups pineapple juice |
| flavored iced tea mix | 1 cup strawberries, halved |
| 4 cups ice water | 1 lime, sliced and halved |
| 4 cups cranberry apple drink | 3 cups ginger ale, chilled |

Combine tea mix with water. Add cranberry-apple drink and pineapple juice. Chill. When ready to serve, pour over ice in punch bowl or pitcher. Garnish with strawberries and lime slices. Pour in ginger ale.

Spirited Version: Before chilling, add 1 cup rum. Makes 17 cups (4 1/4 quarts) or 34 4-oz. servings.

"Spirited" and plain versions of this holiday tea-based punch will please guests of all ages.

- 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds Smithfield ham, sliced razor thin

Preheat the oven to 450°F. In a blender or food processor, puree the sweet potato pulp with the brown sugar until smooth. In a bowl, sift together the flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg, and mace. Mix in the lemon rind. Cut in the butter with a pastry blender until it resembles coarse meal.

CHILI CON QUESO

- 2 12-oz. packages fried chicken nuggets
- 1 clove garlic, halved
- ¾ cup beer
- 2 cups shredded American Cheese (8 ounces)
- 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese (4 ounces)
- 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
- 1 4-oz. can green chili peppers, rinsed, seeded and chopped
- ¼ teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
- 1 small tomato, peeled and coarsely chopped

Prepare chicken nuggets according to package directions. Meanwhile, rub the inside of a heavy 2-quart saucepan with the cut surfaces of garlic, discard the garlic. Add beer and heat slowly. Combine cheese and flour, tossing to coat cheese. Gradually add to beer, stirring constantly, until mixture is thickened and bubbly. (Do not allow mixture to become too hot). Stir in chili peppers and hot pepper sauce, heat through. Transfer to a fondue pot, place over fondue burner. Stir in chopped tomato. Use fondue forks to spear chicken and dip into hot cheese mixture. Add more beer, if necessary to thin mixture. Makes 2½ cups dip.

HERBED SALMON BALL

- 1 can (15½ oz.) Red Salmon
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1 clove garlic, pressed
- ½ cup small curd cottage cheese
- ¼ cup minced onion
- 1 teaspoon fines herbs, crumbled
- ½ teaspoon thyme, crumbled
- 1 cup chopped parsley
- ½ cup chopped walnuts
- Crackers

Drain salmon. Remove skin, if desired. Mash bones. Combine cream cheese, garlic, cottage cheese, onion, fines herbs and thyme until well blended. Stir in salmon to blend. Chill 3 hours. Mixture will be soft. Roll in parsley and walnuts. Serve with crackers. Makes 4 servings.

APPLE-SPICE EGGNOG

- 2 12-oz. cans evaporated skim milk
- 1 beaten egg
- 2 slightly beaten egg whites
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ tsp. ground cinnamon
- 2¼ cups apple juice, chilled
- 1 tsp. vanilla

Chill ¾ cup of the evaporated skim milk in a small bowl in the freezer about 30 minutes or until ice crystals form around the edge. Meanwhile, combine the remaining evaporated skim milk, egg, egg whites, sugar and cinnamon in medium saucepan. Stirring constantly, cook over medium heat until thickened. Do not boil. Remove from heat, pour into a 3-quart mixing bowl, cover and chill 15 minutes. Remove the chilled evaporated milk from freezer and beat at high speed for about 3 minutes or until soft peaks form. Stir the apple juice and vanilla into the egg mixture, fold in the whipped evaporated milk. Pour into a punch bowl and let stand for 30 minutes in a larger bowl filled with ice before serving. This recipe will produce about 16 4 oz. low fat, low calorie servings. Each serving will have about 73 calories and only ½ gram of fat. By comparison, some commercial egg-nogs may have as much as 171 calories and 10 grams of fat per half cup serving, and alcoholic versions can get as high as 335 calories and 16 grams of fat per serving.

VEGETABLE DIP FLORENTINE

- ¼ cup milk
- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 1 small onion, halved
- ½ cup fresh parsley sprigs
- ½ teaspoon dillweed
- 1 package (10 oz.) frozen spinach, defrosted, cooked and well drained
- Salt to taste

Put all ingredients into blender container. Cover and process at blend until smooth. Serve chilled with your choice of fresh vegetable slices. Yield: 1½ cups.

HOW FAR TO BETHLEHEM?

December 20, 1987

Background Scripture: Matthew 2:1-12
Devotional Reading: Isaiah 60:1-7

One of my favorite Christmas carols is an old English piece called the "Children's Song of the Nativity." The words of this carol are the voices of children on their way to Bethlehem, asking "How far is it to Bethlehem?"

In this haunting carol, the answer is: "Not very far." But, of course, your answer depends upon your perspective. Geographically, Bethlehem is but a few miles from Jerusalem, although from your home it is several thousands of miles distant. In terms of time, the birth of Jesus was almost two thousand years ago. Or, looking at it from still another perspective, by the time you read these words, there will be only four more shopping days until Christmas.

If, however, you are thinking in terms of the experience of the Incarnation in your own heart, the answer may be "very close," "far away," or "somewhere in-between." Bethlehem, the coming of Christ anew into our lives, is as close or as far as you want it to be.

THE WISE MEN

That's the way it was when Jesus was born. Geographically and religiously, King Herod was very close to Bethlehem. Herod's palace, the Herodium, lies but four miles from Bethlehem. Furthermore, Herod had been raised in the knowledge of the Jewish religion and was knowledgeable enough to know of its messianic expectations.

The wise men from the East, by way of contrast, were both geographically and religiously distant. Matthew gives us the impression they traveled a considerable distance. Tradition indicates they came from Persia. Nor do we know anything about their religion — although tradition and some scholars believe they at least were knowledgeable about astrology — but it is unlikely they were well-informed about Judaism.

There was a third set of characters in Matthew's Bethlehem story: the chief priests and scribes. These were the religious experts whom Herod consulted. Geographically, they were as close to Bethlehem as Herod, and religiously they were much, much closer. They knew the Hebrew scriptures and the messianic prophecies.

THE OTHERWISE

Yet, for all their "closeness" to Bethlehem, Herod and the scribes and Pharisees were still far away from the Incarnation. They had all the right answers, but the wrong responses. The scribes and Pharisees knew the scriptures. Herod knew just how threatening this Messiah could be. But it was these sages from an unknown land, professing an obscure "pagan" religion who proved to be closest to the meaning of what was happening in Bethlehem.

Herod knew about the Messiah, but he was not going to let this messenger from God interfere with his own plans and purposes. The scribes and Pharisees knew about the Messiah, too, but their knowledge of Christ anew into our lives, is as close or as far as you want it to be.

So, how far is it to Bethlehem for you?

CAN SANTA MAKE IT THIS YEAR?

With air pollution at an all-time high, there is some doubt whether Santa Clause will be able to make his annual trip this year.

Upper respiratory diseases attack older folks much more frequently and as you know, Mr. Claus is getting on in years. It has also been said that Santa has a touch of asthma which can easily be triggered when flying over some of those smog-ridden larger cities.

Let's all become pollution fighters this year. It will help all of us to stay healthier and will also keep those reindeer flying.

Longwall Mining Operations Being Studied At West Virginia University

It looks like a slice from an immense layer cake. Twenty feet long and five feet high, the slice stands in a laboratory in West Virginia University's White Hall. Most of its 60 layers are shades of tan and grey, but the bottom layer is black.

"This is the coal seam," says Syd Peng, touching the dark layer, which is about three inches thick. Some of the coal has been removed — "mined" — and an extensive system of cracks has spread through the upper layers.

"The entire model depicts a cross-section of earth about 110 feet deep, and represents an actual longwall mine site in northern West Virginia," Dr. Peng states.

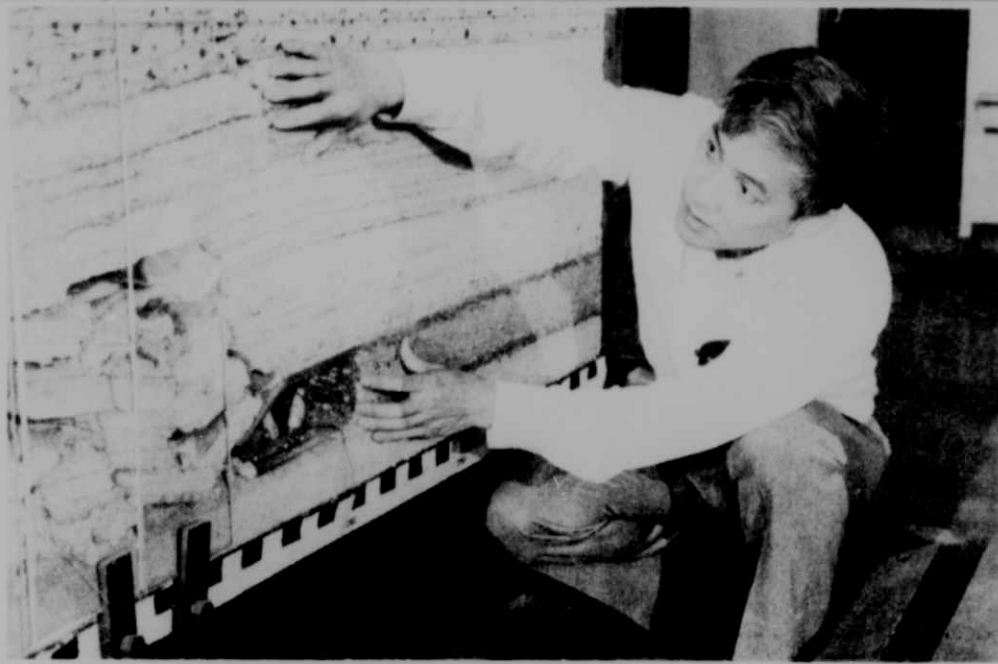

Peng is director of WVU's Longwall Mining and Ground Control Research Center, where university expertise in mining engineering, geology, civil engineering and mineral processing is brought to bear on longwall mining operations and problems. WVU is recognized as the national leader in longwall studies.

The model is being used to study subsidence resulting from longwall operations, which can damage houses and other surface structures and can cause temporary or permanent loss of water from streams and underground aquifers. The water literally slips through cracks that appear in the rock layers above a longwall mine.

Such effects have sometimes led to legal disputes between coal companies and surface property owners, and one of the goals of the center is to reduce the environmental risk of longwall operations.

In conventional room-and-pillar mining, pillars of coal are left unmined to support the coal roof. In longwall mining, movable hydraulic supports are used instead of coal pillars. Nearly all of the coal is removed. Then the supports are moved and the roof is allowed to collapse.

In a typical longwall operation coal is mined from an area 700 feet wide and nearly a mile long. The technique is about five times more productive and 200 times safer than room-and-pillar mining. It is also highly mechanized, requiring fewer miners.

In Peng's model, the little coal seam is slowly mined from left to right over two weeks. As mining progresses, a pattern of cracks spreads upward and the overburden rock caves in. The layers in the model are made of sand, clay, borax and gypsum in varying proportions to simulate the strength of real rock. Thickness of the layers is based on core samples drilled at the mine site.

Eventually, a wave of subsidence passes along the model's top layer, which corresponds to the earth's surface.

"We compare what we observe in our model with what we can monitor at the mine site and what we know about the behavior of rock under the stress a longwall operation creates," Peng explains.

Peng says the model has shown an exact simulation of subsidence and rock fracturing effects measured at the mine site.

"If we can reliably predict effects that would result from a longwall operation, companies can take steps to avoid subsidence and dewatering and to protect surface structures. Informed decisions can be made about where longwall mining can be best employed and where it should be avoided," says Peng.

He suggests that companies may choose to build similar models before opening a new longwall mine. The models are simple and inexpensive to build, he says, yet are scientifically based. Peng is also planning to develop computer software which can predict subsidence effects.

Longwall operations are expensive to start, even where expected environmental problems are minimal, and one of the center's aims is to develop guidelines to limit the financial risk of a longwall mine. Center researchers evaluate currently used techniques and equipment and develop new ones for future application. For example, they have developed selection criteria for power support in longwall mines, criteria that should result in reduced equipment costs.

"American productivity in longwall mines is the highest in the world, but only about 20 percent of our underground production is longwall. In West Virginia the figure is about 40 percent. If we want to remain competitive internationally in coal, we are going to have to turn to longwall more and more."

"In many cases, we aren't going to have a choice between longwall and room-and-pillar mining. The choice will be between a profitable longwall operation and no operation at all," he says.

Peng says he would like to see the center develop further as a technical resource to which mining companies turn when they plan new longwall operations or encounter unusual operational problems in equipment selection, roof control, surface subsidence or dewatering.

"We have the expertise to provide support as sophisticated as that available anywhere in the world. We want to be an asset not only to mining companies but also to the people of West Virginia and other states, by helping to make longwall operations as efficient, safe, and environmentally benign as possible," Peng said.

Operation of the Longwall Mining and Ground Control Research Center currently is supported by the WVU Energy and Water Research Center.

Functional Math Scores Continue To Improve

Maryland's ninth grade students continue to make steady improvement in mathematics, according to statewide results of functional tests released this week by the State Superintendent of Schools. Ninth grade scores in reading have held steady for several years now.

In tests given this fall, 93.1 percent of students passed the Maryland Functional Reading Test and 68 percent passed the Maryland Functional Mathematics Test. The pass rate on the mathematics test is 2.8 points above last year's pass rate of 65.5 percent and 7.5 points above the 60.8 percent pass rate in 1983.

The statewide pass rate on the reading test, the first of the state functional tests to have been required for graduation, has been between 92 percent and 93 percent for the past five years.

State School Superintendent David W. Hornbeck released the statewide pass rates on the two state functional tests to local superintendents, who will use the state results in interpreting pass rates in their own school systems.

"I am very gratified by these results," Hornbeck said. "They demonstrate that hard work by students and math teachers across the state continues to improve test results year after year."

Public Libraries May Not Charge Rent On Videos

Maryland Attorney General J. Joseph Curran Jr. said today that the state's public libraries cannot charge people fees for borrowing videocassettes, recordings, filmstrips and other entertainment media, which fulfill part of the librarian's basic mission of providing information.

In a nine-page opinion, Curran wrote that "new tools and new methods of providing a service do not change the basic task" of Maryland's libraries, which is to provide free services to the public, as part of the state's system of public education.

"When a librarian searches indexes and other sources of information to assist a patron, the librarian is carrying out a fundamental aspect of library service, regardless of whether the search involves books or computer data bases," Curran wrote in the opinion, which was requested by Stuart Yael Gordon, counsel to the General Assembly's Joint Committee on Administrative, Executive and Legislative Review.

"Similarly, the lending of videocassettes, filmstrips, recordings and other entertainment media is a library service that must be provided without charge, even though their format is not the printed word and their purpose is purely entertainment..." according to the Attorney General's opinion, which also was signed by Assistant Attorney General Jack Schwartz, Chief Counsel for Opinions and Advice, and Assistant Attorney General Christine Steiner, Counsel to the State Department of Education.

Applying the principle of supplying free information to the public is not easy, given "the myriad of services offered by modern public libraries..." Curran wrote.

"Certainly, a library may not charge a patron who wishes to borrow a copy of Othello, any more than a public school may charge tuition for an English course. But may a library exact a fee when a patron borrows a film of the play on videocassette or a recording of the Verdi opera on compact disc, or searches a computer data base to locate references to Othello in recent works?"

"In our view, these differences in form — that is, in the technological embodiments of human knowledge and art — are immaterial. All are to be 'free,' because all are an integral part of a public library's contemporary role," the Attorney General wrote.

This finding "does not mean that every library service must be free," Curran added. Fees may be charged for "ancillary conveniences" and services that are "not an integral part" of a public library's educational task, such as copying of books and other materials, typewriters and personal computers on which patrons may manage their private data.

"For example," Curran wrote, "although lending books and other materials is at the core of a library's function, providing a patron with a permanent personal copy of material is not; therefore, a library may charge for copying service."

Fees may also be imposed as a means of enforcing limits on patrons' use of otherwise free material, the Attorney General said, pointing to the traditional fine for overdue books.

Curran's opinion was prepared in response to questions raised about a proposed regulation on library services prepared by the state Board of Education and now pending before the legislative review committee. The Attorney General's opinion said the proposed regulation, which would define "free library services" as "the use of all library material and services available for reference/information and for circulation to library users regardless of format," including printed materials, films, recordings, videocassettes, computer software, online databases, and other forms of electronic storage of information, would properly implement the state law requiring free services to library users.

Florence Stanley is a gift to NBC's 'My Two Dads'

By Frank Lovece

If Florence Stanley isn't careful, she just might become the best-known TV judge since Joseph Wapner. Stanley left an indelible impression as Detective Fish's bedraggled wife Bernice in "Barney Miller" and its spinoff "Fish." She has now turned a guest-star spot on NBC's "My Two Dads" (airing Sundays) into a weekly role as Judge Margaret Wilbur, Wilbur's ruling set up the unorthodox household of two men caring for a girl who could be the child of either of them. The sitcom co-stars Paul Reiser, Greg Evigan and Staci Keenan.

Florence Stanley

"I was doing a pilot called 'Mickey and Nora,'" explains Stanley, "which was a very funny piece by Andrew Bergman, who wrote (Broadway's) 'Social Security'."

So I'm getting ready to leave Los Angeles, and I get a call from my agent to guest-star in the pilot for 'My Two Dads.' I read the script, thought it'd be fun, so I stayed an extra two weeks to shoot it. And then the strangest thing happened. The producers started saying they might want to keep the character. But I was already committed to 'Mickey and Nora.' And they said, 'Well, we'll just stand in line.' And Mickey and Nora wasn't picked up, and so here I am!"

Stanley finds that for Judge Wilbur, "I have to block out an enormous amount of vulnerability. With Judge Wilbur, you have to barrel over and bully your way through. It's not a role that allows you to use too many colors," she confesses. "But I try to sneak a few in."

And a little of Judge Wilbur may have soaked through to Stanley as well. Entering as an obviously popular new cast member doesn't cause her any trepidation. Though she praises her co-stars, she's firm in her conviction that "the play's the thing. Everyone," she adds, "has to watch out for their own egos."

Stanley's devotion to New York City, where her two children live, has, she admits, hampered a career that often requires moving to Los Angeles. "I get picky about roles," she claims. "But I sent my kids to college already. I don't care!"

'Garry Shandling' actress knows just what she wants

By Toni D'Amato

Was the actress Molly Cheek in "Chicago Story"? Has she been in any other TV series? We'd like to know something about her and what she's doing now. — P.V., Louisville, Ky.

Molly Cheek

"Chicago Story," which aired from March to August 1982, was Molly Cheek's first regular series role. She currently plays Nancy, Shandling's best friend, on the Showtime sitcom "It's Garry Shandling's Show." Cheek graduated from Connecticut College and performed in regional theaters for several years. But her first break came with a role in the 1979 TV movie "Torn Between Two Lovers."

"I say personal things to ingratiate myself with people and make them laugh," she explains. "I certainly did that in the audition for Shandling's show."

"I walked in and started telling them about the deadline I'd given my boyfriend and that if we didn't get married, he was out. I didn't think that was such a personal thing, but they all thought it was so funny because I sat down with total strangers and just started talking about it."

"I always assumed I'd do comedy," she confesses. "Part of me thought I'd grow up to be Mary Tyler Moore, but now I think I'll grow up to be Angela Lansbury because that's the kind of a career I'd like to have."

I say that Pernel Roberts of "Trapper John, M.D." is the same actor who starred on "Bonanza." Is that right? — T.C., Lewiston, Maine

Roberts starred in both series you mentioned. In the former, he played Dr. John "Trapper" McIntyre. In the latter, he portrayed Adam Cartwright.

Who played General Custer on the old TV series? — T.C., Klamath Falls, Ore.

Wayne Mauder portrayed Custer in the show of the same name. It aired for only four months in 1967. (Do you have a question about a celebrity? Write Toni D'Amato at 200 Park Ave., Room 602, New York, NY 10166. Questions cannot be answered personally, but those of general interest will be answered in future columns.)

What happened to Betsy Andropoulos (Lindsay Frost) on "As the World Turns"? She hasn't been on the show in ages. — L.G., Belmont, N.C.

Lindsay Frost

In the story line, Betsy recently returned from Chicago where she was taking a job-training course. In real life, Frost was away from "ATWT" for a few months while filming a role in the feature film "Dead Heat."

Can you tell me the name of the song that is played when Patch (Stephen Nichols) and Kayla (Mary Beth Evans) have romantic scenes on "Days of Our Lives"? — V.V., North Branford, Conn.

There are three songs that are used for Patch Kayla's scenes. They are: "If Your Heart Comes Out Tonight," composed and performed by Jay Gruska, "Songbird," performed by Kenny G, and "Love," by Teddy Pendergrass.

I heard that Armand Assante used to be on a daytime soap. Can you tell me what soap he appeared on? — P.R., Windsor, Pa.

Armand Assante

What soaps has Audrey Peters (Sarah Shavon on "Guiding Light") appeared on before? — G.S., Pearlard, Texas.

Peters is best known for her 21-year role as Vanessa Dale on "Love of Life." Before "LOL," Peters appeared on "The Verdict Is Yours," and in 1984 she was seen as Judge Elizabeth Connors on "Loving."

Michael Jackson gets odd; Frank Sinatra goes touring

By Cindy Adams

Michael Jackson's weirdities grow weirder. Anyone called to attend him receives three pages of Dos and Don'ts beforehand. Don't talk to Michael. He doesn't speak. He just stares at himself in the mirror. Don't try to keep anything that was used on Michael. If a hairdresser is summoned, the hairdresser will employ never-before-used equipment which is then thrown out. If Michael's hair is cut, the snippets are collected in a bag to be destroyed or enshrined or whatever he does with them. Don't offer food. Even if his whole family is sitting down to dinner, Michael eats alone in another room.

Michael Jackson

Look, what do you want from me? That aging Rat Pack is creeping out of mothballs. Frank Sinatra will do an act with old buddies Dean Martin and Sammy Davis. Each has his own individual dates for upcoming months. But come spring, the trio of Frankie, Sammy and Deanie will tour coast-to-coast. Frankie earned the max for his recent week in Vegas. The minimum to the customers was $58 per person plus tip, for two drinks. Sinatra did eight shows. He earned $550,000. Beat Cosby by at least 30 bucks.

Frank Sinatra

HBO People Magazine's recent gala at the Los Angeles Museum of Natural History opened the "Hollywood Legend and Reality" exhibit. On display were 500 pieces of memorabilia like Gary Cooper's hat from "High Noon" and the Rosebud sled from "Citizen Kane" (loaned by Steven Spielberg). At the party Jack Lemmon played "As Time Goes By" on the actual piano used in the film "Casablanca."

Jack Paar stars in "Jack Paar Is Alive and Well!" an NBC special that also features George Burns and Debbie Reynolds. It airs Saturday, Dec. 19.

(Audience reserves the right to make last-minute changes)

PBS

Denholm Elliott (L.) and Mathonwy Reeves star in PBS's "A Child's Christmas in Wales," based on Dylan Thomas' classic poem. It airs Wednesday, Dec. 23. (Check local listings.)

'Into the Homeland' is a chilling tale of racism

By Connie Passalacqua

The HBO movie "Into the Homeland," debuting Dec. 26, is unusual both in subject and execution. It tackles a subject usually thought too hot for television to handle — white supremacist groups — and treats the material coolly. And although the lead performances by Powers Boothe, Paul LeMat and C. Thomas Howell are excellent, its writer-executive producer Anna Hamilton Phelan should also be credited with "Into the Homeland's" effectiveness.

Powers Boothe

Phelan lyrically handled another difficult topic, a young man's elephantitis, in the film "Mask." Here, she again chooses to envelop the story in the love a parent has for a child. Like the biker mother played by Cher in "Mask," Boothe's Jackson Swallow is out of society's mainstream. Having accidentally killed a woman and child in a raid on a crack house as a detective, he leaves both his job and family and is running a surf shop when his wife Rye (Cindy Pickett) tells him their 17-year-old daughter Ember (Emily Longstreth) is missing. He traces Ember to a Wyoming outpost run by a supremacist group called the National Liberation Movement. Ember is in love with Tripp Wesley (Howell), son of the NLM's leader Derrick (LeMat).

Ember has apparently disappeared from the outpost, so in tracing her, Jackson cons his way into staying at the compound. By getting to know Tripp, he sees the inner workings of NLM. Derrick is a zealot in his anti-Semitism and his racial hate, yet his harangues to his followers are delivered with a minimum of fury. His cool delivery of his hateful message makes both him and his followers all the more frightening.

Phelan's teleplay is considerably strengthened by her rather unorthodox research. Like Jackson, she conned her way into the headquarters of a real white supremacist group in the Midwest and stayed there.

The combination of the thorough research and the fine performances enhance the movie with a chilling message: Yes, warns "Into the Homeland," these people are really out there.

Man Sentenced On Disorderly Conduct Charge

During Garrett County District Court proceedings held last week, a Tunnelton, W. Va. man received a 30-day suspended sentence after he was found guilty of disorderly conduct.

Judge Jack R. Turney then placed Junior W. Sherman, 49, on six months unsupervised probation and ordered him to pay a $50 fine.

Cpl. R.L. Sines, formerly of the Oakland City Police Department, filed the charge following an incident last January when Sherman reportedly entered Hillsman's Towne Restaurant, Oakland, in an intoxicated state and disturbed customers there. He was then escorted out of town and ordered not to return.

According to Sines, Sherman was discovered outside the restaurant approximately two hours later. He was reportedly sitting on the sidewalk and obstructing passage. He also used obscene language when approached by police the second time.

David E. Stewart, 23, Oakland, was granted a sentence modification after he was found guilty, in a previous trial, of theft and a CDS violation. He received 24 months probation before judgement for each of the charges.

He had previously been given an 18-month suspended sentence for the theft charge and a one-year suspended sentence for the CDS violation. The sentences were to be served concurrently.

Department of Natural Resources police officer, Bradley E. Stafford, filed the charges following a May 23 incident when Stewart reportedly stole a 1973 Chrysler, 17-foot boat from Bill's Marine Service, Glendale Road. His arrest led to the discovery of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, according to Stafford. Kevin Kelly represented Stewart.

A sentence modification was also granted to Virgie L. Moore, 34, Oakland, who had been found guilty of making a false statement to a peace officer. Moore was given six months probation before judgement as a result of the modification.

She originally received a 90-day suspended sentence, was placed on six months unsupervised probation and fined $100.

The charge stemmed from a February 7 incident when she reportedly told police that her husband had assaulted and battered her. She later reported that the incident did not occur. Ralph M. Burnett was the defending attorney.

Michael A. Hoffeditz, 19, McHenry, was given six months probation before judgement after he was found guilty of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. A pre-sentence investigation had been ordered. A charge of malicious destruction of property was not prosecuted. Hoffeditz was charged by Tpr. James K. Moore, Maryland State Police, following an August 13 incident when he reportedly stole a golf cart, property of the Village Green gold course, and drove it around the golf course and ski area.

Hoffeditz then abandoned the cart, valued at $1,525, and caused approximately $25 worth of damage to the cart.

A pre-sentence investigation was ordered in a case filed against Mark E. McDonald, 27, Gainesville, Va., after he was found guilty of unlawful possession of CDS and possession with intent to use of drug paraphernalia.

The charges were filed by Tfc. David W. Broadwater, Maryland State Police, following an October 10 incident when McDonald was a passenger in a vehicle along Rt. 40, east of the Pennsylvania line. The vehicle was stopped for other violations when the search was made.

Paul E. Wilhelm, Swanton, was found guilty of battery and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. He was found not guilty on a theft charge. Both charges were filed by Homer Wilt, also of Swanton, following an October 10 incident when Wilhelm reportedly stole a horse from Wilt.

Homer Wilt, 40, was charged by Ruth Gilpin, Swanton, with assault and trespassing. Wilt was found guilty of the assault charge and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered. He was found not guilty of trespassing.

The charges stemmed from the same October 10 incident.

Gilpin also charged Michael Wilt, Swanton, with trespassing as a result of the same incident. He was found guilty and a pre-sentence investigation was ordered.

A charge of battery, filed against Edward R. Bennett, 42, Deer Park, was not prosecuted because the complainant, Mary A. Bennett, also of Deer Park, did not wish to testify. The charge was filed following an October 5 incident.

The following cases were placed on the Stet Docket.

Gary G. Giotfelty, 42, Deer Park, was charged with battery and harassment by Carolyn S. Giotfelty, also of Deer Park, following an October 12 incident.

Nathan C. Rhodes, Deer Park, was charged with battery and trespassing by Jerry Shelton, Oakland, following an August 22 incident.

Pamela Rhodes, Deer Park, was charged with battery by Jerry Shelton following an incident during the first part of July.

Jerry Shelton was charged with two counts of assault, in two separate cases, by Clifford A. Palmer, Oakland, and Nathan C. Rhodes. The incidents occurred on August 22. Sharon Shelton, 27, Deer Park, was charged with assault by Nathan C. Rhodes following the same incident.

Shelton was also charged with animal cruelty following an October 4 incident after she reportedly kicked a dog belonging to the complainant, Pamela Rhodes.

Clifford A. Palmer was charged with assault and wanton trespassing following an August 22 incident. Complainant in the case was Jerry A. Shelton.

Mark Fagg, Mtn. Lake Park, was charged by Riley E. Lloyd, also of Mtn. Lake Park, with trespassing and disturbance of the peace following an October 5 incident.

Frankfort High School, exhibits "psychological map studies" based on extensive reading in psychology and philosophy.

Robin Price, Art Department head at Allegany Community College, demonstrates her skill with two intensive self-portraits.

BUYING A LOCATION!

How many times have you heard it said that the three most important considerations when buying a home are "location, location and location"? Actually the three are price, condition and location.

When purchasing a home, all three considerations are variables. If money is no object, you may select a home in an upscale neighborhood, in model home condition and pay top dollar. If spending less is important, an alternative might be to purchase an older home in need of renovation (and at a lower price), yet still located in the "right" area. If a great location is not important, you may find that you can purchase a home with more space for less money without sacrificing the condition of the home.

If you agree that location is important, do some checking around before making a purchase. For instance, how much have values of existing homes escalated in recent years? Is there a pentup demand for housing in that particular neighborhood? Is the neighborhood located close to some important attraction in the area?

By making a careful selection of location in the beginning, when you purchase your home, you may not only enjoy the amenities while you live in the home, but may very well enjoy the monetary benefits when you sell.

If you'd like to purchase a home, but feel out-of-touch with what's happening in real estate, give us a call today at 387-5303 or drop by our office at McHenry Plaza.

A SALUTE TO VOLUNTEERS was the objective of a special program held Sunday afternoon at St. Paul's United Methodist Church in Oakland by the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross. Numerous local Red Cross volunteers, working with the Red Cross Blood Donor program, the Service to Military Families, Water Safety, and/or First Aid programs, were presented various awards by the local chapter in recognition of their service. Above, Garrett County Chapter Chairman Norma Hesen, right, presents special awards to Helen Baumgartner, R.N., right, and Dorothy Rudy, R.N., center, for 35 years of volunteer service with the blood donor program. In the background is Lucy Burnette, chairman of the blood donor program for Southern Garrett County. Below, Mrs. Hesen presents a similar award to Violet Bowser for 30 years of service to the program.

"THE SINGLE MOST IMPORTANT ELEMENT in the success of the American Red Cross is the volunteer," stated Jan Kurozovich, Blood Services donor resource consultant for the Johnstown Region of the Red Cross, who was guest speaker at a special awards program in Oakland Sunday afternoon. Kurozovich noted that, out of 40 chapters in the Johnstown Region, Garrett County's ranked second in its effectiveness and success with its blood donor program. The Garrett Chapter is also one of only five chapters in the region that is managed entirely by volunteers. Also speaking at the awards ceremony was Helen T. Baumgartner, Oakland, who has been a Red Cross volunteer for 35 years. Awards were presented by Norma Hesen, Chapter chairman; Ruth Jackson, Service to Military and Families; and Barbara Speicher, Water Safety. The invocation and benediction was provided by Rev. Allen Ridenour, piano music was provided by Lillian Reckner, and leading the Pledge of Allegiance was Boy Scout Troop 31, Oakland.

efforts to achieve this goal," he said.

The Action Program lists ten policies to promote land preservation and recreation. Following each policy are listed the specific actions which the State will take to implement the policy. The report was assigned top priority to Chesapeake Bay matters. High priority was given to acquisition of land for recreation and open space, preservation of forest and agricultural land, discouragement of sprawl development, support of private recreational investments, and tourism.

Nancy Taylor, of the Department of State Planning, said, "The Action Program represents the direction the State is following in its attempt to protect Maryland's natural and recreational resources. Maryland is working to plan, implement, and program for the recreation and open space needs of all the citizens of and visitors to the State of Maryland."

The FY 1988 Maryland Recreation and Open Space Action Program was prepared in compliance with planning regulations of the U.S. National Park Service to provide the framework for the State's participation in the Land and Water Conservation Fund grants-in-aid program. As a result of the program, the State has received funds to buy land for State Parks, Natural Resource Management Areas, and Wildlife Management Areas. In FY '87, the Department of

A SPECIAL AWARD in the form of a Stetson hat was presented by the Garrett County Chapter of the American Red Cross to Arleigh Hauser at a special awards ceremony Sunday afternoon. Hauser, a resident of Deer Park, has not only donated over 20 gallons of blood to the Red Cross, but remains an active volunteer with the local blood donor program. Also pictured are Norma Hesen, left, chapter chairman, and Lucy Burnette, chairman of the local blood donor program.

Natural Resources from the grants-in-aid program, purchased 481 acres of land for the Patuxent Natural Resource Management Area in Prince George's and Calvert Counties.

Copies of the report are available from the Department of State Planning, 301 West Preston Street, Baltimore, Maryland, 21201. When making requests, persons should ask for publication 87-16 and make check payable to the Department of State Planning for $5.00.

Recreation, Land Preservation Are Planning Priorities

Protection of the Chesapeake Bay, acquisition of land for recreation and open space, preservation of forest and agricultural land, and discouragement of urban sprawl are identified as high priority State policies in the FY 1988 Maryland Recreation and Open Space Action Program. The report, prepared by the Comprehensive Policy Planning Division of the Department of State Planning, lists specific State actions that will be carried out to implement the policies of the State Recreation and Open Space Plan.

Governor William Donald Schaefer voiced his support of the goals of the Action Program. "I commit Maryland to providing a quality environment for its citizens, as well as meeting their recreation and open space needs. The actions presented in this Action Program indicate Maryland's

Kenneth Halsey Files For Seat In U.S. Congress

Kenneth W. Halsey, of Deep Creek Lake, has filed as a Republican for the U.S. House of Representatives from the Sixth Congressional District.

Halsey, 61, has a varied military and business background. He served in World War II with the U.S. Navy and is experienced in the insurance and guarantee fields.

An advocate of returning prayer to public schools, Halsey also defends a 10 percent defense spending cut; a 10 percent salary cut for all Senate, House and executive officials; a minimum 20-year prison sentence for convicted drug pushers; increased exports to China, Korea and Japan; disbanding the Central Intelligence Agency and consolidating all covert operations under the FBI; a 25 percent or more consolidation of all governmental departments; cutting the workload of teaching professors; allowing attorneys a maximum amount of time to settle estates; changes in Medicare laws regarding doctors' attitudes and costs; mandatory cuts in insurance premiums; providing that farmers, not banks and other businessmen, should own farms in government programs; putting chiropractors on an equal basis with medical doctors for Social Security disabilities; making it easier for new businesses to start up by cutting out red tape; and accepting input from the law profession on out-dated or unsound laws.

Halsey is a Navy graduate of the University of Wisconsin. He served aboard landing craft with the Marines at Peleliu in the Pacific Theater under General Howling "Mad Dog" Smith.

He later became general manager of Personal Indemnity of Milwaukee, Wis.; was Wisconsin state supervisor and general agent for Puritan Life Insurance Company of Rhode Island; general agent for Guarantee Trust, and general manager for Reliable Life and Casualty Company of Madison, Wis.

Halsey and his wife, the former Susan Rae Oakes, have 10 children and live in McHenry. Persons interested in working with the "Halsey for Congress" campaign should contact Halsey at 387-9002, or write Rt. 1, Box 14-3, McHenry, MD 21541.

Out-Of-Court Settlement Noted In Injury Case

A case arising from two motor vehicle collisions and which was scheduled for a jury trial on December 16 was settled out of court. According to the claimant's attorney, Paul C. Sullivan, the claims of Tammy Sue Hottle, Elk Garden, W. Va., were settled December 11 with Dairyland Insurance Company and Federal Kemper Insurance Company for undisclosed amounts.

According to documents filed in the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Tammy Sue Hottle was a passenger in an automobile operated by James Paul Monda, Oak Harbor, Wash. Monda was traveling west on U.S. Route 50 between Burlington and Elk Garden, at an excessive speed, traveled left of center, failed to negotiate a right hand curve, and ran off the north berm and struck an embankment.

Ms. Hottle was transported to Potomac Valley Hospital by the Keyser Rescue Squad, having suffered a sprained right ankle and contusions to the right eye and legs.

In a second collision, Ms. Hottle was a passenger in an automobile operated by Linda Lorraine Elliott, Kitzmiller, Elliott was traveling south on West Virginia State Route 42 and failed to negotiate a right hand curve. The vehicle crossed to the opposite side of the road and onto the berm. Elliott then attempted to correct the vehicle causing the vehicle to travel sideways, skid, overturn and rest on its top on a pine tree. Ms. Elliott totaled the 1982 Subaru GL which was owned by Isabella V. Elliott, also of Kitzmiller. The Elliotts were represented by Charles Smith of Keyser.

Ms. Hottle was transported to Potomac Valley Hospital by the Elk District Rescue Squad, having suffered injury to her right ankle, fracture of right lower leg, concussion, contusions about the body and injuries to her teeth.

As the case was settled favorably to the claimant, the defendants were required to pay the costs of the proceedings, in addition to the settlement amount to Ms. Hottle.

Governor's Staff Meets With MLP Mayor, Council

A member of Governor William Donald Schaefer's staff met last Thursday with the Mayor and Town Council of Mtn. Lake Park.

Vonzell Ward from the Office of the Secretary of State met with Mayor Russell B. Alexander and council members to offer his assistance on projects and concerns affecting Mtn. Lake Park.

Ward stated that his attendance was a directive from Governor Schaefer to offer support from his office in assisting local governments.

Mayor Alexander expressed his appreciation to Ward and the Governor for their interest in local government and their willingness to assist local officials.

The mayor remarked that this was the first visit from the Governor's staff to Mtn. Lake Park during his 12 years as an elected official. Additionally, he commented that this type of assistance to local governments was part of the Governor's 1986 campaign program.

Alexander said he was particularly pleased that the state government realized that Mtn. Lake Park was still part of the state and that he was looking forward to a productive relationship with the Governor and his staff.

One of the problems discussed with Ward was the cable television service and the effect federal deregulation has had on municipalities and their ability to deal with cable companies in terms of rates and quality of service.

Pet Pointers

Christmas and Chanukah are cheerful seasons for humans, but some of the decorations and gifts enjoyed by people can be harmful or even fatal to pets, according to the Maryland Veterinary Medical Association. The association offers the following reminders to help your pets enjoy a safe and healthy holiday season:

1. Christmas Tree — If you have a large dog or a tree climbing cat, use a strong cord or rope to secure the top of the tree to a wall. Cats, dogs and other animals are often treated by veterinarians for head injuries caused by being hit by Christmas trees falling from their stands.
2. Ornaments — Breakable tree ornaments, angel hair, tinsel icicles and ribbons should be kept out of your pet's reach. When such items are ingested, they can create holes in the intestine which may require surgery.
3. Pine Needles — Ingested pine needles can puncture your pet's intestines. Clean around your holiday trees and wreaths often.
4. Candy — Like you, pets can suffer stomachaches and cavities from over indulgence in holiday candy. Too much chocolate contains theobromine, a caffeine chemical substance, that causes poisoning.
5. Plants — Juices from holiday plants, including poinsettias, is toxic enough to cause serious harm or even death to your pets. Vomiting, crying, frothing, depression and muscle twitching are symptoms of plant poisoning.
6. Don't share a "little" alcoholic drink with your pet. It may seem like the fun thing to do, but the effects can be harmful, even fatal. A 30-pound dog, for example, would be considered

"under the influence" with just two tablespoons of whiskey. Two teaspoons would make a five-pound cat comatose and tablespoon could kill the animal.

AID ASSISTANCE

There are times when a hearing loss is so great that even the most powerful hearing aid does not make speech sounds distinguishable for the wearer. In such cases, a hearing aid may still be advisable for two reasons. First, even though the wearer cannot understand speech with his aid, the device may make him aware of noises that could signal danger for him. For example, he might hear a car horn. Second, just the vibrations that the sound waves cause in his hearing aid may alert the deaf person to the fact that someone is talking. At that point, he can turn his attention to ward the speaker and visually read his lips.

Hearing instruments are an important addition to the lifestyle of most anyone who experiences hearing impairment. At ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES we can help you in the selection and fitting of such a device. For the sounds that will make the difference you seek, come to ALLEGANY HEARING & SPEECH ASSOCIATES.

A hearing aid is not the last word in overcoming hearing loss. Practice, therapy and counseling help.

AURORA-EGILON NEWS

Christmas Treat

The Mountain Lions Club is sponsoring its annual treat for children 12 and under, from Union District on December 19 at the Aurora School. Youngsters are invited to come between 6 and 8 p.m. for a visit with Santa.

Christmas Programs

Most of the area churches will be having Christmas programs on Sunday, December 20. At the Maple Spring Church of the Brethren, "Hark, the Herald Angel," a short cantata, will include members of the children's classes of the Sunday School for a presentation at 7:30 p.m. Everyone is invited to attend.

Aurora PTO Views Drama

At the December 1 meeting of the Aurora PTO, "Pocahontas, the Tomboy Princess" was presented by the Drama Club which had previously developed this presentation for the school. The Drama Club is directed by Carolyn Wotring and composed of 7th and 8th graders.

John Lofink, president, called the meeting to order and heard reports of committees. Supplies for the Phys. Ed. department have been ordered. Year books may still be ordered. An appraisal of what may be done to improve the grounds will be done, as reported by Mr. Mathias, principal.

The decision was made to appoint all Halloween committees at the April PTO meeting so that they may be working on repair and ordering of supplies during the summer or early fall.

There will be no meetings of the PTO during January and February.

United Methodist Women

The December 9 meeting of the Aurora United Methodist Women was held at the Memorial Building with 12 members and three guests present. President Rennie Conrad opened the meeting and presented the program, "Celebrating Christmas." Using carols and scripture, she then led the group into a discussion of ways of celebrating Christmas by using family profiles of various traditions and observances.

Doris Adams, secretary, read letters from the group's Child of Compassion and thank-yous from the House of the Carpenter and Mr. and Mrs. Charles McCrum for recent donations. The group decided to buy poinsettias for those members of the church who are over 80 years of age and these were presented on Sunday, December 13. Containers for the shut-in food gifts will be provided by Elma Hardesty.

A gift exchange and refreshments concluded the meeting. The next meeting will be January 6 at 1 p.m. in the church basement.

Those Who Are Ill

James Knotts of Mt. Top is a patient in West Virginia University Medical Center where he was admitted last Thursday for treatment of a lung problem.

Dave C. Hardesty of Mt. Top was admitted Sunday to Garrett County Memorial Hospital where he remains a patient.

Mrs. Mary Hauser returned Saturday from Cumberland Memorial Hospital where she had undergone hip surgery, to the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Gerald and Almada Lipscomb, at Horse Shoe Run.

Of Personal Interest

Galen and Lorraine Fike of Eglon, were Saturday and Sunday visitors with their son and daughter-in-law, Melvin and Lisa Fike, at Farmington, Pa., where on Sunday the younger Fikes hosted an open house of the newly remodeled parsonage which they occupy as pastors of the Church of the Brethren there.

Merlin and Martha Reish and their children, Micah, Matthew and Marilyn of Harrisonburg, Va., were Saturday overnight and Sunday guests of her parents, Ellis and Marie Teets, at Silver Lake.

Pearl and Charles Valentine of Ridgeley, W. Va., were Thursday visitors with her sister, Beulah Hardesty, husband, Dave and daughter, Kathy, on Mt. Top. On Sunday evening, the LCW of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Aurora, held a Christmas dinner at the church and shared it with Mrs. Hardesty and Kathy.

Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Armand Heckert and Barbara at Eglon were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strawser, their daughter, Brenda Harvey, and son of Rowlesburg and Junior and Alta Slaubaugh of Horse Shoe Run.

Steve Parsons of Aurora and Tony Davis, both employees of Cecil Jackson Equipment, are in Syracuse, N.Y., this week attending a lawn and garden tractor equipment repair seminar.

In the recent tour to the Wheeling area and Oglebay Park taken by the Preston County Extension Homemakers, those from this area who made the December 3 trip were Betty Flint, Wilda Wilt and Opal Myers of Aurora and Grace Harsh of Eglon. Lights at Oglebay for the Christmas season were one of the highlights of the trip.

Word was received this week that Ray Judy, a resident of a Lancaster, Pa. retirement home and former resident of Eglon, recently broke a bone in his foot and is in a cast.

MSTA President Visiting County Schools Today

Beverly L. Corelle, president of the Maryland State Teachers' Association, made her second visit to Garrett County this month when she visited schools today, December 17, noted Cheryl Henderson, president of the Garrett County Teachers' Association.

Ms. Corelle held a press conference and spoke to teachers leaders on December 1 about her work on the Governor's Commission on Teacher Salaries and Incentives.

"Today's visit is to give Ms. Corelle an opportunity to see some of our school programs and chat briefly with some of our teachers," commented Ms. Henderson.

The MSTA President will also address the Association leaders and invited guests at the regular monthly meeting of the GCTA Governing Board at 4:30 p.m. at the Will O' the Wisp, Deep Creek Lake.

Local Artist's Works Featured By "Sun" Critic

The works of local artist Donald Cook were the subject of art critic John Dorsey in a recent issue of the "Baltimore Sun." In the article, Dorsey described Cook's paintings, now included in an exhibit entitled "Inside Out" at School 33 Arts Center in Baltimore, as "resembling slightly soft, romantic photographs."

Dorsey goes on to describe Cook's watercolors and acrylics, which will be on display through December 31, as "possessing a very real sense of light and of silence, as well as good composition and depth." They also possess something of the sense of deserted rooms — rooms that still retain the aura of the people who once inhabited them."

Also on exhibit at School 33 are the "aqueous media" works of Erik Sandgren. Dorsey says, "Sandgren and Cook are serious, dedicated artists definitely worth following."

Although this is Cook's first major exhibit in the Baltimore area, over the last several years previous exhibitions have included one-person exhibitions at The Stephanie Ann Roper Gallery, Frostburg State University; The Saint John's College Gallery, St. John's College at Annapolis; The Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, Hagerstown; and The Searwater Gallery in the Terrace, Annapolis.

His work has been a part of group exhibits at The Baltimore Museum of Art; The Maryland Art Place, Baltimore; and The Annual Cumberland Valley Artists Exhibition at The Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, Hagerstown, where he was the 1987 winner of the Lesley Gardner Landscape Award.

Cook is on the staff of the art department of Frostburg State University, serving as art consultant for the gallery there as well as being in charge of writing a prospectus to shape the future of the University's art department and is teaching two courses at FSU. He is a graduate of The University of Maryland, College Park, and currently resides in Oakland with his wife, artist Linda Reeves-Cook.

Sarbanes Files For Re-Election

Stating that he is renewing his continuing commitment to bring integrity, intelligence and independence of judgment to my responsibilities as Senator from Maryland, Senator Sarbanes has announced his candidacy for a third term in the United States Senate.

Joined by his wife, Christine; mother, Matina; Governor William Donald Schaefer and Attorney General Joseph Curran, Sarbanes officially filed the papers last week that make him a candidate in the March 8 primary election.

Sarbanes, 54, is a native of Salisbury, where his mother, Matina, still lives. After graduation from the Wicomico County public schools, he won a scholarship to Princeton University where he graduated magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa. Selected as a Rhodes Scholar, he received a first class honors degree from Oxford University in 1957, and entered Harvard Law School as a scholarship student. After receiving his degree cum laude in 1960, Sarbanes clerked for Fourth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals Judge Morris A. Soper, practiced law in Baltimore and served as administrative assistant at President Kennedy's Council of Economic Advisors and as Executive Director of the Baltimore City Charter Revision Commission.

Elected to the Maryland House of Delegates in 1966, Sarbanes was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1970. He served on the House Judiciary Committee, where he was selected to present the first article of impeachment of former President Richard M. Nixon, and the Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee. In 1976 he was elected to the U.S. Senate and was re-elected in 1982. He serves as chairman of the Joint Economic Committee and as a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs Committee. This year he was appointed to serve on the Senate Select Committee on Secret Military Assistance to Iran and Nicaraguan Opposition (Iran-Contra Committee).

Senator and Mrs. Sarbanes live in Baltimore and have three children, John Peter, Michael and Janet, all of whom are attending college.

Garrett YF'er Is Re-Elected State Secretary

Criss Kepple, of Oakland, was re-elected to serve as state secretary of the Young Farmers Committee of the Maryland Farm Bureau. This will be Kepple's second term as state secretary. The election was held during the Maryland Farm Bureau Convention last week in Ocean City.

Also reelected to a second term was Charles Coles, chairman, and Jeff Griffith, vice chairman. Directors elected to serve a two-year term were: Debbie Shirley, district two; Lowell Haines, district four; and Kevin Anderson, district six.

Young Farmers' day at the convention was Monday, December 7. That evening, Jeff England defeated two other Young Farmers to win the discussion meet. England is from New Market in Frederick County, where he and his uncle operate a 140-head dairy farm. The question asked in the final round of the discussion meet involved ways to improve soil conservation practice and protect ground water reserves. The other two competitors were Lowell Haines, Cecil County, and Kevin Anderson, Somerset County.

Gilbert and Catherine Bowling Jr. were named Young Farmers of the Year. The Charlotte Hall couple raise 130 acres of tobacco, soybeans and corn in partnership with his father. The Bowlings are also part owners of the Hughesville Tobacco Warehouse. The warehouse is 20,000 square feet and can hold up to half a million pounds of tobacco. Bowling is vice president of Charles County Farm Bureau, and holds a bachelor's degree in agronomy from the University of Maryland. The couple has two sons.

Other Young Farmers from Garrett County attending the convention were Garrett Young Farmer Chairman Paul Miller, his wife, Carla, and Garrett County Farm Queen Lori Dodge.

Maryland Farm Bureau Holds 72nd Annual Convention In Ocean City

Garrett County Farm Bureau was well represented when Maryland's farmers met in Ocean City December 6 through 9 for the annual meeting of the state's largest general farm organization. In addition to distinguished speakers, including Senator Barbara Mikulski, delegates from each of the state's 23 counties voted on policies for 1988 (see separate story).

Mikulski shared her experiences as a freshman senator, and a few of the bills she has endorsed. She emphasized her efforts to pass legislation that would require welfare recipients to enroll in job training, and accept employment. "Welfare should be a temporary solution, not a way of life," Mikulski said to a round of applause. Her address marked the first time in more than 20 years that a U.S. senator had addressed the group.

Delegates debated policies as far-ranging as national farm policy, the Chesapeake Bay clean-up, and all-terrain vehicles. National resolutions regarding farm program policy and welfare reform will be sent to the American Farm Bureau for consideration at its annual meeting in January.

Joining the list of distinguished speakers at the convention was Dean Kleckner, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF). Kleckner told Maryland's farmers that animal rights legislation in other states could open the door to severe restrictions here. "You need to know more about this proposal, because if it passes in Massachusetts it will arrive here overnight," said Iowa farmer Kleckner.

He spoke to 500 farmers at the 72 annual Farm Bureau meetings.

Agriculture's outlook nationwide is improving, according to Kleckner. He cited a rise in farm equipment sales, higher land prices in the mid-west and an increase of $2.6 billion in net cash farm income.

But restrictive legislation could change that picture. The Massachusetts animal rights legislation calls for a two-stage plan. The first stage would only include such measures as requiring the use of anesthetics for certain routine procedures. But the second stage expands to include considerations of weather and housing, feeding, transportation, etc. Kleckner also mentioned bills pending in Sweden which could make animal agriculture almost impossible.

He does not think Congress will pass trade legislation this year. "We have worried that Congress would pass a highly protectionist bill — one that could have a profound, negative, impact on the U.S. economy. American agriculture would suffer both from the retaliation sure to come, and, from the inability of the affected countries to pay for agricultural imports from the U.S."

"Farm Bureau's total commitment is to a sound, profitable farm future. That kind of future depends on such frail things as public and political perception. It depends on a reasonable state and federal attitude toward priority use of water, and production chemicals like fertilizer, pesticides, herbicides and insecticides. The alternative is fewer farmers, higher-priced food and the public's right to enjoy wormy apples and sweet corn," the farm leader said.

Current Farm Bureau policies call for substantial cuts in federal spending. The organization believes a balanced budget should not be achieved by new or higher taxes. Kleckner said Farm Bureau will oppose the current budget proposal, and push for an overall freeze on federal spending instead.

"Federal spending should stay frozen at fiscal 1987 budget levels until program reforms are made to get the budget under control. A freeze on federal spending would raise far more than all the fiscal maneuvering and political slight-of-hand ever could," he said.

Officers for 1988 were elected at the convention. Robert Wilson, Queen Anne's County, will serve his second two-year term as president. Edward Allen was elected to another one-year term as first vice president. The Calvert County farmer was first elected to that office in 1985. Talbot County's Wade Dudrow will serve as vice president for the second year. Charles Coles Jr., from Howard County, was elected to his first term as vice president.

Anne Arundel County was named best Farm Bureau county at the Tuesday night awards banquet.

Maryland Farm Bureau is the largest general farm organization in the state, with more than 14,000 families. Members represent every geographic region, and every commodity produced in the state.

Farm Bureau Training Session Is Well Attended

Approximately 50 Farm Bureau committee members and directors from Garrett County and Preston County, W.Va., gathered for a training session and an evening of fellowship Monday at the Chimney Corner Restaurant in Red House. Hosts for the evening were Bill Aiken, West Virginia Farm Bureau fieldman; and Norman Astle, Western Maryland Farm Bureau fieldman.

Following dinner, the training video, "Formula For Success," narrated by Bill Eastman, was shown and discussed. The video stressed that county Farm Bureaus are important because they are the basic units, "grass roots," of the organization. They are where the members live and deal; where members solve the problems that affect them. As Astle explained, "A farmer cannot join Farm Bureau at the state or national level, only at the county level. There are 23 members of the Maryland Farm Bureau (the number of Maryland counties) and 51 members of the American Farm Bureau Federation (all 50 states and Puerto Rico)."

In the video Eastman noted the actions that make successful county organizations. Those actions are goals and objectives, member participation in committees, a yearly calendar to work from, and enthusiasm. The most important accomplishments noted in the video were in the areas of membership, policy development and objectives (what needs done to meet goals). The "formula for success" given by Eastman was "K plus T times A equals S." "K," he said, stands for knowledge of Farm Bureau; "T" is for the tools used by the organization, committees, calendar, Farm Bureau staff; "A" is for attitude, inspiration, optimism, conviction, and courage; and "S" stands for success. Adding the necessary knowledge and the needed tools and multiplying them by an upbeat attitude will equal success every time, was the video's message.

Aiken then presented a motivational video by Earl Nightingale titled "The Strangest Secret." In the video, Nightingale gave his definition of success as "the progressful realization of a worthy ideal," and related that a successful person knows what he/she is working toward and where he/she is going.

Unfortunately, Nightingale said, most people use only about five percent of their potential abilities, and get caught playing the "world's most unrewarding game" — follow the follower. "Because of this," he said, only one out of 20 people become successful.

Nightingale listed seven items for successful living, which were: having a goal; attitude (considered by the speaker to be the most important word in any language in the world); being able to think; cause and effect; law of laws, or "as you sow, so shall you reap;" truth; research and development; and "the strangest secret," he explained, is becoming what we think about most. "A person will become the person he thinks about being most of the time."

Aiken announced that copies of the Nightingale video are available for loan to church, 4-H or other organizations by calling him at 826-8427.

The evening ended with the drawing of door prizes. A gift of Safemark oil and hand cleaner was won by David Stemple of Preston County, and a beautiful Florida fern was won by Bernice Kepple, of Garrett County.

Editor's Note: The enormous fern filled my whole car, but I got it home OK. The cold temperatures didn't seem to hurt it either. It dwarfs the other plants in my home and is just beautiful. I feel like Christmas came early.

Commercial Livestock Slaughter Increases

Maryland's and Delaware's combined commercial red meat production, based on decreased weight during October totaled 6.8 million pounds, up 32 percent from the October 1986 total of 5.2 million pounds. Changes in total liveweight produced during October, compared to October 1986, were cattle down eight percent, calves down 39 percent, hogs up 351 percent, and sheep up one percent.

United States commercial red meat production based on decreased weight in October totaled 3.53 billion pounds, up one percent from October 1986. January-October red meat production, at 31.9 billion pounds was down three percent from last year. The percentage changes from 1986 accumulated production by individual components were: beef, down four; veal, down 18; pork, nearly the same; lamb and mutton, down eight. Commercial red meat production includes slaughter in federally inspected and other plants, but excludes animals slaughtered on farms.

In 1923 President Calvin Coolidge established the National Christmas Tree Lighting Ceremony on the White House lawn that has since become part of the annual holiday observance.

Senators Request GAO Study On Federal Crop Insurance Programs

Senator Paul S. Sarbanes, D-Md., has asked the General Accounting Office (GAO) to study the federal government's assistance to farmers who have suffered economic hardships due to extreme weather conditions. The analysis would focus on Delaware and Maryland but also cover states in other regions, specifically Oklahoma and North Dakota. Senator Sarbanes has been joined by Senators Joseph R. Biden, D-Del.; David L. Boren, D-Okla.; Quentin N. Nurdick, D-N.D.; and George J. Mitchell, D-Maine.

"Unfortunately, while the USDA can provide farmers with emergency disaster loans, many farmers are finding that they cannot qualify for these loans or other meaningful assistance. This is a situation that concerns us not only for this year, but for farmers across the nation who may find themselves in a similar situation in future years," the five senators stated in a letter to GAO Comptroller General Charles A. Bowsher.

"We are disturbed that many farmers in Delaware and Maryland have found they need, but cannot get, emergency disaster loans from USDA's Farmers Home Administration because they do not have crop insurance. The Food Security Act of 1985 established a requirement of crop insurance as a criteria for emergency disaster assistance beginning in 1987. However, our initial experience with this requirement has raised several questions that we would like to have answered," said Sarbanes.

The senator and his colleagues are specifically asking GAO for an analysis of several aspects of the crop insurance program, including farmer participation rates as affected by differences in programs, geography, and crops, and the impact of the farm economy decline. They also want GAO to study the impacts that crop insurance cost has on the finances of family-sized farms in different regions of the country and among different crops.

"In having met over the years with farmers from across the state of Maryland, there is a constant theme in their discussions with me — a call for fairness," Senator Sarbanes said. "Maryland's farmers do not want a free ride; all they want is to be given the opportunity to earn a living and to be given fair treatment by the federal government. We have a very important farm economy in Maryland and I have long held the view that you cannot have real prosperity in this country if the farm sector itself is not sharing in that prosperity."

Senator Sarbanes added "the family farmer is the backbone of America's agricultural industry. We must ensure that he is treated fairly, and we must make sure that agriculture remains a vital part of American society."

Senator Boren chairs the Agricultural Credit Subcommittee and serves on the Small Business Subcommittee on Rural Economy and Family Farming. Senator Burdick chairs the Agriculture, Rural Development Appropriations Subcommittee.

Delegates From Across Maryland Vote On State Farm Bureau Policy

Maryland Farm Bureau policy debated and voted on at last week's convention in Ocean City was as far-ranging as national farm policy, the Chesapeake Bay clean up, and all-terrain vehicles. All state recommendations, upon adoption, became state policy, while national resolutions regarding farm program policy and welfare reform will be sent to the American Farm Bureau Federation (AFBF) for consideration at its annual meeting in January.

Farm Bureau is the voice of agriculture in public affairs, and is local, statewide, national and international in its scope and influence. It is non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-secret in character. It is organized to provide a means by which farmers can work together toward the goals upon which they agree.

Farm families discuss issues, talk them over in the community and make recommendations. County resolutions derived from these community recommendations were adopted as policies on county issues and as recommendations on state and national issues to the Maryland Farm Bureau. Many recommendations remain policy year after year with occasional changes voted on and passed. The following are new policies or important changes in policy made official for 1988 by voting delegates during the 72nd annual convention of the Maryland Farm Bureau, December 9.

Preservation of Ag Land

This policy supports the concept of agricultural land preservation and urges all landowners to acquire themselves with the programs available and the benefits of those programs. FB delegates urged state and county governments to continue to support the voluntary preservation of agricultural land with substantial increases in funding and suggested that ag zoning be reviewed in counties and policies be enacted to protect the rights of landowners and promote agriculture.

Other suggestions made were that the Maryland General Assembly develop a permanent annual allotment for the program, that legislation be enacted that will permit participants in the program to serve on the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Foundation Board, and to urge the state to use local appraisers who have completed a course on ag land appraisal approved by the Maryland Agricultural Land Preservation Board.

Landowners who successfully defend their cases before the County Assessment Appeals Board for farmland easement value may find that funds are no longer available to purchase the easement, and that they must submit a new application for the sale of their easements the following year. Farm Bureau feels that such landowners should be given a priority and be entitled to immediate compensation when funds become available without having to submit another application.

The delegates supported the present law which allows an owner to convey to his children a lot of one acre or less, at a maximum density of not more than one acre for each 20 acres or portion thereof, not to exceed 10 lots of one acre or less on any farm parcel.

As another step toward preservation of agricultural land, Farm Bureau delegates propose legislation to create an Agricultural Land Condemnation Board, chaired by the State Secretary of Agriculture. Before anyone could condemn any productive agricultural lands for any purpose, the involved body would have to appeal to the board. The board must then determine whether there would be no reasonable or prudent alternative.

Critical Areas Commission

To a standing policy urging the Chesapeake Bay Critical Areas Commission to recognize the importance of agriculture and the impact of land use limitations on the landowner when developing criteria for use of the land within the critical areas, the following new wording was added: "We further urge that the Critical Areas Commission allow local jurisdictions more flexibility in developing their own criteria."

Additional new wording in the lengthy recommendation stated: "We support legislation that would require the state to compensate, at the fair market value, Maryland property owners who are monetarily affected by the Critical Area legislation and/or the Endangered Species Act."

All-Terrain Vehicles

A standing recommendation that legislation be enacted that would require the assignment and prominent display of an identifying number on all ATVs and dirt bikes, and that safety seminars be held in conjunction with county fairs or at special meetings for the general public, was strengthened by a recommendation that the all-terrain vehicle safety program presently offered in Carroll County by the Maryland State Police be offered to all counties in Maryland. Furthermore, it was recommended that parents be held responsible for damage caused by ATVs ridden by their juvenile offspring and that landowners not be held responsible for injury or damage occurring on private land.

Agriculture Education

Stating that there are hundreds of job opportunities for professionals in agriculture-related fields, but that industry recruiters report that the supply of qualified applicants from Maryland is almost nil, Farm Bureau supports efforts to improve training for agricultural careers in Maryland public schools, state colleges, and the University of Maryland.

Therefore, the delegates commended the Maryland Commission on Education in Agriculture for its study and report concerning the enhancement of agricultural education in the state. They also supported the Commission's recommendations to improve and enhance education in agricultural programs throughout Maryland, especially to improve agricultural curriculum in grades K-12 and the recommendations for new and upgraded facilities.

Animal Health Laboratory Facilities
Farm Bureau delegates applauded the construction of the new building at College Park for veterinary medicine teaching and research and for the MDA Central Diagnostic Laboratory, and wholeheartedly supported the continuing effort to fully equip and staff these facilities so that they may effectively carry out their intended functions.

Maryland Farm Bureau to work with the University of Maryland, Maryland Department of Agriculture and chemical companies to step up efforts to develop new materials to reduce and eliminate these noxious weeds.

Set-Aside Land

Farm Bureau delegates recommended that the ASCS establish a procedure for set-aside acreage that would allow a landowner or operator the option of either planting a cover crop and mowing once a year, or mowing twice a year. However, landowners should be required to control noxious weeds on set-aside acreage, the delegates said.

Dairy Inspection

Farm Bureau delegates voted to support efforts to establish reasonable sanitary regulations for all Grade B dairies in the state of Maryland.

Aquaculture

Under the above topic, new Farm Bureau policy says: "We recognize that the enforcement of natural resource laws is difficult at best, but we do not believe the burden of an across-the-board ban on the culturing or selling of a species should be placed upon either the producer or the consumer. With the continuing need for diversification of farm products we recommend the implementation of laws which will separate the raising of aquaculture products from those laws which are designed to protect, through conservation, wildlife in the Chesapeake Bay."

"We recommend that responsibility for aquaculture be placed under the Department of Agriculture."

"We support legislation for aquaculture that would provide for free interstate market access, the removal of size limitations, stringent penalties for theft, and the elimination of licensing requirements. We support the formation of a legislative advisory committee composed of aquaculturists."

Safety

As Farm Bureau is committed to promoting the health, safety and welfare of farmers, the delegates voted to support educational programs for farmers throughout the state explaining the proper use and importance of a "Slow Moving Vehicle Emblem." Furthermore, they recommended that a mass-media campaign be developed to reach the non-farm audience with information to aid in recognizing the "Slow Moving Vehicle Emblem" when it is seen on the highways and roads in an effort to improve safety conditions.

LEAST-COST RATIOS — MORE THAN RATION BALANCING

No surprise to anyone, feed costs can range from 40% to 60%.

of the monthly milk check. Rising soybean meal prices and the impending reduction in price supports enhance the attractiveness of least-cost ratios in an attempt to control the portion of the milk allocated to feed. However, the economic benefits of least-cost ratios go beyond just saving feed dollars. Profitability of a dairy operation can be enhanced via least-cost ration balancing.

1. Reduction in feed costs, maintaining or even increasing milk production.

2. Used to balance rations, even if feed costs increase, production can increase to offset increased feed costs.

3. Determining the profitability of producing adequate supplies of high quality forage versus purchasing necessary feed.

4. Determining the profitability of selling lesser quality feed, particularly hay, to purchase higher quality feed for high producing, early lactation cows.

Producers using properly formulated least-cost ratios have noted increased profitability through increased milk, increased fat and/or a reduction in feed, but how many producers or those providing the ration, have extended the use of the program to look at the profitability of the cropping enterprise by itself and as part of the dairy enterprise. Can a dairy producer really afford average yields of average quality forage? On some winter day if you would like to take an economic look at your cropping enterprise, give me a call.

CONSUMERS MOVING BACK TO BEEF

Check-off dollars are helping bring consumers back to beef, according to preliminary results of a study conducted by Walter Research, Inc. The Walker study, which tracks the impact of beef commodity advertising on consumer awareness and attitudes found:

•The number of Americans who believe beef fits their lifestyles increased from 59% in January to 64% in June.

•Those who believe beef is an important part of a well-balanced diet increased from 51% to 56% in the same period.

•Those who say beef can fit into a reduced-fat diet increased from 32% to 38%.

•The percentage of consumers who claim they are eating more beef increased from 8% to 13%.

•The percentage of consumers who said they are eating less beef decreased from 25% to 20%.

The Walker results show that only in five months of advertising, awareness of the advertising campaign among light beef users has increased significantly. In January, the percentage jumped to 59%, an increase of 16%. The Walker Research study indicates that the beef industry's marketing program, funded through check-off dollars, is working to bring Americans back to beef.

ADJUSTING TO BEING ALONE — LOSSES

In a larger perspective in all of nature, loss is an essential element of creation. There are obvious losses as through the death of a loved one or divorce. Not so obvious are losses of jobs, money, of a cherished goal; moving includes losses; losses related to age and being in limbo may entail a variety of mini losses that tend to add up over time.

Christmas can be a time for joy and happiness, but for too many people it is a time when past losses are revisiting. Especially persons living alone feel the summary of all they once had and lost keenly.

When you recognize losses in advance it helps to talk about your feelings. Discuss them with those who are leaving or those you leave behind, or just talk to someone who is not involved. Let your needs be known, emotional injury is as real and painful as physical injury.

Loss can make you quiet or talkative, it can make you restless and hyper or slow of movement and forgetful. With not-so-obvious losses it is important to recognize when you feel and act different and then to identify where the problem is.

Three recognizable stages of recovery from losses are shock/denial, anger/depression and understanding/acceptance. Be aware of these phases and realize that each is necessary and natural. People only differ in the intensity of their feelings and the time it takes to recover, possibly years for a major loss, only days to minutes for a minor loss.

If you know the holidays will be a vulnerable time for depression, prepare now to handle your emotions that it will result

Miss Fawcett Becomes Bride Of Mr. Doerr In October Ceremony

The Church of the Good Shepherd United Methodist, Grafton, W. Va., was the setting for the October 24 marriage of Elizabeth E. Fawcett and Anthony R. Doerr. The Rev. David Erenrich performed the afternoon double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Fawcett, Grafton. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Doerr, Accident.

Music for the ceremony was provided by organist Kenneth Godwin Jr. and soloists Jody Boyles of Grafton and David Martin of Oakland.

Escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a traditional full-length white gown of LeLute taffeta over taffeta. The double melon sleeves were softly puffed and worn slightly off shoulder. The bodice with its square neckline was trimmed with Wedgwood lace and pearls, coming to the waist in a basque effect. Gathered at the waistline were tiny pleats from which the skirt fell into full folds, ending in a chapel train.

The Ascot head-dress was brimmed with slight curving at the sides and trimmed with a Venise lace border. The satin crown was trimmed with a medallion border of Venise lace and pearls. The full pouf in the back held the circular fingertip veil.

Her colonial bouquet included miniature white carnations, spider mums, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Maid of honor was Andrea Rogers of Alburt, Ala. Bridesmaids were LeaAnn Phares, Bethel Park, Pa., and Jenny Weaver, Grafton. The flower girl was Jessica Saturday, cousin of the groom, Oakland.

The attendants wore gowns of seafoam green satin. The draped surplice formed a basque waistline accented with a side bow. The gowns featured shirred Empress sleeves and a gored skirt. The attendants carried bouquets of peach and white carnations with baby's breath.

The flower girl wore a long white gown with jewel neckline and attached lace capelet. It had a slightly raised waistline and was trimmed with a white satin bow. She carried a basket of white and peach carnations. This flower basket was carried by the bride's maternal grandmother in the marriage of her sister 74 years ago, and by the flower girl in the marriage of the bride's parents.

Best man was Bruce Turner, Trenton, N.J. Ushers were Scott and Todd Doerr, brothers of the groom, Accident; Jim Fawcett, brother of the bride, Thornton, W. Va.; and Tom Fawcett, brother of the bride, Grafton. The ring bearer was Michael Saturday, cousin of the groom, Oakland.

A buffet reception was held at the St. Augustine's Social Center. Bill Mahoney of "Foot in the Door" provided the music. The guests were registered by Libby Fawcett, sister-in-law of the bride, Thornton, W. Va. The rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents at Four Corners Restaurant.

The bride is a graduate of West Virginia Wesleyan College and Old Dominion University and is employed by Garrett Community College.

The groom attended Frostburg State University and is employed by Doerr Con-

Maryland Sells $80,000,000 In AAA Bonds

The Maryland Board of Public Works, consisting of Governor William Donald Schaefer, State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and State Treasurer Lucille H. Maurer sold $80,000,000 in general obligation bonds Wednesday, December 9, 1987, for a low interest bid of 6.90584%.

The bonds were rated Triple A by both Moody's Investors Service and Standard & Poor's Corporation, the two major bond rating agencies.

The $80 million sale was the smallest in nearly ten years. The low bid came from a syndicate headed by Bear Stearns. A total of four bids were received at the Annapolis meeting of the Board.

The triple A rating is the best available, and Maryland remains one of only seven states in the nation to retain the triple A designation from both Moody's Investors Service and Standard & Poor's Corporation.

"This is a very good result for our bond sale, despite the volatility of the market in recent days and reflects confidence in our management of Maryland's finances," said Governor Schaefer.

"This low rate is important to every taxpayer in Maryland because both state real estate tax revenues and general fund revenues are used to repay the principal and interest costs of Maryland's general obligation bonds," Goldstein said. Mrs. Maurer noted, "We are especially pleased to have received four bids — all very close — which demonstrate the high regard for Maryland's general obligation bonds. We are also watching the bond sales very carefully to be sure we are complying with the more stringent requirements of the Federal Tax Reform Act of 1986."

Proceeds from the bond sale will be used as follows: $29,583,000 for general state construction, $23,300,000 for public school construction; and $27,017,000 for a variety of state and local projects, including community colleges, water quality projects and local jail facilities in Anne Arundel, Montgomery and Queen Anne's counties and Baltimore City. The National Aquarium will receive $2.5 million in proceeds from the sale.

ACTIVE SCOUTS — The Cub Scouting program is alive and well in Garrett County as is evidenced by some of the many activities of Cub Scout Pack 95, Loch Lynn. One of the undertakings of the pack was a float in the Autumn Glory parade this past October. Cub Scouts participating were: Timmy Upton, Dusty McCartney, Ben Getson, Cody Hardesty, Marshall Neel, Todd Brinkley, Donnie Ringer, Timmy Ferguson, Timmy Woltring, Jimmy Brown, David Deems, Jerod Boyce, Jaime Jacoby, Andy Teter and Derek Everd. Boy Scouts helping were Greg Eichorn, Randy Lucas and John Jackson. Another activity recently was a tour of the emergency room at Garrett County Memorial Hospital. Pictured with Joyce Andrews, R.N., left to right, are Timmy Ferguson, David Deems, Jerod Boyce, Todd Brinkley and Eric Jacoby. Playing the part of the patient is Cody Hardesty.

Revenue Board Says State Must Keep Eye On National Economy

The Maryland Board of Revenue Estimates, consisting of State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein (chairman), State Treasurer Lucille H. Maurer and State Budget Secretary Charles Benton, met in Annapolis December 10 and increased its earlier estimates of fiscal year 1988 general fund revenue by $94.4 million, to $4,940,174,000. The Board told Governor Schaefer its estimate of general fund revenue for fiscal year 1989, which begins

July 1, 1988, totals $5,215,318,000.

However, the Board struck a cautionary note in its report, citing the national economic outlook as the primary cloud on Maryland's economic horizon. "While the Board does not believe that recession is inevitable during the fiscal year 1988 and 1989 period, it should be recognized that a recession is a distinct possibility. Although at this time state revenue prospects seem relatively good through fiscal year 1989, the continuation of favorable revenue prospects beyond fiscal year 1989 is very uncertain. . . . More so than in most years there is great uncertainty; therefore, the Board urges caution in committing funds for new initiatives with escalating future costs."

In its report to the governor, the Board of Revenue Estimates reported that, gauged by available data, some key sectors of the Maryland economy are continuing to experience strong growth, including automobile sales, real property sales and construction activity, which are all growing at a stronger than normal pace.

The Board noted, however, that the state's economy, including employment and personal income, is expected to grow somewhat slower over the next 18 months. In its analysis, the Board provided projections for specific state revenues.

Income Tax

The Board increased its earlier estimate of individual income tax revenue for fiscal year 1988 to $2,348,301,000, a growth of 7.7% over last fiscal year. The report projects fiscal year 1989 revenue of $2,519,935,000. These estimates are for the state income tax, exclusive of the local "piggy-back" income tax revenue.

Corporation income taxes are expected to produce $152,730,000 for the general fund in fiscal year 1988 and $144,031,000 in fiscal year 1989. "These figures include the estimated impact of the 1986 Federal Income Tax Reform Law and the 1987 state tax reform package as well as the impact of the recently completed Tax Amnesty Program," Goldstein said.

Sales Tax

The Board stated that Maryland sales taxes have grown at a very strong pace during the past four fiscal years. However, it cautioned the growth in sales tax revenue will slow to more closely reflect the growth in personal income.

Sales tax revenues for the current fiscal year are also being increased by the collections from the Tax Amnesty Program and by receipts from the construction sector which is growing at a pace 45% stronger than normal. However, the Board reported that some economic forecasters expect dramatic slowing in consumer spending related to the volatile stock market.

Overall Retail Sales and Use Tax collections should total $1,408,922,000 during fiscal year 1988, a growth of 8.2% over the prior year, and $1,501,292,000 for fiscal year 1989, a growth of 6.6%.

State Lottery

The general fund is expected to receive $324,761,000 from State Lottery receipts during the current fiscal year. For fiscal year 1989, lottery revenue should total $342,813,000. Lottery revenues may be affected by the introduction of a new lotto game, a new Virginia state lottery and Maryland's new instant sport lotteries.

Property Transfer Tax

The Board noted that property transfer tax revenues are currently expanding about 50% stronger than normal, but said the stock market's volatility has raised questions about consumer confidence, especially its impact on purchases of housing, automobiles and other big ticket items.

The Board projects continued short-term strength in single-family property sales because of lower interest rates and the state's generally favorable economic conditions.

The property transfer tax is expected to produce $48,093,000 in general fund revenue for fiscal year 1988 and $25,029,000 for fiscal year 1989. The decline is attributable to anticipated declines in new housing starts and resales, and to a new law which exempts the first $20,000 of consideration paid for owner-occupied real properties from the transfer tax, effective July 1, 1988.

Interest On Investments

Based upon the current level and outlook for interest rates and investable state funds, the Board projects interest earnings will total $45 million during fiscal year 1988 and $50 million for fiscal year 1989.

Transportation

Aside from general fund revenues, the Board of Revenue Estimates also projects transportation revenues each year. Motor vehicle registration revenue is being affected by the staggered registration system, while titling taxes are expected to slow this growth through 1989. Motor fuel tax revenue is being primarily affected by the increase in the motor fuel tax rate to 13.5 cents per gallon, effective June 1, 1987. As a result of these and other factors, the Board projects transportation revenues to total $971.1 million for fiscal year 1988 and $975.1 million for fiscal year 1989.

Gabriele Bans Sale Of Fire Alarm Decoration

Maryland State Fire Marshal Rocco J. Gabriele has placed a ban on the sale of a product called "X'mas Fire Alarm Crystal Ball" which is packaged as a Christmas tree decoration and is used as an early warning fire alarm which is placed on a live Christmas tree.

The decoration conforms to the design of a ball with numerous holes located in both the top and bottom of the ball. The device, which operates from a 9-volt battery, allegedly would activate sounding an alarm if heat would be generated towards the bottom of the ball.

The "X'mas Fire Alarm

Crystal Ball" has been banned for sale or distribution in the state as the device has not been tested nor has been approved by a testing laboratory accepted by the Maryland State Fire Marshal's Office.

The "X'mas Fire Alarm Crystal Ball" is the second product in the past week to be banned in the State of Maryland by the Fire Marshal. Previously, the State Fire Marshal's Office placed a ban on a product called "Fire Knockout" which was packaged also as a Christmas tree decoration and was to serve as a fire extinguisher on live Christmas trees.

The State Fire Marshal's Office and local fire prevention bureau throughout the state have gone to numerous stores ordering the removal of the "X'mas Fire Alarm Crystal Ball" from the stores. The "X'mas Fire Alarm Crystal Ball" is manufactured in Taiwan and is distributed in Maryland through Enesco Imports Corporation of Elk Grove Village, Illinois.
